ROUND TABLE PROTESTED BY RIOTS IN INDIA

Bombay Council Group Held and 25 Injured in Disorders.

CALCUTTA WORKERS GIVE OVER LABORS

ENGLAND REMINDED OF PAST PROMISES

Calcutta, India, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—A partial "hartal," or cessation of work, was observed today as a protest against the Indian Round Table Conference at London.

Gandhi Remains Silent.

The City Corporation adopted a resolution recording its "emphatic condemnation of the round table conference having regard to the circumstances in which it was constituted and its entirely unrepresentative character." Five European members, three Hindu Liberals and one Mohammedan walked out of the council chamber before a vote on the resolution was taken.

From Poona Jail, where Mahatma Gandhi sits for long hours at a spinning wheel, there came no indication that the day was regarded by the leader of the congress movement as different from any other.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Nov. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—History was made in the royal gallery of the House of Lords today when the king-emperor, standing before a golden throne opened the all-Indian round table conference in the presence of the ruling chiefs of India, all the principal figures of English political life and representatives of all classes and creeds of British India, with the disquieting exception of Mahatma Ghandi's Congress party.

Sober western morning coats, such as that worn by King George, mingled with the jewels and bright colors of Indian potentates, but the occasion was more than merely ceremonial. There was tension in the air, and two speakers, one the Hindu and the other the Moslem spokesmen, pointedly reminded Great Britain in their opening speeches that India expects the reality of dominion home rule.

The formal session over, the conference at once got down to business this afternoon when a committee of sixteen met to draw up the agenda and decide upon procedure.

King Reads Speech.

The great gathering in the crowded chamber just before noon rose to its feet as the king walked in, closely followed by the lord chamberlain and the officers of his household, and as he came up to the throne in the center of two tables arranged in a double U-shape, the proud sovereign princes, who rule despotically 80,000,000 Indians, the Gaekwar Baroda, the Bikanir of Kashmir and the veteran Patiala, who alone survives of those who rendered homage at the durbar that proclaimed Victoria as former empress, bent their heads low before the only man to whom they pay obeisance. There were bows, too, from such delegates as Mohammed Ali, who had served years in jail for agitating against the king-emperor's govern-

Former Kaiser's Grandson in U. S.

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—A grandson of the former kaiser arrived here today to look for a job.

He is Prince Louis Ferdinand Hohenzollern, aged 23, second son of the former Crown Prince of Germany. His ambition is to start an industrial career under Henry Ford, he said. He came here from Buenos Aires, where he took the eighteen-month course offered by the Ford Motor Co., progressing from workman to salesman.

Prince Louis, dark-haired and more than 6 feet tall, started for Detroit immediately to see Mr. Ford. He expects to sail for home on the Bremen this week. He said he had admired the United States greatly since his visit of two years ago and hoped to return soon, although that would depend on his interview with Mr. Ford.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Much of the criticism of the starting of foreign branches by our industries is shortsighted. All the business on earth can not be done within the confines of the United States. One disadvantage in world trade is the lower standards of living in other countries. Foreign branches will carry out methods and standards, which will be contagious. Pressure of low standard production will be reduced. International finance will be more stable.

Usually foreign branches will use our machinery and raw materials and increase local prosperity. That will make customers who are better able to absorb our exports. Meantime the tariff gives the advantage in our markets to domestic producers.

The problem has a broader aspect. It is our duty to take care of our own people. That we can do. But a backward, undeveloped world instead of being a help is a menace. Peace requires arrangements by which other people can prosper. It is our duty to contribute of our capital and our skill to that prosperity. Such a course in the end will provide more employment, increase our material welfare, and give us the satisfaction of having borne our part of the burden of civilization.

NORRIS BILL FACES VETO, SAYS REECE

ACTION EXPECTED SOON

(Associated Press.)

A presidential veto of the Norris bill for Government operation of Muscle Shoals, should it be approved by the present Congress, was forecast yesterday by Representative Reece, Republican, Tennessee, after a conference at the White House.

At the same time the Tennessean said that if the Senate adopts the House bill authorizing disposal of the project to private interests it would meet with executive approval.

Mr. Reece is a conferee on the Muscle Shoals controversy between the House and Senate. He sponsored passage of the administration measure, which provides for leasing the $135,000,000 war-time nitrate project on the Tennessee River to private interests.

Although supported by President Hoover on his Muscle Shoals stand, he was defeated for reelection by O. B. Lovett, an independent Republican. His defeat, he said, had not altered his position.

After the conference with President Hoover, Representative Reece said the hope of securing legislation for disposal of the project rested with the final passage of the House bill, because the President had made known he would not sign the Norris measure.

"The enactment of the House bill," Mr. Reece said, "would put the Muscle Shoals project into immediate operation, and would allow the construction of Cove Creek Dam, which would bring early relief to both labor and agriculture and assure the development of the Tennessee Valley on a sound basis.

"This bill will accomplish the earliest and most satisfactory results in behalf of the South and the Nation. Having already passed the House, it will become a law if the Senate should approve it, since the President has made it known he would sign the bill.

"I do not see how any senator or representative interested in the development of the South could stand in the way of the enactment of this measure at the coming session. In this direction lies the hope of securing legislation at this time, since the President has made it known that he would not sign the Norris bill, the only other proposal before Congress."

Mr. Reece said he expected definite action would be taken at the coming session.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, head of the Senate conferees on Muscle Shoals, plans an early meeting.

Senate advocates of the Norris bill are understood to favor a move to have Representative Reece removed from the conference because of his defeat. However, this action could be taken only in the House.

KNIFE WOUND KILLS SOCIETY MATRON, 33

Dies in Rooms of Husband's Former Secretary, of Whom She Was Suspicious.

POLICE SILENT ON FACTS

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Her heart pierced by a bread knife, Mrs. Leone Bowles, 33, prominent society matron, died today in the apartment of a former secretary to her husband.

Present when Mrs. Bowles died were her husband, Nelson C. Bowles, 34, and Mrs. Irma Paris, 25, until three months ago his secretary. Detectives would not say whether the death was a suicide or murder.

Police reported Mrs. Bowles went to Mrs. Paris' apartment to question her about her relationship with Bowles. The two quarreled and Mrs. Paris telephoned Bowles, who hurried to the room.

Bowles declared, and Mrs. Paris confirmed, that as the three stood in the room discussing the situation, Mrs. Bowles went into the kitchen for a glass of water. A moment later there was a scream. They ran to the kitchen and found the woman on the floor, the knife in her heart. Bowles said he carried his wife to a bedroom, then called his physician, a funeral director, his attorney and the police. The doctor arrived five minutes later. Twenty minutes later Mrs. Bowles died.

Mrs. Bowles is survived by two daughters, 5 and 7 years old.

Representative Predicts Senate Will Bar Davis

Newcastle, Pa., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, while here to speak in observance of Armistice Day, said he believed Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, senator-elect from Pennsylvania, would not be seated by the Senate. William S. Vare was barred as senator from Pennsylvania because of excessive campaign expenditures.

"Acknowledged campaign expenditures have reached such an amount as to make Davis just as undesirable to the Senate as Vare," Representative Rankin said. "Would it be fair to seat Davis and bar Vare?" The representative said he believed Gifford Pinchot, governor-elect of Pennsylvania, would make an appointment to fill the seat.

HOOVER CALLS HALT ON SLASH IN MAIL FORCE

Heeds Kendall's Protest on Abolishing Jobs by Cuts in Service.

HOUSE LEADER RAPS "ECONOMY" PROGRAM

Has Made Idle Thousands of Substitutes in 20 Cities, He Avers.

450 RURAL CARRIERS DISPLACED, HE FINDS

Their Routes Consolidated; Policy, President Is Told, Cannot Be Justified.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover will call a halt on the economy program of the Postoffice Department insofar as consolidation of rural free delivery routes and curtailment of deliveries and collections in twenty of the larger cities are concerned.

This announcement was made yesterday by Representative Samuel A. Kendall, of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican on the House committee on postoffices and post roads, after he had called on President Hoover to lodge a protest against the Postoffice Department.

The President, Representative Kendall said, assured him that there would be no more consolidations of rural delivery routes and no further curtailment of service in the larger cities.

Deliveries Curtailed.

Curtailment of service in 20 large cities, Representative Kendall declared, was effected by abolishing one or two deliveries and collections in each city. This, Mr. Kendall said, threw thousands of substitute employes out of work.

Consolidation of 450 rural routes since July 1, Representative Kendall asserted, abolished the jobs of 450 rural carriers.

All this, Mr. Kendall said, in the statement he left with the President, has been done in the face of the serious unemployment situation.

As for the $56,000,000 deficit in the Postoffice Department, Mr. Kendall declared no one regrets this because it was created by giving the people of the United States the best postal service in the world.

Helped Out on Roads.

"Congress," Mr. Kendall said in the prepared protest he handed to the President, "has been giving $75,000,000 yearly toward State roads. This year, Congress increased the appropriation to $125,000,000 per year for three years. This magnificent appropriation is no obligation of the Government, but is given to assist the States in road building.

"Congress appropriates $100,000,000 for the Agriculture Department, to benefit farmers, fruit growers and stock men, no part of which ever reaches the Treasury. The appropriations are made to render governmental service to the people.

"Then why should the Postoffice Department abolish positions to curtail postal service? The American people may submit to curtailment of the activities of the Army, Navy and

Prohibition in the Senate

Cassiday's Suspicions Aroused By Dry Agent Aiding Butts

Clumsy Identification Makes Man in Green Hat Halt Sale.

Senate Employes Also Lose Confidence in Dry Bureau Spy.

By ROGER BUTTS.

The Prohibition Bureau seemed to be well pleased with the progress I was making as an "undercover" agent in the Senate Office Building.

My written reports checked with the information they had already received regarding the bootlegging that was going on up there. While I was doing the inside job two other special agents were also at work on Capitol Hill. They shadowed Cassiday to and from his residence, where he kept his supplies, and watched him every day as he came to the Senate Office Building to get his orders and make his deliveries.

I had been on the job about a month when the bureau chief concluded I had pretty well established myself on Capitol Hill and was now ready to perform the mission on which I had been sent there.

He seemed to feel I had had time enough to fix my status as a Senate employe with the other boys in the stationery room and had won the confidence of Cassiday as one of his customers. So they informed me they had decided to trap "the Man in the Green Hat" into a sale at the Senate Office Building.

On January 18 they sent up another prohibition agent from the bureau in order to have another witness to the transaction if we could catch Cassiday actually delivering and selling bootleg liquor on Capitol Hill.

The other agent from the bureau joined me in the Senate stationery room. As directed by the bureau, I called Cassiday up at his residence, using the phone in the stationery room. I asked Cassiday to come up at 11 o'clock that morning so that I could introduce a friend of mine to him.

"The Man in the Green Hat" came into the Senate stationery room promptly at the appointed hour, but from then on things did not work out very well. When I introduced the other prohibition agent to Cassiday as a prospective customer, Cassiday asked him whose patronage he was on.

President Writes Robinson to Seek Assurance of No Extra Session.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The smoldering resentment in Democratic ranks over the issuance of the famous cooperation statement by seven party chieftains, broke out into the open yesterday when Senator Carter Glass declared he did not think it appropriate for his party to be apologizing for its victory.

At the same time it became known that following the issuance of the statement, President Hoover wrote Senator Robinson, Senate Democratic leader and one of the signers of the statement, asking him for definite assurance that the Democrats would not force an extra session by holding up the appropriation bills.

Although this letter is understood to have gone forward a week or more ago, no reply is understood to have been received from Senator Robinson, who is at present in Arkansas.

Subject of Criticism.

The cooperation statement has been the subject of private criticism in Democratic ranks ever since it was issued. Senator Glass has been fuming about it daily. Yesterday he boiled over and gave public expression to his resentment.

He pointed to the administrations of Wilson and Cleveland, cited their accomplishments, and declared:

"In the face of a record like this it does not seem to some of us exactly appropriate for anybody to suggest that we should do nothing. If trusted with power, to molest legislative administrative policies which have proved disastrous at home and caused us to be hated and feared abroad.

"Of course, no sensible Democrat could desire or intend to obstruct any sound governmental proposal merely for the satisfaction of embarrassing a political adversary; at the same time no Democrat should be willing to engage in any apologies or to bridle his traditional faith merely to avert the fear of persons who think their illicit sanctions and special privileges may be taken away."

Widely Misinterpreted.

The cooperation statement has been widely misinterpreted and has caused considerable confusion, some observers even going so far as to predict that it meant a coalition of the two major parties for the duration of the emergency.

President Hoover, however, appears to have gone right to the heart of the only promise the statement contained. The statement, it has been explained since the critical manner in which it was received in some Democratic quarters, did not intend to commit the party to any procedure in the Seventy-second session of Congress. It simply reflected the realization that the session, when the recent Democratic gains will be felt, is more than a year away.

There being no appreciable change in the complexion of the two houses in the coming short session, the lengthy statement was reduced to a promise that no dilatory or obstructive tactics would be engaged in in that session.

Promise of Importance.

This was a promise of importance, however, and it was one that Mr.

TWO ARE CONVICTED IN M'CRORY HOLDUP

THIRD MAY ENTER PLEA

Convicted of robbery in connection with the holdup of Harvey W. Smith, an employe of the McCrory Stores, John Irvin and Henry Mechelinski, both of Baltimore, Md., face possible sentences of fifteen years in the penitentiary. The two were convicted yesterday by a District Supreme Court jury before Justice Oscar R. Luhring. Assistant United States Attorney Irving Goldstein prosecuting.

The conviction was obtained largely on testimony given by Elmer Bennett, who was indicted jointly with the others. The robbery, according to testimony, occurred last August 7, while Smith was en route to the bank with $1,200.

The trio was traced by automobile tags. After snatching the bag in which the money was contained, they leaped into an automobile and speeded away, witnesses stated.

Bennett was not tried with Irvin and Mechelinski, but is expected to plead guilty within the next few days, according to the United States attorney's office.

Fess Denies Reports He Will Resign Post

"That is a fabrication made out of whole cloth," he asserted. "They don't know what they are talking about."

TWO AMERICANS DIE IN PERUVIAN RIOTING

25 REPORTED WOUNDED

Lima, Peru, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Two Americans were among fifteen men killed today in a riot at a copper mine near Mal Paso, about 125 miles northwest of Lima.

John W. Chapman, of Chicago, and E. L. Tripary, whose home address is not known here, were the Americans who lost their lives.

Fred M. Dearing, United States Ambassador to Peru, was advised of the incident and immediately called at the foreign office, where he spent two hours in conference with Ernesto Montagne, foreign minister. It was learned on good authority tonight that the American Ambassador formally requested protection for Americans in the mining zone, which is near Cerro de Pasco.

Meanwhile all foreigners in the district were evacuated aboard special trains. Among them were about 350 American citizens and British subjects. The mine near which the riot occurred is owned by the Cerro de Pasco Copper Corporation, an American concern.

It was semiofficially stated tonight that the government of Provisional

WETS AND DRYS JOIN TO CALL SHOWDOWN

1932 TO FORCE ISSUE

(Associated Press.)

Wets and drys joined yesterday in a call for a showdown on prohibition in the 1932 presidential campaign as the anxious leaders of the divided parties looked hopefully to the busy Law Enforcement Commission for a solution.

Representative Beedy (Republican), Maine, a prohibition advocate, accepted the demand of James W. Wadsworth, former Republican senator from New York and a champion for repeal, that the prohibition issue be thrashed out in 1932.

As the wet and dry enthusiasts warmed up to the prohibition issue, which already has become a threat to the unity of the Republican party and is regarded as a menace of the same kind to the Democrats, the leaders themselves took to silence.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, the chairman of the Republican national committee and an avowed prohibition advocate, observed that he had spoken in an individual capacity rather than as party chairman when he recently espoused a mobilization of the drys.

In the face of the demands of Wadsworth and Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, that he resign as party chairman, Senator Fess stood his ground, but there is a belief among his intimates that Fess would quit the party post rather than be silent in any wet and dry battle of national scope.

Meanwhile the Law Enforcement Commission, upon whose report the Hoover administration is expected to take its stand on the prohibition question, resumed its conferences in an effort to reach an agreement acceptable to the eleven members.

The word has come from some of the dry members on the commission

Plot Bared to Kidnap California Publisher

HARRY CHANDLER

Los Angeles, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Revelation of an alleged plot to kidnap Harry Chandler, owner of the Los Angeles Times and president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, was made today by the district attorney's office.

Police said plans for the abduction of Mr. Chandler had become known with the arrest of Robert Gilbousen, 28 years old, after statements made by him to an attorney, S. W. Thompson. Two other kidnapings and a series of recent robberies were attributed by the authorities to those responsible for the reputed conspiracy.

The old gang of Morrie Moll, who is wanted on robbery and murder charges, is alleged to be implicated.

While Gilhousen was not connected with the plot against Chandler, District Attorney Buron Fitts said he furnished information gained from his alleged association with the gang in several robberies.

When definite word reached the district attorney's office, about ten days ago, of the kidnaping plot, two detectives were assigned to accompany Mr. Chandler constantly. In a statement issued soon after the plot was disclosed, the publisher said:

"I know nothing about the supposed plot to 'kidnap' me beyond the fact that a few days ago I received information from an apparently reliable source that something of the kind was contemplated by a group of gangsters from outside the city. Such reports are not uncommon, and, beyond

$100,000 Offered Charity At Northwestern U. Terms

College Would Make Gift to Illinois Unemployment Fund If Notre Dame Shifts 1931 Game to Soldier Field, Where Refund Can Be Earned.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The executive committee of Northwestern University's board of trustees today offered to make an immediate donation of $100,000 to the Illinois State unemployment commission, providing certain conditions pertaining to the 1931 Notre Dame-Northwestern football game are followed.

The offer, made in the face of requests that the November 22 game between Notre Dame and Northwestern be transferred to Soldier Field, Chicago, and the proceeds given to charity, carried these provisions:

1. That Notre Dame and the Western Conference agree to permit the transfer of the 1931 Notre Dame-Northwestern football game from South Bend, Ind., to Soldier Field.

2. That Notre Dame consent that all funds, in excess of the amount to be shared between the two universities on the basis of a full attendance at Notre Dame Stadium, be turned over to Northwestern as a refund for the $100,000 to be donated at the present time.

3. That the South Park Board of Chicago again offer free use of Soldier Field for the 1931 game at a suitable date to both Notre Dame and Northwestern.

If all conditions are met, North-

Census Bureau Finds Way To Get Cafeteria Over Ban

Was Forbidden to Erect Building, So Steam Tables Will Take Place of Multigraphs, Moving Into New Quarters, and 6,000 People Are Happy.

The official score in the game of Comptroller General McCarl against Census Director William M. Steuart is 1 to 0 in favor of Mr. Steuart, and 6,000 Census Bureau fans are cheering the winner.

Sometime ago Comptroller General McCarl, who is the Government's "watchdog" lest things be done illegally, ruled that the Census Bureau could not erect a cafeteria to feed its 6,000 employes because these employes were "temporary."

So even though the weather had turned chilly, the census workers were forced to rush out and grab their hot dogs, coffee and luncheon sweets from push carts and auto kitchens on the streets nearby.

Director Steuart began to wonder what would happen when snow fell and the auto kitchens and push carts failed to appear. Then came an inspiration. On the lot near the Census Bureau, where a cafeteria had long been considered, a large building was arising. It was to be the new home for multigraphs and mimeographs, permanent parts of the Census Bureau.

So, as the multigraphs and mimeographs are being moved into their new quarters, the old room where they were previously stored is being transformed into a cafeteria, where the Census Bureau employes will eat —within ten days.

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 2, 3 and 5 Today

Hoover was particularly interested in. It develops that he set about immediately to get a definite assurance from Senator Robinson direct. He wants, above everything, to avoid an extra session.

It appears, however, that there are some Democrats who are averse to promising there will be no extra session. In fact, some of them make no secret of their desire for one in order that they can seat their new members in March without waiting until next December and take over the legislative reins of the Government without further delay.

Senator Glass represents a school of thought that believes, the question of forcing an extra session aside, there is no reason for the Democrats to have an inferiority complex. It plays right into the impression which the Republicans have always sought to give of them, that they are dangerous to business, it is contended.

Senator Glass' statement contends there is nothing in the Democratic record to warrant the party accepting this brow-beaten attitude.

Not a Party Leader.

In his statement he said rather sarcastically that he was not a "party leader" and "perhaps should not venture to comment at all."

"However," he said, "putting aside the question as to the right of any undelegated group of gentlemen, great or small, to pledge 47 senators and 217 representatives in Congress to a precipitately devised course of action, I confess to some astonishment that anybody should feel implied to apologize for an apparent Democratic victory at the election or could even feel constrained to attempt a justification of such a result.

"In my view, the implications contained in the proclamation of these distinguished gentlemen are without any substantial basis whatsoever. It is beyond my comprehension why anybody should assume that a Democratic administration of public affairs at Washington could constitute a menace to the business of the Nation, not even if one should define business to mean only the stock market.

"Certainly the only two Democratic administrations the country has had since the Civil War stand out in encouraging contrast to any two Republican administrations within that period."

Cites Two Administrations.

Asserting that Cleveland's administration was noted for its "cleanness, its business efficiency and its contribution to national dignity," Senator Glass said Cleveland "averted a debasement of our currency, purified and advanced the civil service and made the most powerful nations of the earth respect us completely.

"As to the eight years of Democratic rule under Woodrow Wilson, no unprejudiced person can contest the proposition that, under Mr. Wilson's leadership, we had more constructive legislation and made a greater contribution to the stability of business than under any other administration within half a century; and although that particular period was characterized by world-wide upheaval and all the harassments of a great war, no scandal nor disclosure of administrative corruption was ever had. Not to mention the scores of salutary legislative enactments having an intimate relation to the business of the country, the Democrats set up the Federal Reserve banking system, followed by the Federal Farm Loan Bank system, the two constituting the greatest advance in scientific banking and in actual farm relief which the country had witnessed in 50 years.

"The reserve act made currency and credit panics impossible for legitimate business and the farm loan act reduced the agricultural interests of the country from the insatiable greed of money sharks; under it over $2,000,000,000 has been loaned to farmers at a lower rate of interest than ever before prevailed in the history of the country.

Compares Bank Failures.

"The banking business ordinarily is a fair barometer of commercial and industrial tranquillity; and this makes one wonder whether the comparative banking situation was examined or understood by the group of distinguished Democrats which seemed to apprehend that the country may take fright at the prospect of Democratic success.

"During the entire eight years of the Wilson administration there were 501 bank failures, State and national, an average of 62 5-8 per year, involving total liabilities of $126,172,409. For the first fiscal year of Mr. Hoover's administration there were 617 bank failures, State and national, or 116 more than for the entire eight years of Woodrow Wilson. The liabilities of these failed banks for one fiscal year of Mr. Hoover's administration were $297,984,073, or $171,811,664 more than for the entire eight years of Woodrow Wilson."

In the whole ten years of Republican administration, he said, there had been 5,565 bank failures, involving total liabilities of $1,836,968,075, and an average of 556½ failures a year, while in the last two years of the Wilson administration there were only 9 failures, with total liabilities of $2,426,000.

taking ordinary precautions, I did nothing about it.

"I have heard nothing further either to confirm or disprove the original information. I am informed by the authorities that the Gilhousen matter has no connection with the alleged plot against myself, so far as they have been able to determine."

Gilhousen was arrested after he had consulted Thompson. The authorities say they had information that two other men prominent here had paid ransom to the gangsters.

The Moll gang was organized here several years ago. It was believed to have about 32 members, scattered in various large cities. In 1923, three men, led by one identified later as Moll, held up David Antink, drug company messenger, and robbed him of nearly $40,000.

In the battle between the quartet and the messenger, one bandit was wounded. Captured, he was sent to the penitentiary. Two more were arrested later in other States and sent to prison. Moll escaped.

In 1928, Moll was caught in Florida on a narcotic charge and later taken to St. Paul on a murder complaint. The St. Paul charge proved erroneous, but during Moll's imprisonment there Antink was taken East and identified Moll as the leader of the robbery here.

Antink returned to Los Angeles. Moll, released on bail, disappeared. Soon afterward, Antink was slain and the authorities here declare they had evidence his death was engineered by Moll.

Moll never has been caught again.

HOOVER TO SPEED CONGRESS SESSION

President Seeks to Expedite Legislation to Avoid Extra Term.

EMPLOYMENT AID FIRST

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover began conferences yesterday with congressional leaders looking to the expedition of the legislative program at the approaching short session in such a manner as to make unnecessary a special session of Congress next spring.

Unemployment legislation, including the expansion of the public building and roads work, speeding up the development of the Upper Mississippi River and other inland waterways and appropriations for seed loans will receive first attention from the administration.

Enactment of the appropriation bills carrying funds to support the Government during the next year and the completion of unfinished business come next on the tentative calendar.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, was a visitor at the White House yesterday. He is going to press at the opening of the session for acceptance by the Senate and House conferees of the Senate's measure for Government operation of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., Power and Nitrate plant.

There is every indication that the administration will resist any move for radical change in the recently enacted farm relief program and will insist that the new Farm Board be given further trial.

Nevertheless, there has been talk of launching a movement again at the short session for enactment of the export debenture principle of farm relief or for the equalization fee proposition, both of which have been in disfavor with the administration.

Republican leaders, including the President, are now seeking to determine if the recent pronouncement by Democratic leaders that the party would join in a constructive legislative program with the administration would extend to a gentleman's agreement that there will be an effort on all sides to clear up the work at the approaching short session in order to make a special session in the spring unnecessary.

Community Chest Fund Cut in Martinsburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg W. Va., Nov. 12.—A $4,000 reduction in the Community Chest fund for this city to $25,000 for 1930, as compared with the $29,000 for the present year was announced today by the committee of 50 in charge of the campaign which will be staged the first week in December.

The reduction was made, announcement said in recognition of the depression existing locally and the anticipated restricted ability to give among the smaller contributors. In addition two of the direct relief agencies were combined in the quota to be assigned in order to eliminate all duplication; and there was reduction in the quotas to be given agencies doing an educational rather than a relief work.

Horticultural Society Sets Convention Dates

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg W. Va., Nov. 12.—The dates for the annual convention of the West Virginia Horticultural Society have been set by President M. W. Fulton, Berkeley Springs, and Secretary C. R. Miller, this city, for February 12, 13. It will be held in this city.

For the first time the convention will have adequate facilities for displaying orchard equipment in the new indoor market house here. The tentative program provides for morning, afternoon and evening sessions each day. For the banquet, which marks the climax to the annual meeting, the association hopes to have as speakers Philip S. Rose, editor of Country Gentleman, and C. C. Teague, of California, member of the Federal Farm Board.

Dr. E.B. Martin, 50, Dies In Cumberland Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Dr. Edward Blake Martin, 50, for the last 25 years a medical practitioner here, died in a Cumberland, Md., hospital Tuesday night after a short illness. Death was due to a complication developing from a carbuncle on the back of his neck and he had been in the hospital unconscious practically all the time since removal there from his home here November 1.

Funeral arrangements were delayed pending word from his aged mother, in Frederick County, Va.

485 Lynchburg Cases Were Tried Last Month

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Municipal Court here last month tried 485 cases, of which 132 were for drunkenness, 197 for violation of traffic ordinances and 27 for violation of the prohibition law.

Fines aggregated $3,322, of which $750 was in prohibition cases and $2,126 for traffic charges.

PERUVIAN DISORDERS TAKE LIVES OF 15

President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro has assured Ambassador Dearing that American lives and property would receive the best protection that could be given. A detachment of 200 soldiers was rushed to Mal Paso to reinforce the police who had attempted to prevent the riot.

The riot occurred after a small body of police guards had made an unsuccessful attempt at Oroya to turn back 1,500 Peruvian workmen, who were on their way to Mal Paso for a labor demonstration. The object of the demonstration was not known here tonight.

The skirmish with the police at Oroya, which resulted in the injury of 20 men, apparently infuriated the marchers. When they arrived at Mal Paso they began, according to reports reaching the Capital, to loot business houses and in some instances even invaded private dwellings.

Chapman, an electrician, and Tripary, a storekeeper, were killed while trying to drive away the invaders. An Austrian, who only two days ago came to Mal Paso to become manager of a hotel also was killed. Twelve of the Peruvian workmen were shot dead by the police.

The number of wounded was estimated at 25. It was not definitely known whether any Americans were among them.

PROCESSION CARRIES GEN. BLISS TO GRAVE

CUTS TO BE SOUGHT IN APPROPRIATIONS

House Group Would Curtail All Except Building Plans, Wood Says.

HOPES TO KEEP TAX LOW

(Associated Press.)

The plan of the House appropriations committee to curtail Government expenses and at the same time allow funds for public building programs, to decrease unemployment, was outlined yesterday by Chairman Wood as that group began formulating supply bills for the next fiscal year.

"The total appropriations for the coming fiscal year," Mr. Wood said, "should be lower than for the present period provided there are no extraordinary items which an elaborate public building program might upset."

The total for this year was $4,872,401,096, including $840,281,352 for the postal service. The aggregate for the new fiscal year should be less, Mr. Wood declared.

"We expect to save money this year," Chairman Wood said. "The appropriations committee will hew pretty closely to the line. We expect to keep the expenditures below the budget estimates as we always have done."

Time to Push Program.

Mr. Wood continued: "This is a good time for the Government to push its public buildings program. There may be some substantial outlay for new projects.

"With the present prices of building materials, many of the existing projects will cost less than the amount authorized by Congress. In addition to being able to procure building materials at low prices now, the Government will be able to provide employment for many men, thereby contributing to relief of the existing economic conditions."

In answer to a question, Mr. Woods said the Treasury might resort to issuance of short-term bonds, to let the Government carry forward a public building program without increasing taxes. He noted that the present interest rates would be advantageous for the Government to borrow money in this manner, whereas an increase in taxation or elimination of the 1 per cent reduction in taxes granted last year by Congress would have an undesirable effect on business.

Hope to Continue Tax Cut.

"I think there is a good chance of continuing the 1 per cent tax reduction," he stated. "I base my opinion on the present Treasury figures and greater customs revenue from the new tariff act when it gets to working.

The reduction applied to both income and corporation taxes and totaled $160,000,000.

Hearings on the Treasury-Postoffice and the Interior Department bills got under way before the committee behind closed doors. Under the committee plans, three measures are to be ready for action by the House early in December.

Mrs. Mary Carter Dies At Warrenton Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Mary Carter, wife of the late Francis Scott Carter, died here this morning after an illness of about ten days. Her death was caused by double pneumonia. Mrs. Carter was the daughter of the late Robert I. Hicks, for a number of years a prominent physician in Warrenton.

She is survived by one brother, Randolph Hicks, lawyer, of New York and Warrenton, and two sisters, Landon and Bessie Hicks, both of Warrenton, Va. Her two children, Mrs. Robert Guthrie Johnston, of Washington, D. C., and Randolph Carter, of Baltimore, also survive her. Her husband died in 1921.

Mrs. Carter's other brother, Dr. John Hicks, a major in the Medical Corps, died overseas in 1918. Mrs. Carter was a capable and well known rider and for a number of years rode with the Warrenton Hunt Club. She married Francis Scott Carter in 1902. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. in St. James Episcopal Church, where she for years was a member of the choir. Burial will be at the Warrenton Cemetery. The funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Paul D. Bowden, of St. James Episcopal Church, assisted by the Rev. Robert Johnston, rector of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C.

Man Hurt Between Street Cars.

Caught between two street cars while crossing the street at Fourteenth and F streets yesterday morning, Harry Pullen, 40 years old, of Preston, Md., was treated for abrasions to his face when he was taken to Emergency Hospital following the accident. He was later allowed to return to his home.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Washington was selected for the semiannual meeting of the Middle Atlantic States Equipment Men's Association on May 14 and 15, 1931, by the organization at its closing session here today. All officers of the association were reelected.

$1,000,000 Saved By Drought Rates

Virginia Relief Executive Says 10,000 Carloads of Feed Affected.

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—J. R. Hutcheson, vice chairman of the Virginia Drought Relief Commission, declared today that farm and home demonstration agents had issued permits to farmers for reduced rates on 10,000 carloads of hay and other feedstuffs, enabling a saving of between $750,000 and $1,000,000 since the drought rates became effective.

The lower rates were granted by the railroads but, according to Mr. Hutcheson, the agents showed the farmers how to use them to the best advantage.

"The farm demonstration agents were of great assistance to some farmers in showing them how to get loans from the Government for the seeding of fall grazing crops," the vice chairman said. "More than $50,000 was secured for this purpose and at least 10,000 acres of such grazing crops were planted by farmers who would not otherwise have been able to get the seed."

Group Moves to Save Closed Dayton Bank

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 12.—A movement has been launched to organize a new bank at Dayton, Va., to take over the assets of the defunct Bank of Dayton, Inc., which was closed nearly two months ago by the defalcation of its woman assistant cashier, Miss Elizabeth Coffman. This procedure, indorsed by State Bank Examiner Bristow, will save the old bank from going into the hands of a receiver and tying up indefinitely $150,000 in deposits of farmers and Dayton business men.

A group of Dayton business men are now selling stock in the new bank, and, if $25,000 is subscribed, the new institution will get a State charter and move to take over the assets of the defunct institution and make available funds now needed by farmers to meet bills and pay their taxes.

Mother, Clothes Afire, Saved by Son's Effort

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Granville Koogler, of Bridgewater vicinity, was saved from possible death when her son, Lavalle Koogler, hearing her screaming, rushed into the kitchen and tore burning clothing from her body. Mrs. Koogler had been polishing a heated stove, and the can of stove polish exploded, igniting her clothes. Her scalp and shoulders were burned, not seriously.

Liquor Bride, 23, Asks Annulment

Woman Says She Was Not in Control of Mind When She Was Married.

Suit for annulment of her marriage to Harry Field, 29 years old, of H street northwest, near Seventeenth street, was filed in Rockville Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Theodore Elizabeth Field, 23 of Bethesda, Md.

Through Attorneys Robert B. Peter, jr., and Leonard A. Block, Mrs. Field, the former Miss Stoner, declares that she went to Rockville following a drinking party which lasted from 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon until late at night, and was married while not in full control of her mental faculties.

She had been under the care of a physician for nervous hysteria and after the marriage left the husband and returned to her parents. She became so nervous that a physician had to be called, she declares. She did not live with her husband after the marriage, she states. Annulment of the marriage and return of her maiden name is asked.

BEARS ARE PINCHED IN MARKET'S RALLY

COPPER OUTLOOK HELPS

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Bears were pinched in a swift rebound of share prices on the stock exchange today, on the eve of the anniversary of the definite reversal of the sweeping decline of the autumn of 1929.

The market got off on the wrong foot and gave a poor account of itself during the morning, many prominent issues losing $2 to $5 a share, but announcement that copper metal prices had been jacked up from the low of the century, 9¼ cents a pound, to 10 cents, had a decidedly bracing effect upon speculative sentiment, and losses were not only regained but a long list of leading shares showed final gains of $1 to $5 over the final prices of the previous session.

The improvement in the copper metal market was described in trade circles as impressive. An attempt to turn prices early last summer failed, but the present effort comes at a time when leading world producers are believed to have reached an agreement to cut production by 20,000 tons a month, and more if necessary. Furthermore, copper dealers said that the bids for copper at 10 cents were much larger than the amount which producers were willing to sell at that level, and that further advances seemed assured.

As the copper outlook has been regarded in Wall street with deep gloom, and the stocks of many producers had fallen to about half the low prices reached in the 1929 selling panic, the promise of improvement in that industry was welcome news to the stock market. After holding at 10 cents a pound all summer, the decline in copper to 9½ cents a few weeks ago, a price below production costs for most producers, had been a severe blow to Wall street's spirits. Not many producers are understood to be able to show a profit at 10 cents, but the trade looks for an advance to 11 cents within a few weeks.

During 1929, and the first three months of this year, copper averaged about 18 cents a pound, but thereafter prices broke abruptly. The monthly statistics on stocks of copper above ground in North and South America appeared early in the day, showing a gain of nearly 8,000 tons for October, but this was offset as a market factor by the prospect of curtailment.

Parent-Teachers Elect Officers at Lonaconing

Special to The Washington Post.

Lonaconing, Md., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Thomas B. Dick was elected president of the Central High School Parent-Teacher Association at the largest-attended meeting in the history of the organization. Other officers chosen were Mrs. Al. G. Neff, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Love, secretary, and Felix Foote, sr., treasurer.

Committees were named as follows: Entertainment—Miss Emma G. Bradley, representing teachers, and Mrs. Conrad Hohing, parents; refreshment—Mrs. Janet Fresh, Mrs. Samuel Highbaugh, Mrs. Gottlieb Forester, Mrs. Anna Frensel, Mrs. William Grindle, Mrs. Harry Reiber; membership—Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Frank Muster, Mrs. Alexander McCormick, Earl Hoshall, William S. Morris and Lowell Sowers.

Hitch-Hiker Is Accused In Attempted Car Theft

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12.—After William E. Bishop, a traveling salesman of this city, had given Howard F. Sherlock, 23, of Derry, Pa., a "lift" along the road near Somerset, Pa., Sherlock took Bishop's car while the latter was making a business call.

Officers say Sherlock confessed. He was held for the December grand jury at Somerset and is in jail in default of $1,000 bail.

4 Typhoid Cases Spur Drive for City Water

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12.—The report to the city council made by Health Officer Harvey H. Weiss, that four cases of typhoid fever have been found at Mapleside, has spurred the authorities to action looking toward introducing city water in that section at once. It is expected the city mains will be tapped within a few days.

Mr. Weiss said residents of Mapleside had been using water from wells and cisterns which, due largely to the drought, had become contaminated. The hauling and dumping of city water into Mapleside wells and cisterns has proved unsatisfactory and, in his opinion, wasteful, Mr. Weiss said.

GEN. BLISS BORNE TO HIS FINAL REST

NOTABLES ARE PRESENT

Gen Tasker H. Bliss, wartime chief of staff, was laid among the great in Arlington Cemetery yesterday, with martial honors befitting his rank and distinguished service. High Government and military officials, and prominent Americans who served in the days of the war, stood at attention while the body was lowered to its final resting place on a wooded knoll between the graves of William Howard Taft and Robert Todd Lincoln.

Among the honorary pallbearers was Col. Edward M. House, sole survivor of the men who constituted the supreme war council. Other honorary pallbearers were: Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War; Admiral William S. Benson, Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Admiral Hugh Rodman, Maj. Gen. William Crozier, Brig. Gen. Stanley D. Embrick, Judge Richard Campbell, Col. W. B. Wallace, Col. Arthur Poillon, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Col. J. M. Coward and H. B. Young.

Caisson Bears Body.

Gen. Bliss' body was borne on a flag-draped caisson escorted by a detachment commanded by First Lieut. L. B. Downing, of the Sixteenth Field Artillery. Approximately 1,000 troops from Forts Washington, Myer and Humphreys, under command of Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, were waiting at the cemetery gates when the funeral procession arrived. The United States Army Band played as the caisson bore the body to the grave.

Private services were conducted at the home, 1842 Kalorama road, after which the body was taken, under a military escort to the Washington Cathedral, where Bishop James E. Freeman conducted services attended by the Ambassadors of Great Britain and France, Gen. John J. Pershing, Secretary of War Hurley, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, and other high military and naval officials.

Hoover Is Represented.

President Hoover, who had previously sent his personal condolences, was represented by his military aid, Lieut. Col. Campbell B. Hodges.

Active pallbearers who lowered Gen. Bliss to his grave, as an Army bugler sounded taps, were six enlisted men who had served him during his illness at Walter Reed Hospital. The chief of Army chaplains, Julian E. Yates, officiated at services at the grave.

Mourning for Gen. Bliss, who died Sunday night, extended to all parts of the Nation and across the sea. Included in the flood of sympathetic messages received by his widow were telegrams from the French Minister of War, Gen. Maginot; Marshal Petain, of France, and Gen. Weygand, French chief of staff.

Maryland Mayor Weds at 60 Years

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12.—Dr. Thomas W. Koon, mayor of Cumberland, surprised his guests at his annual dinner night at his home, which marked his sixtieth birthday, by announcing to the assembled guests, who included a number of prominent citizens of Cumberland and visitors from out-of-town points, that he was to be married and Miss Fannie Hutson was to be his bride.

The ceremony was immediately performed under a bower by the Rev. Dr. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, who was a dinner guest. Paul Hutson, brother of the bride, was best man, and Mrs. Mildred Ferry, Washington, D. C., and Miss Jane Breathed Hutson, daughter of Paul Hutson, were the other attendants.

Dr. Koon was a widower. He is serving his eighth term as mayor of Cumberland. He is a prominent practitioner, and is a native of Newberry, S. C. He is active in Democratic politics and headed the Ritchie campaign committee here.

State Will Buy All Toll Bridges

West Virginia Commission to Launch Program This Week.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 12.—The State bridge commission plans to start immediate negotiations for the purchase of all toll bridges, wholly or partly within the State, which are not at present definitely under negotiation. A meeting of the commission is to be held this week.

A. C. Kimpel, secretary, said that among the bridges for which negotiations would be started were two at Harpers Ferry, over the Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers; one at Shepherdstown, over the Potomac; one at Williamsport, Md., over the Potomac; over the Ohio at Chester, Newell, East Liverpool, Ohio; Bellaire, Ohio; St. Marys, Mason City and Point Pleasant; over the Big Sandy at Kenova, and over the Tug at Williamson.

Among those for which negotiations have already been started, he said, are four over the Ohio at Wheeling, two interstate and two intrastate; one at Hinton over the New River, and one over the Ohio at Marietta, Ohio. The commission said it hoped "to complete the task of acquiring all such bridges without resorting to condemnation proceedings."

Welfare Federation At Cumberland Elects

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12.—The Cumberland Welfare Federation, which supervises the Community Chest, at its annual meeting at the City Hall, elected J. George Smith, Mrs. Robert R. Henderson and Harold W. Smith to membership on the executive committee.

The holdovers are Fulcher P. Smith, Robert E. King, W. Russell Brewer, Fred T. Small, Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum and Thomas B. Finan. The committee will meet later to choose officers. Harold W. Smith, president of the federation, presided. It was voted to admit the Girl Scouts as an agency in the Community Chest.

$1,000,000 Wheat Loss Forecast.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 12 (Special).—Failure of winter wheat on 40,000 acres of farm land in Washington County to germinate because of the lack of rain has led to forecast of the almost complete destruction of next year's crop, adding another $1,000,000 to the county's already heavy drought loss.

Judge Considers Intimidation Case

Danville Jurist Reserves Decision on Question Aroused by Strike.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 12.—Whether or not the pursuit of a mill overseer by three members of the Textile Union in an automobile for two hours on the streets can be construed as being an unlawful assembly or intimidation, was a question here today with Magistrate C. K. Carter reserving decision in the case pending a closer study of the law books. W. C. Moore, S. B. Robertson and Arthur Layne are the men accused. J. B. Broome, the complaining witness, admitted that no word was passed in the shadowing process.

While this case was being heard, a jury in the corporation court was sustaining fines of $50 on Ernest Moore, Ben Carwell and Harvey Boyter, alleged to have prevented Miss Sallie Hudgins, mill worker, from entering Broome's car, which had called to take her to the mills.

"The beans are coming," was today's slogan on the strike front, since organizer W. C. Bolick told a mass meeting last night that the Danville strikers are beginning now to realize relief from agencies set in motion by the American Federation of Labor.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12.—Philip J. Shank, aged 84 years, of this city, died yesterday at the home of his son, A. C. Shank, Pittsburgh. He is survived by four other children, Mrs. James B. Wigger, of this city; James W. Shank, of LaVale, Md.; Mrs. A. H. Duvall, of Washington, D. C., and Wilbur Shank, of Gary, Ind. The funeral will be held from the home of Mrs. Wigger here, with burial in Rose Hill Cemetery.

West Virginia Slayer Gets Life Sentence

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 12.—For slaying Bryan Warner in a quarrel near the Pentecostal Church in September, Ernest White, 24, was sentenced today in the Randolph Circuit Court at Elkins to serve a life term at Moundaville.

Paul White, a brother, and Nelson Long, both of whom pleaded guilty to second degree murder, were sentenced to five years each.

Demand for Cigarette Tobacco Boosts Prices

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 12.—A sudden keen demand for cigarette tobacco has forced the price levels on the Danville tobacco market to $14.90 per hundred pounds, the highest average this season.

This is giving the growers a slight profit over the cost of production and is causing them to overtax the marketing facilities.

HOOVER TO HOLD UP POSTAL ECONOMIES

other governmental agencies, but they will never submit to a curtailment of the postal service, which reaches daily every man, woman and child in this country, and which is the life-blood of the Nation."

Unable to Justify Move.

Pointing out that no other department of the Government is abolishing positions and adding to the unemployment, Representative Kendall said it was "incomprehensible why the Postoffice Department feels called upon to add to unemployment by abolishing hundreds of positions."

Commenting on the action of the Postoffice Department in consolidating some 450 rural mail routes since July 1, Mr. Kendall said:

"These routes have been consolidated, so the department informs me, because rural carriers perform their services in from three to six hours per day. The act of Congress establishing rural routes fixes the compensation on a mileage basis and not on a day or hour basis, so the quicker the carrier serves his route the better the service he will render his patrons."

If there is anything wrong with the law, Representative Kendall said, then the Postoffice Department should take it up with Congress.

Train Kills Woman Car Stalls on Line

Man Jumps Out and Tries to Push Automobile From Track.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Eutoka Miller Person, 53 years old, wife of John K. Person, of Jarratt, Sussex County, 30 miles from Petersburg, was killed almost instantly late yesterday afternoon at a grade crossing in a crash between a passenger train and her automobile. Mrs. Person had driven her son to the Jarratt Station to board a train for Richmond.

On leaving the station Mrs. Person turned her car and had started across the track when it became stalled between the track and roadway.

J. N. Jarratt, who was another occupant of the automobile, jumped from the car and cried to Mrs. Person to do likewise while he attempted to push the stalled car from the track. A moment later the locomotive crashed into the automobile, throwing Mrs. Person clear of the track.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Person is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barnes, of Jarratt; one son, Zeno Elliott Miller, of Richmond; two daughters, Miss Elvira M. Miller, of Jarratt, and Mrs. C. B. Powell, of Petersburg; four sisters, Mrs. G. F. Patidge, Mrs. Hugh Wray, Mrs. Melton Michael, all of Petersburg, and Mrs. A. T. Parsons, of Jarratt; four brothers, C. H., John, Albert and William, all of Jarratt.

West Virginia Woman Killed in Auto Crash

Special to The Washington Post.

Franklin, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Edward Strawder, 50, was instantly killed when the automobile in which she and others were riding on the Government road between Big Run and Durbin, this county, turned over three times as the ground on one side of the road gave way. The car fell on her, crushing her head and body. Her husband, two of their children and four friends were with her in the car, none of whom were seriously hurt.

Mrs. Strawder leaves thirteen children. She was the daughter of Amos Arbogast, who froze to death some years ago when hunting on Bear Mountain. The family recently moved to Glady, their home, from Ohio.

PAIR FIGHT FOR LOVE OF WOMAN; ONE DIES

Husband, 40, and Former Mate, 70, Reported in Duel to Death.

BATTLE IN HOUSE AFIRE

Special to The Washington Post.

Ellicott City, Md., Nov. 12.—A grim battle to the death between the husband and the former husband of a woman who at the time of the fight lay in a Baltimore hospital where she had given birth to a son Monday, was revealed early yesterday morning by a fire of undetermined origin which partially destroyed the house long occupied by the late J. Thomas Jones, judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit, on the Columbia road near Atholton, 7 miles south of here.

Charles Hubbel, the husband, was found shot to death by firemen responding to the alarm. He was lying on a coach in the home, a bullet wound behind the ear, powder-blackened. A further search revealed Herman Westphal, the former husband, probably mortally wounded, a bullet in his left side, hidden under a pile of hay in a barn.

The woman, Mrs. Gussie Hubbel, lying in the hospital, knows nothing of the bitter feud which has robbed the newborn son and 3-year-old daughter of their father. Mrs. Hubbel married Westphal when she was 16 years old, but soon divorced him and married Hubbel about five years ago.

Neighbors said the two men, Westphal, 70 years old, and Hubbel, 40, were enemies, and had often threatened each other. Police are checking Westphal's story that Hubbel appeared at the door, shot him, and that he in turn got a gun and killed Hubbel. Hubbel, police said, was shot from behind.

The fire, which destroyed the upper portion of the house in which Westphal lived, ruined many valuable antiques belonging to the Jones estate.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BAREGERON

THE stew that the Democrats are now in because of that famous cooperation statement is conclusive proof that you can not let sentiment interfere with politics.

The low down on the issuance of the statement, a most unusual thing, is that it was inspired in downright sentiment, out of the goodness of the heart, out of a feeling of sincere sympathy for the hundreds of thousands now walking the streets in want.

Of course, as the statement came out it bore the signatures of John W. Davis, Alfred E. Smith, James Cox, Chairman Raskob, Jouett Shouse, Representative Jack Garner and Senator Robinson.

* * * *

BUT manifestly it was not a spontaneous idea on the part of every one of them. No, one man had the idea, and it was embraced by the flock.

Now this one man, instead of being in a gloating mood over the Democratic gains, was depressed.

He held his morning newspaper there in his hands, and while the Democratic victory took up one column the rest of the paper was filled with gloom. The unemployed, the appeals for relief, the plans for alleviating distress—gloom, gloom, nothing but gloom.

WHEREUPON, it occurred to this man that unsettled political conditions contributed to this gloom. He thought it would be such a nice thing and so helpful, to issue a reassuring message, to say some little word that might assist toward stability.

He told of his thought to the others and the statement was the result.

Bing, bang! The fireworks began.

* * * *

WHY, it is as if the statement were some State document involving the relations of nations and people of many tongues.

It seemed such a simple, harmless thing, too, like the cards one receives on Christmas, or a pretty little valentine.

Of course, one expected that the Republicans would have to answer it, but it didn't seem to be anything that called for any profound thought.

You would think they would have said simply: "That's fine, Thanks."

But no, they even looked upon it as a most momentous instrument. They had to have a high council first to determine who should sign his name to the answer and then the form that the answer should take.

Really, the public doesn't appreciate how profound and smart we politicians have to be.

CULPEPER FARMERS WIN PRIZES FOR PIGS

Four of First Six Awards in Ton Litter Contest Go to County.

DROUGHT AIDS WINNERS

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Four of the first six awards in the 1930 State-wide ton litter contest for pigs, sponsored by the Virginia Polytechnic Institute extension division, were won by Culpeper County farmers.

The contest was held to demonstrate to farmers the advisability of raising large litters of pigs and feeding well balanced rations. Drought in this section forced Culpeper farmers to almost entirely eliminate corn as a hog feed, and feed other small grains instead.

The winner, Lucian Aylor, of Winston, fed a litter of ten pigs which at the end of the contest weighed 2,337 pounds. Second prize went to H. N. Hutcheson, also of Winston, who raised nine pure bred Poland Chinas in one litter, which at the end of the feeding weighed 2,218 pounds. The third litter weighed 2,144 pounds and the fourth weighed 1,940 pounds.

Most of the Culpeper contestants used wheat feed, with some rye and barley, instead of corn. In all cases skim milk was used to supplement the grain ration r commercial feeds were used to some extent.

Feed cost records were kept by all the contestants until the final weights were taken and the pigs sold. J. C. Eller, county farm agent, estimated the feed cost on the Culpeper litters varied from $5.64 to $7.30 per 100 pounds gain, with an average cost of $6.45. All of the pigs were sold at 10 cents a pound. The profit over feed costs during the feeding period varied from $32.85 to $72.71 per litter.

The cost of grain varied less than 1 cent a pound, an dthe pigs, Mr. Eller said, enabled their owners to realize almost twice the market price of the small grain they consumed.

HYATTSVILLE COURT HEARS EIGHT CASES

WASHINGTON MAN FINED

Eight persons were tried yesterday in Police Court in Hyattsville, and seven were convicted of crimes ranging from hunting without a license to driving while drunk. The remaining case was dismissed when the lawyer for the defense attempted to prove that the crime was caused by the arresting officer.

Harry Kushner, of Mount Rainier, proprietor of a barbecue stand, was the man against whom charges of driving with illegal tags was dismissed. Evidence at the trial showed that Leonard O Baldwin, also of Mount Rainier, had been arrested while driving Kushner's car. Baldwin was charged with not having his license in his possession. After the arrest, Kushner said, State Policeman C. W. Cubbage said that Kushner would have to drive the car, but when he started to do so, Cubbage arrested him.

Kushner said further that Cubbage had been "laying" for him for some time. In spite of the dismissal of Kushner's case, Baldwin was convicted and fined $1.

A fine of $100 for driving while drunk and $1 for reckless driving was placed against Russel T. White, of Washington. White was arrested near College Park Armistice Day by Officer Cubbage after White is alleged to have nearly hit a truck.

Tried on a charge of hunting in Prince Georges County without a license, Fred Hilley and William Follin, both of Washington, were convicted and fined $20 each. They were arrested by District Deputy Game Warden James W. Rogers.

Jacob S. Shearer, of Washington, paid a fine of $10 on his conviction of reckless driving. Shearer's car hit one driven by Albert Steese, of Bowie, near that town, sending two persons to the hospital for treatment for lacerations. Mary Thornton was fined $10 for driving without a license, and Clyde Austin, whose car she was driving, paid a like amount for letting her operate the machine.

Willis White was master of ceremonies last night at the house-warming party at the new Bladensburg Junior High School. Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools, was a speaker at the exercises.

Members of homemakers' clubs throughout Prince Georges County will gather at the Oxon Hill School tomorrow for the third annual achievement Day of the movement. It will be a convention of the county association of clubs, for the purpose of exchanging ideas for domestic improvement.

Features of the gathering will be a display of historical china several hundred years old, and old handmade quilts, and a country-wide song contest, as well as "stunts", by the club members. Miss Venis M. Kellar, State home demonstration agent, will talk on "The Efficient Home."

The Oxon Hill Club will act as hostess to members of other clubs, as well as to nonmembers who desire to attend. Festivities will begin at 10:30 o'clock.

Fire engines from Bladensburg, Mount Rainier and Cottage City were called out yesterday to reextinguish a forest fire along Good Luck road. A blaze in the same area resulted in three alarms Tuesday before it was put out, and yesterday's flames are thought to have started from sparks from the earlier fire.

Mrs. Jennie Peterson Dies.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Jennie Lee Peterson, 50 years old, wife of Fred F. Peterson, of this city, died yesterday afternoon at her home. Mrs. Peterson was a native of Chesterfield County, but the most of her life had been spent in this city. She is survived by her husband, Fred F. Peterson, one daughter by a former marriage, Miss Lydia Day, and one sister, Mrs. Ida Alley, all of this city.

DIED.

WARDE—On Tuesday, November 11, 1930, at 4:05 a. m., LAURA P., beloved wife of the late John T. Warde and mother of Ethel M. Warde.
Funeral from the residence of her nephew, Ormsby M. Ballauf, 2231 First street northwest, on Thursday, November 13, at 2 p. m. Relatives and friends invited to attend. Interment at Glenwood Cemetery.

WEBSTER—On Monday, November 10, 1930, at Walter Reed Hospital, GEORGE A., beloved husband of Jessie F. Webster and father of Miss Marjorie Webster, G. Fraser Webster and Donald D. Webster, aged sixty-eighth years.
Remains resting at Hysons's funeral home, 1360 H street northwest. Funeral services at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church on Thursday, November 13, at 11 a. m. Interment at Arlington National Cemetery.

WEISS—Suddenly, on Monday, November 10, 1930, at Emergency Hospital, HERMIE BALL, beloved wife of Conrad H. Weiss.
Funeral services at her late residence, 1907 Nichols avenue southeast, on Thursday, November 13, at 8:30 a. m. Requiem mass at St. Teresa's Church at 9 a. m. Relatives and friends invited. Interment at Prospect Hill Cemetery.

ADDRESS DELIVERED TO BUSINESS WOMEN

Mrs. Martha N. Brookings Heard by Alexandria Club Members.

HOUSE WRECKED BY FIRE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 623.

Mrs. Martha N. Brookings, who was the first woman in Massachusetts to be elected alderman, and who has just completed her fourth year of service in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in the September primaries, was the speaker at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club held on Tuesday night, in the George Mason Hotel, and talked on her personal experiences in legislation.

Before entering politics, Mrs. Brookings for many years was engaged in industrial chemistry and research and her first committee appointment at the Statehouse was labor and industries. During the last two years she was the only woman and only member not a lawyer on the important committee of legal affairs. In her talk she gave an account of the details of her work, and many anecdotes regarding her experiences. She told how her first bill was the very first measure to become law in 1927, and the way she handled its presentation in the House and expedited its consideration in the Senate. She related stories of efforts to put women in jury service, which so far have been unsuccessful.

Mrs. Brookings, whose summer home is in Gloucester, Mass., has a winter home on Seminary Hill, just west of Alexandria.

The club meeting was presided over by Mrs. Mary W. Troth, the president, and in observance of Armistice Day, was opened by the assemblage singing "America," with Mrs. D. C. Book at the piano. Club members who had guests introduced them as follows: Miss Irma Coleman, Mrs. M. W. Fortune, of Richmond; Miss Florence A. Long, Mrs. John Walton Tulloch, Miss Marguerite Davis, Miss O'Connor, a member of the Wheeling, W. Va., Business and Professional Women's Club, and also a member of the Virginia State Board of Health, and the president introduced her aunt, Mrs. S. E. Smithers.

Miss Alice H. Whitton, finance chairman, reported on the card party to be given by the club on Tuesday next, at the George Mason Hotel, and announced that reservations would be received by Miss Eleanor Watkins and Mrs. Albert M. Briggs. The proceeds of this affair will be applied toward the club's quota for the entertainment by Virginia of the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in Richmond, July 6 to 11, 1931.

Miss Margaret Alexander, pianist, Beethoven sonata.

Miss Mary Monroe, school nurse; Miss Bertha M. Bristow, Red Cross nurse, and Miss Marguerite Davis, city health department nurse, were appointed a committee to select the children in the city to receive the Christmas gifts that club members donate at the December meeting. The club members were invited to attend a dinner to be given on November 20 by the Arlington County Club in honor of Mrs. Geline M. Bowman, of Richmond, past State president, past national vice president, and national chairman for the convention.

A resolution was offered and passed that the club go on record as being opposed to any increase in the water rates for the city, that a copy of such resolution be sent to city council for their information, and also should it be deemed necessary when the hearing of this appeal comes before the State Corporation Commission, the legislative chairman of the club, Mrs. Rathbone Smith, attend that hearing and present the resolution of protest against any increase.

Frances Lee English, 11 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alwood D. English, narrowly escaped death yesterday morning in a fire which badly damaged the home of her parents, at 207 Jefferson street.

Mrs. English was preparing breakfast shortly after 6 o'clock, and entered the pantry, striking a match to see her way. A few minutes later flames shot from the pantry, which is under the stairway, and in a few minutes the whole interior of the house was ablaze. Mr. English dashed up the stairs and rescued his daughter unhurt, although the father's hair was singed by the flames.

Fire companies Nos. 1 and 4 answered the alarm and finally succeeded in extinguishing the fire. No furniture or clothing was saved, and the loss is estimated at $2,000, not covered by insurance. The building is owned by David E. Robey, who stated his loss, partly covered by insurance, will amount to approximately $1,200.

A huge lantern, cost $17,000, presented by the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Virginia, is now being installed in the top of the tower of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple, which is nearing completion. The light from the lantern will serve as a guide to airplanes at night, and will be visible for many miles. It is said to be one of the most powerful lights of its kind in the world.

The steel framework which will support the lantern and the aluminum cap of the tower is practically completed. No definite date has been set for a try-out of the lantern.

A payment of 10 per cent of deposits was made to the depositors of the defunct Bank of Del Ray, which closed its doors January 21, according to Courtland H. Davis, receiver. The payment will be made either Friday or Monday.

There were approximately 900 depositors in the Del Ray Bank, which was forced to close its doors on account of alleged defalactions of the cashier, Clay T. Brittle. This payment will bring the total refunds to depositors up to 53 per cent.

A joint meeting of the city council and city school board will be held this week to discuss the project submitted to the council at its last meeting for the erection of a new high school building to cost approximately $325,000. It is proposed to erect the building on land already owned by the city between the present high school and the Jefferson school building.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Methodist Protestant Church has elected these officers to serve until June 30 next: Miss Manila Wells, president; Mrs. Milton Penn, first vice president; Thomas Simpson, second vice president; Miss Margaret Scrivener, recording and corresponding secretary; Norman Roberts, treasurer, and Evan Compher, Christian Endeavor World booster.

The society is plannign its work for the winter. On Christmas morning it will conduct an open-air song service in front of the church preceding the regular Christmas service.

C. C. Brown, member of the national committee on rehabilitation of the American Legion, will address the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon today in the George Mason Hotel, this being the club's observance of Armistice Day. F. Clinton Knight is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Robert G. Carter, president of the club, will occupy the head of the table.

Sidney Weil, commander of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion; and F. Clinton Knight, past commander of the local post and past State commander of the Legion, addressed the Rotary Club yesterday at its weekly luncheon, on the objects of the American Legion.

One of the features of the program was a mock trial of Rotarian Alfred Thomson on a charge brought by one of the members. The Rev. Pierce S. Ellis was the prosecuting attorney while Lawrence Roland was counsel for the defendant. The "jury" was composed of Jim Armstrong, Joe Everly Gray, Julian Chauncey and Blair McLeod.

Judge William S. Snow presided. The club singing was led by Everett Swan.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary O'Conner Mason, a former resident of this city, who died on Monday in Hyattsville, Md., will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from St. Mary's Catholic Church, this city, and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The newly organized Jewish Community Center will hold a meeting tonight at 8:45 o'clock, at 508 Wolfe street, with Louis Sidenberg presiding. The report on the constitution and by-laws will be given by Samuel Goldstein.

Champion Jailbird Back in Cell Again

Special to The Washington Post.

Webster Springs, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Sard Wier, reputedly West Virginia's champion jail termer, is back in a cell again, just twelve days after completing a two-year sentence in the Moundsville Penitentiary.

This time he got in for being drunk and disorderly and failing to pay a stiff fine and costs. Besides serving at Moundsville, Sard has been in the various jails of the State more than 40 times, on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to murder.

He was arrested in connection with the murder of George Hollighan Bennett, whose skeleton was found in an abandoned coal mine near here five years after his death, but was acquitted. Soon afterward, a grand jury here returned nine indictments against him on liquor charges. After eluding pursuit for some time, he finally was captured while asleep on top of a shed.

Except for No Foxes, Va. Hunt Is Success

Suffolk, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—For three days the Virginia Fox Hunters Association has held its annual trials here. State policemen have patroled the roads nearby, and today 70 huntsmen and 28 dogs beat the bushes, while 80 automobile loads of spectators looked on and cheered.

It has been a great meet, all have agreed, and everything has gone along fine, except that not a fox has been jumped yet.

CLUBWOMEN MEET TODAY IN BETHESDA

CHURCH SUPPER TONIGHT

The semiannual meeting of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs will be held today at the Bethesda Presbyterian Church, Wilson lane, Bethesda. The meeting will be begin at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, president of the Sixth District Federation, are expected to be the principal speakers. Mrs. J. Somervell Dawson, chairman of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross, will explain the annual roll call, and Miss Estelle Moore, who is in charge of the annual sale of Christmas seals for the prevention of tuberculosis, also will address the meeting.

Directors of the various constituent clubs will report on the work of their organizations in the last year.

The annual election meeting of the Bradley Hills Community League will be held November 28 at the Congressional Country Club. It was announced yesterday. Election of officers will be the principal business.

A nominating committee which includes Mrs. Lilly C. Stone, Albert G. Hahn, Albert Walker, Robert L. Saunders and Charles H. Merryman will propose a slate of officers and directors to serve in the coming year.

Col. A. B. Barber, president of the league and former president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation; Maj. Edward A. Keys, and James L. Richards have been named delegates to the civic federation. Albert Walker, Robert L. Saunders and George A. McGarvey have been named alternates.

A six-day preaching mission will be held beginning Sunday night at Christ Episcopal Church, Rockville. The services will begin at 8 o'clock each evening. The Very Rev. Daniel Wilmot Gateson, dean of the Pro-Cathedral of the Church of the Nativity, Bethehem, Pa., will conduct the mission.

Dean Gateson is a member of the executive council, Diocesan Board of Examining Chaplains, a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and of the Rotary Club. He is president of the Bethlehem Ministerial Association and chaplain of Lehigh University.

The mission is not a revival service, it is explained, and does not seek to draw members from other churches but to strengthen the spiritual life of those already in the Episcopal Church and to reach those who have no definite church affiliation.

The Woman's Improvement Club of Silver Spring will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the club rooms.

A tuberculosis clinic will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring under the auspices of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Leo Schneider will conduct the clinic.

An old-fashioned church supper will be served at Masonic Hall by the ladies of the Silver Spring Episcopal Mission this evening from 5 to 7 o'clock. Proceeds will be used in connection with the building fund of the new Church of the Ascension on Sligo avenue. Mrs. Fred Oden is chairman of the committee in charge.

Prof. W. R. Beattie, of the Department of Agriculture, will address the November meeting of the Bethesda Garden Club tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Battery Park Community House. He will talk on "Seasonable Operations in the Garden." Mrs. Leon M. Grant, president of the club, will preside. The meeting will conclude with a luncheon and social hour.

U. S. TOTAL $230,982,099

Richmond, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The 5-cent gasoline tax in Virginia during the first six months of this year amounted to $4,881,884.92, figures at the office of E. R. Combs, State comptroller show.

In the 48 States and the District of Columbia an average tax of 3.39 a gallon on 6,809,863,076 gallons of gasoline sold during the same period resulted in a net return of $230,600,455. Under the tax laws, certain special fees, amounting to $381,644, also were collected, making a total of $230,982,099.

Based on the number of gallons taxed throughout the country in the first six months of 1929 to that year's total, and on the figures for the first six months of 1930, the amount of gasoline likely to be taxed for the current year is estimated by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture at 15,406,000,000 gallons. Figuring the taxes on the same basis, and allowing for changes in tax rate, the bureau estimates the total for the calendar year at $515,000,000.

After deducting collection costs of $995,719 from the tax receipts for the first six months of 1930 the States distributed the remainder as follows: $157,390,770 for construction and maintenance of State roads and $44,-954,180 for construction and maintenance of county roads; $14,968,158 to apply on State and county road bonds; and $12,833,267 for miscellaneous purposes, such as town and city streets, public schools, seawall protection of roads, inland waterways under State departments of commerce and navigation, and oyster conservation.

The highest tax per gallon paid was 6 cents; and the lowest was 2 cents. The average tax of 3.39 cents a gallon was .17 cent more than the average of 3.22 for the calendar year 1929.

WORLD FRIENDSHIP OFFICERS ELECTED

TREATY DID NOT REDUCE

Dr. William P. Merrill, of New York, was yesterday reelected president of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches, as that organization closed its three-day goodwill congress here.

Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, New York; Clifford W. Barnes, Chicago; and Justice Florence E. Allen, Columbus, Ohio. Secretaries: General, Henry A. Atkinson, New York; extension, Linley V. Gordon, New York; field, Harry N. Holmes, New York; and, assistant, G. S. Barker, New York. Treasurer, William Ewing Speers, New York.

In closing its session, the alliance paused long enough to adopt a message suggesting that the people of the United States would "welcome restraint" in building up the Navy to the limit set by the London Treaty, and urging immediate entrance into the World Court, the early convening of the proposed disarmament conference, and the reconsideration of international issues likely to lead to misunderstandings. Among these latter were allied debts, immigration quotas, and reparations.

Both for "economic reasons and as an evidence of confidence in and good will toward the nations joining in the London treaty," the message declared that restraint in building up to treaty limits would be favorably received.

"It is one thing to prevent war," it continued, "it is a more difficult thing to create peace. In spite of all treaties made, there has been no actual reduction of armaments by any nation."

In an address delivered during the closing session, Fred B. Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the alliance, declared that the entire committee is in accord upon a program calling for American adherence to the World Court, further reduction of armaments upon land and sea, and the ratification of the Pan-American treaty for compulsory arbitration.

He also called attention to the value of education as a means toward world peace, and reminded his hearers of various methods of disseminating thought maintained by the alliance, including a speakers' bureau.

Matron, Plane Beginner, Is Forced Down by Fog

Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Marie Starr Claybourne, prominent society and noted sportswoman, of New York, who, though licensed to fly an aeroplane only since September 19, this year, essayed a flight to Chicago, as her first venture away from home, was forced down here last night by fog banks on the edge of a storm.

Mrs. Claybourne made a safe landing near Myerstown, 7 miles east of this city. Her plane was not damaged, and she took off again at 10 o'clock today after spending the night at a hotel. She expected to visit relatives in Indiana before her return.

Chicago & Alton Line To Be Sold in December

Chicago, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—A public auction sale of the Chicago & Alton Railroad and all its mortgaged property was set for December 11 at Wilmington, Ill., in an announcement today by Herbert A. Lundahl, special master for the Federal District Court.

The sale is in accordance with the final decree October 1, 1930, on the case of the Texas Co. and other mortgages vs. the railroad, and offers to the highest bidder the various rail lines owned by the Chicago & Alton, its leases on other lines, millions of dollars in securities, bills and accounts receivable, cash and other property.

Grand Jury Indicts Five In Kidnaping of Yocum

Cambridge, Ill., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Five men were indicted by the Henry County grand jury today for the kidnaping of Earl Yocum, Galva banker.

They were Harry and Orville Whiskers, Vernon Ahlgren, Lloyd Winslow and Frank Stocker. All are in jail except Orville Whiskers, for whom the authorities are searching.

Four others indicted as accessories to the crime, Rolland G. Schimel, Eugene Sterms, Earl Liggett and Charles Black, were also in jail.

Byrd Eager to Pay Expedition's Debt

Future Plans in Abeyance Until $110,000 Has Been Liquidated.

Chicago, Nov. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who addressed the Geographic Society of Chicago tonight, is confronted with the problem of liquidating the debts of his Antarctic expedition, which he considers serious, before undertaking any further exploring adventures.

"We must get out of debt before I can discuss my plans for the future," he said. "Almost every day I receive calls for help from some of the men who were with me and I can not turn them down. The hard times have dealt us a serious blow. At present, the Antarctic expedition is $110,000 in debt. The movie, 'With Byrd at the South Pole,' is not making anything to speak of; the returns are small, on the whole."

Admiral Byrd revealed that the scientific results of his expedition will be assimilated and published in four large volumes in about a year. A committee of twelve of the explorers, including himself, is engaged in compiling the data.

Service Medal Awarded To Capt. M. E. Higgins

Special to The Washington Post.

The distinguished service medal for unusual service while director of the medical department of the Haitian constabulary was awarded yesterday to Capt. Montgomery E. Higgins, Navy Medical Corps, of Boyd, Md., medical officer attached to the American delegation to the London Naval Conference.

Man Killed When Auto Collides With Truck

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Robert H. Lawrence, 30-year-old mechanic who lived in Bocock, Campbell County, was killed last night when his automobile was in collision with a truck loaded with apples en route from Bedford to Henderson, N. C. Herbert Hedgepeth, 21, of Oxford, N. C., who was driving the truck, was released under $300 bail for preliminary trial November 25 in Municipal Court.

The victim is survived by his father, J. J. Lawrence, of Clifton Forge, and several brothers and sisters.

Southern Baptist Head Voices Financial Fears

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of the Southern Baptist convention, today declared the convention faces a serious financial problem, due to decreasing income from its component parts.

Discussing what he termed "a tendency of the States to trench upon the Southern Baptist convention," in an address to the North Carolina State Baptist convention, Dr. McGlothlin said that within the last five years amounts received by the general body have fallen from 12 per cent to less than 6 per cent of the total contributed by members of the Church. Dr. McGlothlin is president of Furman University, Greenville, S. C.

Report Bares Drop In Virginia Crops

Total Output 67 Per Cent of Ten-Year Average, Service Shows.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The seriousness of drought damage in Virginia was reflected in a report today by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service that the combined yield of all State crops on November 1 was only 67 per cent of the ten-year average, the lowest estimate on record.

The report while showing greatly lessened yields observed that farmers in general were finding their crop production slightly in excess of earlier expectations.

During October, the report said, farmers were able to harvest their crops under favorable conditions, but on account of lack of moisture there was little opportunity to seed the fall crops. The commercial apple crop was estimated at 1,350,000 barrels, 330,000 less than the October 1 prediction and 1,750,000 below the 1929 crop.

Prison Cell Death To Be Investigated

Fellow Prisoner Confessed, Detroit Police Say, but Mayor Presses Quiz.

Detroit, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Although Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox announced he had obtained a confession from a fellow prisoner in the death of William T. Jones, in a cell of the Central Police Station, Mayor Frank Murphy said there would be a thorough investigation and "no whitewashing."

Commissioner Wilcox said that in the alleged confession Peter Wentala, 35 years old, former patrolman and now an iron worker, states that Jones was in an "ugly mood" when he was placed in the "golden rule" cell with Wentala and two other prisoners Monday night.

Wentala was quoted as saying that when Jones reiterated "I killed Jerry Buckley," Wentala knocked Jones down. Jones died of brain concussion. Police said the autopsy showed that the prisoner was suffering from cirrhosis of the liver, tuberculosis, heart disease and anemia.

Asylum Attendants Accused in Death

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Four attendants at the Northern Wisconsin State Colony and Training School for Mental Cases were arrested today charged with manslaughter in connection with the death Saturday of William Vande Hey, of Antigo. District Attorney Clarence E. Rinehard said the guards arrested were Storm Wilson, Walter O. Ulbrigt, Jesse Olmstad and Gerald Johnson.

Wilson said he had difficulty in administering medicine to Vande Hey and had been forced to call upon his coworkers for aid. District Attorney Rinehard said the men were arrested because of the tactics they used.

Du Pont Funeral Rites Are Set This Afternoon

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Arrangements were made today for the funeral at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow of T. Coleman du Pont, former United States senator, capitalist and philanthropist, who died yesterday at the age of 66.

Interment will be private. A throat infection, the ailment which caused his death, forced Mr. du Pont to resign from the Senate a year ago.

Mine Blast Laid To Open Lights

Inspector Believes Official Visiting Party Used Such Lamps.

Millfield, Ohio, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—A theory that a gas deposit in No. 6 mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Co. mine here was exploded by an open carbide light being used by the official inspection party was advanced at the opening of the inquest today into the deaths of 82 men.

Andrew Ginnan, deputy State mine inspector, said that on his first trip through the tunnel after the blast he found three open carbide lamps still burning beside the bodies of the nine members of the official party.

All the witnesses said they were certain that gas deposits had caused the explosion, but Ginnan was the only person to offer a theory on the cause of the gas igniting. Robert Marshall, assistant mine foreman, testified that it was his belief that the gas entered the tunnel through "bleeders" or crevices running into the tunnel from the coal veins.

MORE WATER MAINS FOR FAIRFAX SOUGHT

Committee to Confer With War Department Is Appointed.

DROUGHT HELD DANGER

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax; Capt. Thurlow White, of Baileys Cross Roads, and Merton E. Church, of Falls Church, were appointed a committee of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce to confer with the War Department in regard to extending the water mains into the metropolitan area of Fairfax County.

Water is now available at East Falls Church from the Arlington County mains, but the Fairfax County portion of the same town is without water supply. The committee was instructed to join a committee of the county board of supervisors in efforts to have the mains extended. It was stated at the monthly meeting, held at Annandale, that the present drought condition is both a fire and health menace. If permission of the War Department can be obtained, it is believed the work of extending the mains will commence immediately.

At the meeting the chamber petitioned the State Highway Department to grade a number of the hills on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike near Dranesville. The department replied that no funds were available for this, but that the road would be completely surfaced within a short time. The chamber was told that the right of way for this road was 50 feet and for the Little River turnpike, 60 feet.

George F. Harrison, of the chamber's highway committee, explained the movement now under way to have the name of the Lee-Jackson highway, U. S. Route 50, changed to the George Washington Memorial highway. He urged the chamber to cooperate in the movement to take this road one of the three main coast-to-coast highways.

Antisignboard Campaign Backed.

The chamber voted to indorse the campaign of the American Automobile Association for cooperation with various other civic organizations in a campaign for removal of the signboards along highways, especially where they mar scenic beauty. The secretary was instructed to write the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in regard to having a dangerous section of the Columbia pike, in Arlington, improved.

The question of having Hugh L. Kirby, of Arlington County, address the county chamber and other citizens in regard to plans of the proposed national park along the Potomac River, as provided in the Cramton bill, was discussed. It was decided to invite Mr. Kirby to attend the December meeting in the Annandale School at the junction of the Lee-Jackson and Columbia pikes. A general invitation will be extended to all citizens of the county to attend.

Forest Fire Raging.

A forest fire has been raging several days in a tract of land belonging to the George Washington Air Junction, near Groveton, on the Washington-Richmond highway, about 4 miles south of Alexandria, and approximately 600 acres of woodland has been burned over. A large number of valuable lumber trees have been damaged, and destruction of small game, such as rabbits and quail, is supposed.

Two fire-fighting units, under the direction of Forest Wardens John Bayliss and F. J. Wease, have endeavored to bring the flames under control, but as the dried vegetation is dense it has been found impossible to check the fire. They are confining endeavors at present to prevent the spread to adjoining lands. The tract which was burned over is known locally as the Big Swamp.

The Women's Club of the town of Falls Church will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon in the library on Washington street.

The Women's Guild and Ladies' Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church at Falls Church will hold a joint meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. L. Harrison, in East Falls Church.

The primary grades of the elementary school at Clifton will present an entertainment Friday evening, November 21, in the schoolhouse in order to raise money for buying instruments for the toy orchestra.

The Home Demonstration Club at Burke will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sallie Halley. The county home demonstration agent, Miss Sarah E. Thomas, will give a demonstration on the making of Christmas gifts and block printing.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Volunteer Fire Department at Fairfax will give a turkey dinner this evening from 5 to 8 o'clock in the basement of the Southern Methodist Church for the benefit of the firemen. Mrs. Elton R. Holbrook, Mrs. John Whalen and Mrs. Ruth Coyner are the members of the committee in charge.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Southern Methodist Church at Falls Church will hold an allday meeting today in observance of the week of prayer for missions at the home of Mrs. A. H. Barber, with Mrs. J. G. Smith as assistant hostess at lunch.

There will be a meeting of the Mount Vernon Circle of King's Daughters this afternoon at Groveton.

Members of the recently organized High School Glee Club at Clifton has elected Waneta Kidwell president, Janet Dinges, vice president; Hope Simpson, secretary-treasurer; Doris Pullerton, librarian, and Mrs. Robert Buckley, faculty advisor.

Taxpayers of Fairfax County living in the vicinity of McLean will have a chance to avoid a trip to Fairfax, as County Treasurer Dr. F. W. Huddleson, or his deputy, will be at the office of the Courtlands Ital Co. in McLean to collect this year's taxes.

The Parent-Teacher Association of McLean has extended an invitation to the women of the vicinity to join them each Thursday at the home of Mrs. I. B. Faidley until further notice, to help sew for the Fairfax County Welfare Unit. There they will make and repair garments for the poor of the county. The association has donated a sewing machine to the Welfare office at Fairfax.

Irene Much has been elected president of the Junior Community and School League of the Lee-Jackson School. Other officers elected at the last meeting include Virginia Saum, vice president; Betty Lynch, secretary; William Lewis, treasurer and Elizabeth Ballinger, reporter. The juniors plan to organize junior Red Cross.

A mass missionary meeting of the Episcopal churches of Fairfax and Arlington counties will be held this evening in St. Mary's church at Rixey. The program will be in charge of Rev. J. G. Sadtler, of McMcLean, and Rev. H. J. Miller, of Clarendon. The principal speakers of the evening will be the Rev. Herbert Donovan, of Zion Episcopal Church of Fairfax, who has recently returned from missionary work in Liberia and the Rev. Churchill Gibson, of St. James Church, in Richmond, Va.

The Kenmore Council, Daughters of America, will hold its meeting this evening in the schoolhouse at Andrew Chapel. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the presentation of a play by the council will announce those to take part.

ARLINGTON TO MOVE ON BOULEVARD COST

Clarendon Group Discusses Proposal for Taking Over by State.

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 809. Clarendon, Va.

With five miles of State highway for Arlington County still to be taken over by the State, the Clarendon Citizens Association, at its meeting held last night, considered proposing that the county board of supervisors ask that Wilson Boulevard be taken into the State highway system for maintenance. Without definite action, the matter was referred to the executive committee which will meet early next week with the county's representatives, who attended the conference held at Orange on Tuesday. As requested by the State Highway Commission, the county will file a brief on or before December 1 setting forth recommendations as to which road should be taken into the State highway system.

The following delegates and alternates were appointed by the president to the Arlington County Civic Federation for the coming year: Delegates—Walter U. Varney, L. C. McNemar, Herbert Smith and E. L. Bennett. Alternates—Mrs. Louis A. MacMahon, Mrs. L. C. McNemar, J. Thomas Manning, and Arthur J. Porter.

Mrs. McMahon was appointed to the membership committee with a view to creating more interest among the women of the community.

Hunting Starts Saturday.

William H. Duncan, county clerk, announces that as the hunting season for most small game will open on Saturday, his office at the courthouse will remain open tomorrow night until 9 o'clock for those unable to reach the office at 4:30 o'clock, the usual closing hour, to obtain their hunting licenses. There will be no open season on Hungarian partridges or ringneck, golden and silver pheasants. It will be unlawful to hunt turkeys until further action is taken by the State Game Commission. According to a ruling by the State Game Commission, shooting of ducks will not be permitted on Wednesdays and Tauradays during the season.

Woman Wins Damages.

A verdict for $135.43 was awarded Mrs. Anna C. Stannart in the damage suit against Samuel I. Barnett by Judge Walter T. McCarthy in the Circuit Court of Arlington County yesterday. The suit grew out of damages sustained by plaintiff in an automobile accident on the Lee highway in Park lane, Arlington County, January 9, 1929. Mrs. Stannart was represented by Attorney M. Bruce Green. Attorney Edgar W. Pumphrey represented defendant.

Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, held its November meeting last night in the Boy Scout Hall at Ballston. Meeting the degree team from the Alexandria Post at Clarendon, the local post, headed by the Drum and Bugle Corps, marched to the hall at Ballston, where more than 25 candidates received their degrees.

The local post is carrying on an extension of membership campaign, and the committee reports that the results thus far have exceeded expectations. It is hoped that by the end of the year the membership will be doubled.

The Mary Washington Chapter, No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold its November card party tomorrow night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John C. Whitehead, Rucker avenue, Lyon Village.

Partnership Suit.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy in the Circuit Court yesterday rendered a verdict for $194 in the suit for $500 brought against Harry N. Doughitt by Morris Bealle. The suit grew out of a claim by the plaintiff that $500 was due him fo rhis half interest in the sale of the Clarendon Chronicle in 1928 at the time his partnership with defendant was dissolved. State Senator Frank L. Ball appeared for defendant, while Bealle was represented by Attorney W. Thomas French.

Dairies Inspected.

Having completed a survey and inspection of all dairies in Arlington County, S. Smith, assistant director of the dairy and food division of the State Health Department, and Fred Driver, State inspector, will meet today in the office of County Health Officer Dr. P. M. Chichester and Norbert Milnick, county sanitary officer, for a conference. The meeting is to determine the grades of pasteurized milk sold in Arlington County.

Clouds of smoke rose near the Clarendon firehouse yesterday afternoon and crowds rushed to the building to find that a barrel of oil was on fire in the street. The firemen stood by.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse at 12 o'clock, with A. B. Honts presiding.

The November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Patrick Henry School will be held in the school auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Coakley, delegate to the recent State convention held at Lynchburg, will make her report.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Matthew Fontaine Maury School at Clarendon will hold its monthly card party tomorrow night in the Rucker Building at Clarendon.

Tonight at 8 o'clock there will be a rally meeting of the Episcopal Churches of Arlington and Fairfax Counties in St. Mary's Episcopal Church at Rixey Station, Glebe road, north of Lee highway.

The Rev. A. H. Donovan, former missionary to Liberia, and Oliver J. Sands, of Richmond, Va., are announced as the speakers.

The candidates group of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at the parish hall at 4 o'clock.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BEWARE MADISON SQUARE.

Self-appointed spokesmen of the Democratic party are apt to overdo themselves in their solicitude for the welfare of the Republican party. They are not only offering their cooperation in supporting the President in all matters that meet with their approval—that is, in all matters that will bring advantage to the Democratic party—but they are deeply concerned lest the Republican party should make a mistake on the prohibition question.

Just before the election the Louisville Courier-Journal repeatedly warned its readers that John J. Raskob had no authority to define the issues or lay down the policy of the Democratic party. The Courier-Journal insisted that only the Democratic party itself could decide its policy, and that the national chairman had no more voice in the decision than any other Democrat. The same observations might be applied to the Republican party and its national chairman, Senator Fess. The opinions of Mr. Raskob and Senator Fess may be highly interesting, but they are not binding upon any individual Democrats or Republicans, to say nothing of the parties themselves.

Why should Democratic spokesmen worry so much over the Republican attitude toward the eighteenth amendment, when they have such troubles of their own? If they are real leaders they will get busy and try to find a method of reconciling the elements in their own party in order to avoid a breakdown in the next national convention similar to the fiasco of Madison Square Garden in 1924. They are up against a harder problem than that which confronts the wet and dry factions of the Republican party. The next Republican national convention can nominate a candidate by a bare majority, but the Democratic convention is bound by the two-thirds rule. The Democratic wets are riding merrily on the strength of the gains on November 4, but it behooves them to study the situation and ask themselves if they will command a two-thirds vote in the next convention. Is the dry South ready to accept a wet candidate for President? Its revolt in 1928 ought to be worth considering by the Democrats who are wasting their time in volunteering advice to Republicans.

Perhaps the Democratic spokesmen hope to adopt a dry plank, to satisfy the Southern drys, and then nominate a wet candidate, to satisfy the Northern wets. They can adopt a dry plank by a majority vote.

One of the most generous Democratic advisers of the Republican party, the New York World, suggests that President Hoover may solve his problems by becoming a wet without saying so; that is, it outlines for him a delightfully naive scheme of duplicity, by which it seems to think he could succeed in fooling both the drys and the wets. Why doesn't the World devote a little of its anxious thought to the Democratic problem? "Why not speak for yourself, John?" Does the World favor the idea of a dry plank and a wet candidate as the ideal solution of Democratic difficulties in the next national convention? Or does it favor the idea of riding roughshod over the South?

It is all very well to worry over the Republican party, but Democratic spokesmen in their fresh conversion to the task of helping the Republican party should not bankrupt themselves and leave their own party destitute of valuable suggestions.

VOTING AGAINST THEMSELVES.

A combination of Democratic votes with a small contingent of Government-ownership Republicans succeeded in defeating Representative B. Carroll Reece in the First Tennessee District on November 4. The district is strongly Republican, but snow and bad weather kept at least 19,000 Republicans in their mountain homes and away from the polls, while Democrats in the towns made a disproportionate showing of strength. The outcome does not reflect the true political situation of the district, and unless the Reece bill relating to Muscle Shoals should be enacted during the forthcoming short session of Congress the First Tennessee District will have occasion to repent its action of November 4.

Under the Reece bill, Muscle Shoals would be operated by private enterprise under Government contract and strict regulation. If the bill had been enacted at the last session there would now be at least 1,000 workers employed at the plant and in construction of Cove Creek Dam, to say nothing of the stimulus to business throughout the Tennessee Valley resulting from assured development of the electro-chemical industry. Enactment of the bill this winter would go very far toward relieving the unemployment situation in that region.

The Norris plan for putting the Government into the power business at Muscle Shoals can not pass, because it can not override the President's veto. Consequently, unless the Reece bill is enacted, the Tennessee Valley may expect to experience hard times instead of early activity at Muscle Shoals and Cove Creek.

Rarely have the people of a congressional district voted so emphatically against themselves as in the election of November 4. To the extent of their ability they grasped at the phantom of Government ownership and dropped the real benefit of Muscle Shoals development. But Mr. Reece is still in Congress, and presumably he will fight for the enactment of the bill that bears his name, and which is supported by the House committee and the President. The First Tennessee District may be helped in spite of its stupid vote of November 4.

WELCOME TO DR. MALBRAN.

It is with a feeling of deep satisfaction that the United States again welcomes Dr. Manuel E. Malbran, Ambassador of Argentina. Since Ambassador Malbran resigned his post at Washington in November, 1928, as a protest against the discourtesy of President Irigoyen to President-elect Hoover Argentina has had no ambassador in this country. Ambassador Bliss continued to represent the United States at Buenos Aires, but the Irigoyen government was aloof to the point of unfriendliness.

The arrival of Dr. Malbran in the United States marks the return of Argentina to the family circle of American nations. Under the previous regime Argentina had no part in Pan-American conferences or other international gatherings looking toward the development of trade and friendly relations. Dr. Malbran gives assurance that the policy of the new government is designed to cultivate "cordial and close friendship with all the countries of the world and sincere fraternity with the countries of America." Henceforth, he says, Argentina will be represented in all conferences and international congresses to which it may be invited.

Argentina is the United States' best customer in South America. Only five other foreign nations consume more products from this country. On the other hand, the United States is an important outlet for many of Argentina's foremost products. As the industrial evolution of the Western Hemisphere progresses trade between the two nations is certain to increase. Reestablishment of cordial relations will be a boon to the trade of both countries.

Argentina encountered economic difficulties even before the world-wide depression set in. The prosperity of the country is affected by an unfavorable trade balance. Of course this could not be corrected by straining the ties of international friendship, as President Irigoyen did. The new government under President Uriburu seems to have been stabilized. It is abiding by the constitution, while sponsoring a movement to reorganize political parties and establish the will of the people. Apparently it will be only a matter of time until Argentina will again be in step with the most progressive nations of the New World.

BRITAIN FACES INDIA.

The India round table conference in London got under way with expressions of high hope for which there is little chance of realization. King George voiced his desire for an Indian government that "will give expression to her honorable aspirations," and the other speakers were equally optimistic. Underneath these platitudes is a welter of complicated situations that tells the real story of the hopelessness over the conference.

Eighty-six delegates are in attendance, including fifteen ministers and members of Parliament as well as representatives of the Indian states and of the political elements in British India. Only one element is missing. The Swarajists, the Nationalist faction popularly epitomized in the person of Mahatma Gandhi, have refused to be a party to the round table discussions.

It was believed at one time that the basis for the discussions would be the report prepared by Sir John Simon and a commission of experts following an exhaustive inquiry into conditions in India. It now appears, however, that other plans will be presented for consideration. Sir John Simon recommended that an Indian federation be created in which a greater degree of autonomy would be granted, but with his majesty's government continuing to exercise final authority with respect to military problems and foreign relations. Prime Minister MacDonald, however, in a speech delivered at the lord mayor's dinner, in touching upon the round table conference, said: "With the Indian representatives we shall be engaged in the task of broadening liberty so that India, under the crown, may enjoy the freedom and self-government which is necessary for self-respect and contentment." In some quarters these words of the prime minister are interpreted to mean that the government is prepared to offer India dominion status or, at least, a much greater degree of autonomy than is now the case. If this be so, it may be regarded as a concession to the Indian princes who have let it be known that they will demand even greater independence than would be allowed under the dominion status.

The Simon report proved incontrovertibly that India is not prepared for independence, nor, for that matter, to assume at this time the responsibilities of dominion status. If MacDonald and the Labor government appear to be ready to make concessions when the conference actually gets down to business that are likely to lead to setting India off on her own, the English people will be heard from. And yet the native princes are in no humor to proceed with the conference if no promise is offered of greater autonomy. The Swarajist movement has been minimized by Britain, but the princes know well the temper of the people of India, and they will not jeopardize their positions by temporizing with the Labor government. The seriousness with which the Indian delegates view the conference is evident from the fact that for the first time in history the Moslems and the Hindus have composed their traditional differences and stand ready to present a united front in support of their demands. The significance of this fact can not be overestimated.

Gandhi sits in his cell in Poona, seemingly aloof and uninterested in the London conference. That he has his ear to the ground, however, waiting word of progress made, may not be doubted. If the conference breaks down without accomplishment, the Swarajist movement will be given great impetus. The Labor government will fight to prevent a breakdown, but in view of the complications involved in liberalizing the government of India it seems inevitable that the best that the Labor government can hope for is a deadlock.

DEBENTURE REAPPEARS

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Senator Borah has not given up his fight for adoption of the export debenture plan for agricultural relief, despite two defeats in Congress and Mr. Hoover's bitter opposition to it. He says the plan will be reintroduced in the coming short session, and, if unsuccessful there, in the new Congress which has just been elected.

The export debenture plan is a device which, in theory, makes the tariff effective as to agricultural products. Under it, farmers exporting their produce would receive debenture certificates whose face value would be equal to one-half of the amount of the tariff on the produce exported. These certificates would be accepted by the Government at their face value in payment of tariff duties on goods imported from abroad. For example, the tariff on wheat is 42 cents a bushel. The farmer who exported 100 bushels of wheat would receive 100 debenture certificates of the face value of 21 cents each, or a total of $21. These certificates would be accepted by the Government as the equivalent of $21 cash in the payment of tariff duties on goods imported. Since few farmers import goods themselves, they would sell the certificates to persons engaged in importing goods. The presumption is that the farmers would have to sell to the importers at a discount. While the money represented by the debenture certificates would not actually be paid out of the Government Treasury, the effect would be exactly the same, because it would be paid out of money intercepted on its way to the Treasury.

The debenture idea first made its appearance in the farm relief bill as reported to the Senate by its committee on agriculture on April 3, 1929. That bill gave the projected Farm Board discretionary power to utilize it. The House voted down the debenture of the farm relief bill June 13, 1929, by a vote of 250 to 113. Debenture advocates explain this overwhelming defeat as due partly to the lower house's resentment at what it deemed the Senate's usurpation of the right to initiate financial legislation, and partly to the belief that Mr. Hoover would veto the bill if it contained a debenture plan. On October 19, 1929, the Senate inserted the debenture plan in the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. On May 3, 1930, the House again refused to concur, by a vote of 231 to 161, and a few days later the Senate eliminated the plan from the tariff bill.

Most of the strength of the debenture, both in House and Senate, came from the Democrats. Of the 43 votes against it in the Senate, only 6 were Democratic. Of the 161 votes for it in the House, 112 were cast by Democrats. Thus, advocates of the debenture believe that the increase in Democratic strength in both houses as a result of the election will make it possible to pass the plan. However, it is practically certain that Mr. Hoover will veto it, so that to put it into effect the debenturites would have to muster a two-thirds vote in both houses. Whether this can be done remains problematical.

Regardless of the merits of the export debenture plan, its vitality is due in large part to the widespread dissatisfaction with Mr. Hoover's farm relief program and the methods of his Federal Farm Board. The great promise of farm relief made in the 1928 campaign has not been fulfilled. In fact, with wheat selling below a dollar, for the first time in many years, and other agricultural products correspondingly depressed, agriculture is worse off than it was in 1928. The Federal Farm Board's effort to peg wheat prices by purchasing huge quantities at around $1.20 was a lamentable failure and an effort to transcend primary economic laws. The campaign to induce farmers to reduce their acreage has, we believe, little chance of success. Whether the cooperative movement fostered by the Farm Board will take hold it is as yet too early to say.

We do not mean to blame Mr. Hoover for not working miracles in connection with farm relief. Assuredly, the farm problem is a monumental one. But his failure to make progress leaves an opening for the debenturites to say, "Your plan has been unsuccessful, now let us try ours."

THE PRICE OF LOVELINESS.

She put her prettiest raiment on
And ventured down the street.
Her charms were good to look upon,
Her ankles trim and neat.
She was a lovely sight to see,
So beautiful and fair
And radiant with youth was she
That all men turned to stare.

Policemen eyed her up and down
As she went tripping by.
The ugliest loafer in the town
Upon her cast his eye.
Some leered, some winked, the boldest said
Words audible in praise,
Where'er she went it was to tread
Where bold men stood to gaze.

She minded not the well-dressed few
Whom she was pleased to please,
But stared at by the motley crew
She could not be at ease.
'Twas difficult to keep her poise
Where all men's glances fall,
Nor could she see why butcher boys
Should look at her at all.

"My dear," said I, "a pretty maid
Can never pick and choose.
When loveliness is on parade
No glance can it refuse.
Since beauty's charms alike affect
The tramp and millionaire,
A girl so radiant must expect
All men to stop and stare."

Metals Must Be Welded Together by Heat, Not Stuck Together With Paste.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOCIOLOGISTS, psychologists, philosophers and cynics do their utmost to explain and discover a cure for the ever-growing divorce evil, but they succeed only in making the problem seem more complex because they overlook the simple and fundamental truth that the mating of two human beings is something more than a civil contract or the sex union of cattle.

Almost every adult person has had some experience to teach him that people required to associate too long and too intimately grow tired of one another. Unless they are by chance congenial, only necessity or a sense of duty or the hope of profit enables them to tolerate one another and avoid a quarrel.

Two friends aloft for weeks in a plane or storm-bound in a cabin or otherwise held in unbroken intimacy quickly discover in one another unbearable faults.

It is man's nature to herd with his kind, but it isn't his nature to associate long and intimately with one individual unless their spirits are united by some bond that makes them one.

That bond is the quality called love—and though the scoffers scoff and the cynics sneer until the crack of doom, it is the only bond that can make life-long intimacy supportable, and marriage without it is like an effort to fuse two metals without heat.

Because Nature designed people to mate in youth, it is in youth that love develops easily. Youth is a time of unmixed motives, of sincerity, of faith—a time when taste is easily pleased and judgments are generous—and thus youth is capable of the blindness essential to love.

Boys form friendships with boys and girls with girls that endure through life. Want of bitter experience makes them easily pleased, and the friendship that begins in tolerance and lack of discrimination becomes a habit Time cannot destroy.

The old do not make friends easily, and except in the rarest of instances they are incapable of new love.

Youth loves easily, and the object of its adoration is faultless. Love sees no imperfections. Lovers ask no more of life than the joy of being together. And those who truly love are held together by a bond that grows stronger with the years.

Divorce! Wild horses couldn't pull them apart.

Marriages fail because people marry without love—for money, or ease, or social advantage, or experiment—or alimony.

There will be no divorce evil when the world learns to scorn those who make a mockery of marriage by mating without the benediction of love.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Bargaining in Congress.

Indianapolis News.

That there will be strong temptation to bargain with the so-called progressives in Congress for their support is clear enough. Senator Brookhart was quoted as saying that he would, for voting purposes, count himself a Democrat, if the Democrats will go after "Mellonism," and afterward that he lacked confidence in the Democrats. Just what Mellonism is we do not know, and Senator Brookhart has yet to inform the country. There will be other programs put forward by the progressives for which support will be asked from the two old parties, a support which ought to be yielded only if those programs are meritorious, and never in return for votes.

The two major parties, we think, should adopt their own policies, and support them as their own, as supposed to be in accordance with their principles.

Democratic "Cooperation."

New York World.

In a thoroughly hard-boiled calculation the ideal policy for the Democrats would be one which left the Republicans with all the responsibility for the depression while it lasts and gave the Democrats all the credit for the recovery when it comes. When will the recovery come? Nobody knows, but few expect it to come between December and March of this winter during the short session of the old Congress. Now in this Congress the Republicans have real control of the House and nominal control of the Senate. The obvious policy for the Democrats, therefore, is to keep the country aware of the fact that this is a Republican Congress and to avoid any appearance of obstructing the Republicans in seeking to meet the immediate distress of the existing hard times. The plainest common sense requires that the Democrats should do everything to expedite the supply bills and, except in very clear cases, to confirm the President's appointments. Thus far cooperation is good public policy and good partisan politics.

That does not mean that the Democrats have any interest in or duty to sit dumbly by and do nothing. They will be quite justified in proposing their own measures for the relief of unemployment and in seeking to obtain the credit which they can earn. They will be wise to press their own program, but not to press it to a point where it obstructs Congress and threatens to make necessary a special session. For a special session concurrently with a continuing depression would be a Democratic disaster. It would transfer the whole onus to the Democrats. Indeed, so great is the danger that the Democrats should be vigilant against a Republican maneuver to provoke them into the position of forcing a special session.

One Job at a Time.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.

In announcing immediately after the election that he had no thought at this time of his prospects to become the 1932 nominee of the Democratic party for the Presidency, Franklin D. Roosevelt revealed his usual good sense. His immediate job is that of Governor of New York.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Washington Should Follow Other Cities in Providing Money for Desperate Unemployment Cases.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In addition to the efforts of citizens' committees dealing with the unemployment situation in the District of Columbia there is something the Government itself ought to do in a practical way.

Finding work for the unemployed is the best thing that can be done. But where this can not be accomplished, practical relief must be furnished in the form of cash, as is being done by a number of communities, particularly Detroit and Boston.

In Detroit, where the community chest collects some $3,500,000, the city itself spent nearly $5,000,000 for the relief of needy families. A citizens' committee is planning to supplement that large sum.

The City Council of Boston has included $1,000,000 in its 1931 budget for the relief of families of the unemployed.

These are two outstanding examples of what is being done by municipalities. Since we have no municipal government here it would be most desirable for the Federal Government to allocate out of its funds at least $100,000 for the relief of families of unemployed men in the District of Columbia. This would help in a measure to at least carry the financial burden of unemployment and would prevent breakdowns in health and spirit in numerous instances.

OSCAR LEONARD.

"Noble Experiment" of Prohibiting Slave Trade Finally Successful. Wets "Shall Not Pass."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Newspapers recently recorded the raising of the slave ship, Vigilant, which was operated under the Danish flag until slavery was abolished in Virgin Islands in 1848. Both before and after that date it was engaged in the slave trade, landing slaves illegally in United States territory, Cuba, Porto Rico and Brazil.

Importation of slaves was prohibited January 1, 1808. But then, as now, there were law defiers. Three years later President Madison called upon the Nation to suppress the illicit traffic. Ten years later President Monroe asked Congress to strengthen the enforcement laws against the illegal traffic. Twenty-three years later, in the time of Andrew Jackson, slaves were being smuggled as many as 200,000 a year. In 1861, in his first inaugural address, President Lincoln referred to "the foreign slave trade now imperfectly suppressed." And in 1871 Congress passed another act against the slave trade.

Prohibition of the slave traffic was a noble experiment, and our sires did not surrender to persistent lawlessness. The same unswerving devotion to prohibition of the liquor traffic is called for today. Law defiers are determined to make it fail; but "they shall not pass." H. H. CULVER.

Collins, N. Y.

Old Soldier Draws Parallel Between Slavery Controversy and Anti-Prohibition Agitation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Tumulty raps bloody trail of prohibition; says 300 crusaders are on the warpath; the country is about to experience a revolt that will restore its liberties taken away from it; we have always had liquor and always will," &c. The above is quoted as a sample of what some people actually believe.

But in The Post of November 7 an editorial shows much more intelligence in regard to the situation when it says "the road to wetness is a long, long road."

To a man who has lived to see the beginning and the end of the slavery controversy in this country the present political situation presents a much more ominous aspect than the young bloods seem to comprehend. Such language as was used prior to the conflict, "The Union is not worth a rush without a little blood-letting," still lingers in the memory of old soldiers and people and should be a warning that moderation and obedience to law is at all times desirable, and especially from now on.

H. S. PALMER.

Valued Reader's Comments on Sundry Local Matters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I commend the excellent editorial "Herbert Campbell's Case" in your issue of November 3. It is, however, not indignant enough. What of the other four who were suspected before Campbell? An expensive game of hide and seek—expensive to the taxpayer and disastrous to those accused, even though acquitted.

Your article on the Klan in last Sunday's issue informs the world of its well-merited dwindling, almost extinction. Many, no doubt, who, like myself, were unaware of this, at least of its extent, will be pleased with the news.

In your issue of November 1 there was an item on page 24 about a 69-year-old man and a 16-year-old girl who came to Washington from Virginia to get married. Police action in this case, if your item was correct, might well have inspired newspaper comment, at any rate investigation.

The Post of October 28, page 14, had an item "Curb in Collection of Mail Protested." Can you not add your protest against the new high-handed 8 o'clock last collection of mail in Washington? J. C. R.

ELECTION QUESTIONS STATED BY HEFLIN

List Given by Senator Indicates Grounds for Probable Contest by Him.

CONFERRED WITH NYE

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Senator J. Thomas Heflin today issued a statement in which he listed numerous questions which, he said, were involved in his request for investigation of the election in Alabama November 4. Senator Heflin returned here today from Washington, where he was in conference with Senator Nye, chairman of the senatorial investigating committee.

The questions outlined by Senator Heflin, defeated for reelection by John H. Bankhead, Democratic nominee, follow:

"Was the senatorial election, held in Alabama November 4, a clean and fair election, free from fraud and corruption? Were the qualified voters of Alabama permitted to have a full and free expression of their choices of candidates for United States senator? Were any Alabama voters interfered with, coerced or intimidated in said election?

"How many ballots were cast by people whose 'poll taxes' were paid by 'interested parties' since February this year, in violation of the law? How many illegal absentee ballots were cast and counted? How many mixed tickets or ballots cast for myself, Locke and Powell, and candidates for county offices not on our ticket, were laid aside by managers and never counted? How many voters were influenced by the unlawful and corrupt use of money?

"Were we allowed managers and watchers at every box in every precinct in the State, as the law requires, and were they permitted to 'see' and 'note' the calling off and recording of the ballots in the final count? Do the returns in the senatorial election November 4 sent in by the managers correspond with the number of votes actually cast for United States senator November 4 in Alabama?"

Senator Heflin's statement said he felt he owed it to himself and "to the patriotic people of Alabama" to have the senatorial election on November 4 inquired into, "in view of the tactics employed to keep me out of the primary and of threats made many times during the campaign preceding the election November 4 that I would be counted out if elected."

Senator Heflin, running as an independent after being regular as a candidate in the Democratic primary, was defeated by the regular Democratic nominee by a majority of more than 30,000 votes.

BOMBAY WAR COUNCIL HELD, 25 INJURED IN INDIAN RIOTS

ment. But they were not such low ones.

King George, with that royal dignity which is always displayed on state occasions, very deliberately turned to all sides and looked over the silent throng, then took out his glasses and put them on as Lord Stamfordham handed him his speech, which he began reading and read well, as he always does, just as Big Ben in the tower above struck the first stroke of the appointed hour.

Addresses Half of World.

The king-emperor, addressing half the world through a silver microphone, used phrases of unusual warmth and feeling and there was a murmur of hastily suppressed applause as he said:

"I have always in mind the just claims of my majorities and minorities, of men and women, of town dwellers and tillers of the soil, of landlords and tenants, of the strong and the weak, the rich and the poor of all races, castes and creeds."

In silence the king walked out, bared heads and turbans bowing on each side as he walked down the long lane.

Then the Maharajah of Patiala, looking like a fierce medieval mogul emperor, with his great head and turned-up black mustache, proposed Prime Minister James Ramsay MacDonald as chairman, and the Agha Khan, romantic pope of the Mohammedan sect, whose followers use his bath water as holy water but who looks like a prosperous, though dusky, Western business man, seconded the proposal and the prime minister in grave tones warned the conference of difficulties ahead and begged for patience and good will in the "immense task."

"Mr. A" Expresses Loyalty.

In speeches which followed the Maharajah of Jammu and Kasmir, whose appearance in the law courts here as "Mr. A" in a sensational scandal of a few years ago is now politely never mentioned, expressed loyalty to the crown which saved him his throne on that occasion, and the Gaekwar of Baroda, in a red hat looking like something out of a Christmas cracker, but whose flashing stone was probably worth a million times more than the 10 cents it looked like, enlivened the conference when he was unable to separate his notes and had to finish reading his speech from an advance press copy supplied to him by the Adonis of the conference, the handsome sheik-like Maharajah of Alwar, who wore a faint violet brocade striped cloth of gold and a great diamond sun in his green biretta.

Then came the first notes of challenge. Sprinivasa Sastri, representing the Hindus, called for fulfilment of dominion status pledges, which he read, and several of the great ruling chiefs softly rapped the table in applause. Then, for the Moslems, Mohammed Ali Jinnah declared the promise of dominion status was implicit in government declarations.

"India Expects Action."

"I must emphasize that India now expects translation and fulfilment of those declarations into action. There was never a more momentous or graver issue in the history of our two nations," he declared.

The great assembly then quietly broke up, the untouchables of the pariah caste, whose very shadow defiles a Hindu if it touches him, slunk out from their seats among the Dominion premiers and British statesmen, far from their fellow Indians.

Meanwhile brief cables were coming over the wires telling of closed shops and a day of mourning observed by Hindus in Indian cities, Ghandi's millions of adherents, but these were discreetly placed in inconspicuous corners by the newspapers which emblazoned the splendors of the royal opening of the conference.

Nevertheless, as everybody in authority here knows, success or failure depends upon how these millions take decisions or proposals made here, and the political lives of most of the delegates now in London, and possibly of half a dozen thrones as well, hang on the answer.

Prominent Venetian Weds California Girl

Florence, Italy, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Miss Jane H. Vail, of Santa Barbara, Calif., was married today to Giuseppe San Martini in the Catholic Church at Miano, near Fiesole.

She is the daughter of Edward Fitzrandolph Vail and Mrs. Theodora Edwards Vail, who have been living in Florence for ten years. Mr. San Martini comes from an old and prominent Venetian family.

Karachi Ceases Work In Protest on Parley

Karachi, India, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—This city today observed a partial hartal, or day of mourning, which involved cessation of work, in protest against the opening of the Indian Round Table Conference in London.

All Hindu shops and markets were closed, but Moslem and European traders were not affected.

King of Belgians Takes Action in Cabinet Crisis

Brussels, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—King Albert today received the speakers and party leaders of both houses of Parliament for consultations looking toward a solution of the cabinet crisis which came to a head yesterday with the resignation of the entire ministry over the troublesome language issue.

The Catholic press has laid the blame upon the cabinet for yielding to the injunctions of the local federation on a purely administrative matter. The cabinet split on the issue of the use of the Flemish language, which is spoken in the northern part of Belgium, in the higher departments of the schools, where French is the approved language.

British and American Banking Heads Confer

London, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, today conferred with Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, but despite his assertion that they discussed only matters of pure routine, British financial writers attached considerable importance to their meeting.

They considered it likely that the two financiers may have discussed the problem of war reparations and the possibility of a moratorium. They regarded the presence here of Owen D. Young, author of the Young plan, as giving support to their deductions. Mr. Young, it was pointed out, has visited Ambassador Dawes almost daily since he came here.

NEWS NAME DRAWN INTO POSTAL INQUIRY

Lessor Said He Could Obtain Any Lease He Wanted, Senators Hear.

LETTERS ENTER RECORD

Chicago, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The name of Harry S. New, Postmaster General during the Harding administration, today was drawn into the Senate investigation of alleged irregularities in the awarding of postoffice leases.

R. D. Brown, Indianapolis, contractor, who was awarded the lease on Roosevelt postoffice in Detroit in 1923, was quoted in one letter read into the record as having told that he attended school with the Postmaster General and as having stated "I can get any lease I want."

The letter was to Jacob Kulp, Chicago contractor, who bid against Brown for the Detroit lease, from E. N. Munro, Kulp's Detroit agent. Munro wrote that the statement was made during the course of a conversation between he and Brown concerning the bids. Kulp produced figures showing that the highest of his bids for three Detroit sites under consideration in 1923 was for $66,500 annual rental while Brown's lowest bid was $69,640 annual rental.

Nevertheless, Brown received the contract. Senator John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, who heads the committee taking evidence, said Brown would probably be summoned to Washington to testify at the conclusion of the Chicago hearings.

Herbert and Hayden Aid.

The Wisconsin senator is being assisted in the hearing by Senators Herbert, of Rhode Island, and Hayden, of Arizona.

The inquiry was opened after charges were made that the Government was paying exhorbitant rates for leasing postoffice property. Only a few postoffice buildings are owned by the Government, the others being leased by private owners who, in most instances, have erected the buildings according to Government specifications.

Kulp, who is also president of the Jacob Kulp & Co., LaSalle street investment house, admitted on the stand that he had financed fourteen of 72 postal substations in Chicago, and is interested in 27 buildings leased by the Government at an annual rental of $933,852.50. A triangular correspondence between Kulp, Brown and Munro regarding the postal station in Detroit, was introduced.

"Seems to Have Inside Track."

Munro was quoted as having written Kulp:

"I have seen a picture of Brown with New and Work (Dr. Hubert Work, former Postmaster General), and he seems to have the inside track."

On May 24, it was read into the record, Brown wrote Kulp:

"I have had a conference with Munro * * * and am of the opinion that the Detroit situation can be worked out to our mutual interests and brought to a head without much further delay."

Kulp testified he did not believe Brown's influence was essential. He said he submitted three bids on different properties for the Detroit postoffice.

Will Deal With 400 Leases.

Then, according to the evidence, Munro wrote to Kulp as follows:

"It seems a crime to let Brown get away with such rough stuff. Several question might be asked that would be hard to answer. Suppose you were to tell the newspapers what is going on?"

Senator Blain said the committee's investigation would deal with 400 leases in the United States, the rentals amounting to more than $2,000,000 a year, adding: "There is a tremendous waste in this postal rental system. It is an unbusinesslike procedure. Fraud is not easy to prove. Excessive rentals imply lack of diligence by Federal agents which might indicate possibility of fraud or of culpable negligence."

Prof. Einstein to Visit California for Study

Berlin, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Prof. Albert Einstein, world famous scientist, will sail for the United States November 30 on the steamship Belgenland.

The Jewish telegraphic agency says that Prof. Einstein will proceed to California on the same boat, which stops at New York. He plans a three months' stay in California to devote himself exclusively to scientific research at the California Institute of Technology. He also plans to make some observations at Mount Wilson Observatory.

ADVERTISERS CLOSE CAPITAL CONVENTION

Five-Day Work Week Urged by Speaker Who Forecasts Slump's End in Year.

SESSION HELD SUCCESS

A five-day working week was advocated by Paul M. Mazur, authority on economics, in an address yesterday before the closing session of the Association of National Advertisers at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. Mazur said that "idle time is buying time." With the five-day week in operation, he pointed out, the worker would have two days for consumption purposes.

If the five-day week is adopted, he argued, resultant greater consumption would bring about greater production, and with it would come higher standards of living.

Mr. Mazur discussed the present depression in terms of its causes. He believes that the major cause of the depression is that business men heeded the false philosophy of mass production. Within a year, he believes, the depression will be over, pointing out that consumption figures have shown no marked increase since the middle of 1928.

Mr. Mazur is associated with Lehman Bros., of New York.

Other speakers were Joseph P. Day, president of the Joseph P. Day, Inc., of New York City, and Ivy Lee, president of the Ivy Lee & Associates, of New York City. Both of them dealt with publicity and advertising projects.

Emanuel J. Well, of the Van Raalte Co., gave a report of the resolutions committee. Bennett Chapple, of the American Rolling Mills Co., gave a summary of the annual meeting, which he described as the most successful in the organization's history.

Many communications were received by the association congratulating it upon the success of its program and the stabilizing effect it had upon national business.

The representatives were guests at the Department of Commerce yesterday afternoon.

ELEPHANT BONES DUG UP IN OREGON

Scientist Believes Relics Are 20,000 Years Old; Roamed in Ice Age.

ONCE OVERRAN COUNTRY

Special to The Washington Post.

Salem, Oreg., Nov. 12.—Remains of what is supposed to have been an elephas prima genus, commonly known as the mammoth and in this country called the American elephant, were unearthed on the farm of F. E. Postal, 5 miles east of Lebanon, recently by a party of Willamette University professors and students.

The remains, consisting of a tooth weighing 4½ pounds and measuring 7 inches across the longest portion of the crown; several pieces of tusk and a piece of leg bone, are to be coated with an airtight transparent substance to prevent further decay and will eventually rest in the university museum with other such specimens from various parts of the world.

Spent Day Excavating.

A party of seventeen, led by Prof. Herman Clark, head of the geology department; Prof. Cecil R. Monk, professor of zoology, and Dr. S. B. Laughlin, head of the departments of economics and sociology, spent an entire day excavating in a bed of clay for the pieces.

In a basin high in the hills a spring flows out of the solid rock through a bed of blue clay. Here fifteen years ago the owners of the farm dug out the spring and sunk wooden walls to the rock so that the water might be kept free from clay. At that time a large tooth and pieces of bone were taken from the clay.

Tooth Leads to Search.

A few weeks ago Mark Wald, who was graduated from Willamette last summer, heard of this tooth, which is still owned by a resident of Lebanon. This led to the search which resulted in finding the remains of the great old elephant.

Prof. Clark has estimated that the animal was killed near the spring probably more than 20,000 years ago by other prehistoric animals, or possibly by Paleolithic man, who is also supposed to have inhabited North America at that time.

The tooth is a "lifetime" molar, whether a first or second one can not be determined; but the fact that it is not a milk tooth and that the crown is well worn down has led those who have studied it to believe that the beast was at least 50 and perhaps more than 100 years old at the time of its death. The convolutions on the grinding surface indicate that this was one of the mammoths which overran North America during the ice ages which disappeared from this country 20,000 to 40,000 years ago.

Doctors Fight to Save Man Who Thrice Beat Sea

Eureka, Calif., Nov 12 (A.P.).—Doctors and nurses worked today to save the life of Jorgen M Greve, mate and presumably the sole survivor of the schooner Brooklyn, which sank off the Humboldt Bar here last Saturday with the loss of seventeen lives.

Greve, whom the sea thrice has failed to drown under similar circumstances, was found floating on wreckage at sea yesterday and brought to a Eureka hospital. Since late Saturday he had gone without food and water and he was badly lacerated by the lashing waves. The mate's greatest temptation, he said, was to take a drink of salt water, which probably would have caused his death.

FAST EXISTENCE FOUND IN BABES

TWISTS, ROLLS, BENDS

Special to The Washington Post.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 12.—The activity of the very young infant increases enormously in the first ten days of life. And contrary to the impression popularly entertained by the neighbors, the period of greatest activity is not between midnight and 2 o'clock, but just before the 6 o'clock morning feeding.

These and many other intimate details of the lives of the younger generation, were disclosed by a study made at the psychological laboratories of the Ohio State University here under the direction of Prof. Orvis C. Irwin.

Watched When Alone.

This investigation into the behavior of young infants differed in method from most previous studies. Previously psychologists have done various things to the infants to find out how they would respond. They have observed whether the child will notice a loud noise, whether he will blink in a strong light, and so on. Prof. Irwin, however, has made a record of what the infant does when he is left all alone in his crib or basket.

As soon after birth as possible, the infant was placed under observation. He was clothed in light clothing that would not hamper movement. His bed was arranged on a special apparatus which recorded automatically every move the child made. It was in a quiet, undisturbed place, where the experimenter could watch the infant without disturbing him. This observation continued day and night for the whole period of ten days, the only exceptions being the times of feeding.

Every Movement Recorded.

A code had been arranged so the experimenter could record with a combination of numbers and figures the character of every move the child made from the pursing of his lips to the wiggling of his tiny toes.

But much to the surprise of the scientists, when the baby got hungary he moved so vigorously and quickly that the recorder's pencil was left far behind.

"The infant," Prof. Edwin said, "maintains continuous body movement with such speed and excessiveness that the experimenter; even when using a specially devised code, can not keep up with the infant. The body squirms, twists, rolls and bends. The back arches, the hips sway and the head rolls from side to side, or is thrown back. The arms slash vigorously, or are flexed sharply at ankle, knee and hip. Hands, feet, toes and fingers are in continuous movement. Sucking and smacking sounds frequently occur, while loud crying is usually coincident with this mass activity."

Berlin Students Renew Their Clash With Police

Berlin, Nov 12 (A.P.).—Students at the University of Berlin today renewed the clash interrupted yesterday by the police. Der Abend reports that a woman student and Social Democratic undergratduate were beaten by a group of national Socialists.

Today's disturbance, the newspaper says, began when the national Socialists attempted to prevent distribution of leaflets protesting against the university ball, to which an admission fee will be charged. Police were brought in after several shots had been fired.

TURKISH FARMERS TAKE TO POLITICS

2,600,000 Are Crying for Representation in Parliament.

PLAN REPUBLICAN PARTY

Adrianople, Turkey, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Turkey's 2,600,000 farmers are beginning to cry for parliamentary representation, now that Mustapha Kemal's sponsoring of the new Liberal party indicates that political parties in Turkey may number more than one.

Preliminaries for the formation of a farmers' republican party have begun in this one-time capital of the Ottoman empire.

Sponsors of the new party point out that Turkey is the only agricultural country in the world having no farmers' voice in parliament. Farmer deputies, it is urged, would speed up government development of Turkey's vast agricultural possibilities, so that the republic would no longer need to import food.

The People's party, the party of Kemal and Ismet Pasha, is promising increased aid to farmers as one of the chief reforms in its new program. The government authorities maintain that already farmers' taxes have been reduced from an annual total of $40,000,000 gathered by sultanic collectors, to $3,000,000. They further promise to abolish the tax on farm tractors and to extend the farm credits of the Turkish Agricultural Bank.

PREKINDERGARTEN SCHOOL IS OPENED

PLAY NOT RESTRICTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—The educators' theory that one is never too old to learn is now being replaced with the belief that one is never too young to begin learning. Instructing and training the youngster before he leaves the cradle is one of the purposes of the nursery schools for children of prekindergarten and school age, which are being established in various cities of the United States.

These schools for guiding children of 1 to 5 years through the important and early periods of habit formation and mental and physical development are now making a place for themselves in Baltimore's educational world along with the kindergartens, demonstration and experimental schools for small folk.

Planned for Needs.

The nursery school provides a social group for young children in an environment specially planned for their needs from the point of view of mental hygiene and physical conditions. In bright, airy rooms equipped with children's furnishings the youngsters carry out their chief business of life—play—naturally, unrestricted and unrepressed in a situation that is as far as possible child-developed and not completely adult-controlled.

While engaged in this play the children are taught to be self-reliant by doing things for themselves and not depending upon others. The children are given responsibility and an opportunity to develop a spirit of practical helpfulness by assisting in the care of the school rooms. In most instances discipline is gradually introduced into the play by explaining and reasoning about situations that arise.

Rest Is Alternated.

The play activities are carefully balanced so as to give the proper amount of vigorous exercise with alternating periods of rest. The play program is divided into periods of free play, supervised play, story telling, folk dancing, singing, rhythmetic games and craft work.

In most nursery schools the health of the children is taken care of by either a physician or a city health department nurse. For the youngsters who remain at the school all day a carefully planned and prepared dinner is served at midday. This meal is usually followed by a rest period, when the children sleep for two hours or more on cots in a well-ventilated room or porch.

At many of the nursery schools parents may enter their children at any time during the day and for any length of time not exceeding ten hours. Some mothers find it convenient to leave their youngsters at the schools for only the afternoon play hours, while others send them for the entire day.

Passion Play's Profits Greater Than Expected

Oberammergau, Germany, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The final apportionment of profits among the Passion Play performers turned out to be a pleasant surprise for all, as net profits proved much greater than anticipated. This is especially welcome, as there are nine lean years to come before the next series of performances brings more grist to the mill.

Aside from Stage Manager Johann George Lang, who draws $2,000, and Choirmaster Guido Diemer, to whom $1,750 is allotted, the star actors, Alois Lang (Christ) and Hugo Rutz (Caiaphas) each received $1,375. Anni Rutz (Mary) and the recently married Hansi Preisinger (Magdalen) each draw $875, and so on down to $75 for each child actor.

Wales Takes Ride on DO-X.

Calshot, England, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales looked over a part of the kingdom which some day will be his from a cabin window of the great German seaplane, DO-X, today. For half an hour he rode in the huge ship, taking off from the naval harbor here, nosing over toward the Isle of Wight.

The other agent told him he was temporarily employed in the House Office Building.

Cassiday Becomes "Wise."

Since Cassiday knew the House Office Building better than the agent did, and understood all about the patronage system over there as well as on the Senate side, it was mighty hard to mislead him. He seemed very uneasy. He did not appear to have as much confidence in me as formerly and practically none in the other party.

We went right ahead, however, and asked Cassiday if he could deliver us one-fifth of gin. "The Man in the Green Hat" had brought some liquor along with him on this occasion, carrying it in his topcoat pocket.

Cassiday accepted three $1 bills and then went back behind the counter into the store-room off the stationery room, where he took the bottle of gin out of his pocket and left it for us.

Takes His Liquor Back.

The other prohibition agent and I went out into the hall for a few minutes so Cassiday would not get suspicious, but when we came back we found "the Man in the Green Hat" had left the three $1 bills on the counter and had taken the liquor away with him. We knew then Cassiday had got wise.

"The Man in the Green Hat" gave the stationery room a wide berth from that time on for the next two or three weeks. He was still coming to the Senate Office Building regularly, but it was apparent he had shifted his headquarters from the stationery room. As a part of my work I made a good many acquaintances in the building, particularly with senators' secretaries and other employes. From these acquaintances, who were seeing Cassiday every few days, I found out that he was suspicious of my status in the stationery room.

There was another bad result from the failure of our attempt to trap Cassiday into a sale. Things began to get rather warm for me among my fellow employes in the stationery room itself. All the boys were beginning to suspect me as a Department of Justice agent and a stool pigeon. They did not refuse to talk to me or make it hard for me in my daily work—it was something I could feel and not see.

Others Become Suspicious.

I went right ahead doing the best I could keeping the senators' books and waiting on the senators and their secretaries as they came in for supplies. I worked plenty hard. While I could see that suspicion had been aroused, I was sure that nobody who came into the stationery room and none of the boys in there actually knew what I was doing.

The chief clerk of the Senate, Mr. Crockett, would come in quite frequently at this period to see me and to ask the other fellows how I was getting along. He continued to refer to me as an employe of the Senate on the temporary roll.

I had also made it a rule to report regularly to Col. Thayer, the secretary of the Senate. I had weekly conferences with Col. Thayer in his office in the Capitol and told him everything I was able to find out about bootlegging in the Senate Office Building. I continued making daily reports in writing to the Prohibition Bureau, although at this time there was not much progress to report.

Col. Thayer had told me Vice President Curtis said it was O. K. for me to be working in the Senate stationery room. So, while it was getting mighty uncomfortable for me over there, I felt secure about my position. In fact, I felt it was an honor to have the place with the approval of the Vice President.

Cassiday Continued Selling.

I knew all this time Cassiday was selling liquor in the Senate Office Building, but my knowledge of that fact and what I was able to observe from day to day did not seem to do me any good when Cassiday had lost confidence in me.

Every day I would see his car parked in the back of the Senate Office Building on the west side of First street, between B and C streets northeast. From the stationery room I could look out of the window and observe him coming into the Senate Office Building.

I could see with my own eyes that he was doing business there and delivering a good deal of stuff. He was at the Senate Office Building all hours of the day and I knew he would not be there for visiting purposes.

I kept reporting back to the Prohibition Bureau and when I had a little time off from my work in the stationery room I would go down there for new instructions. It was agreed that we had acted too soon in introducing another agent and that the best move to make was to try to reestablish Cassiday's confidence.

So it was arranged that I should try for the present to do business with Cassiday through one of the regular employes of the Senate he would be likely to trust.

Plans to Share Secret.

In order to do this I found it would be necessary to commit myself as to what I was doing to one of the employes in the Senate Office Building who was on a senator's patronage. I could not make any progress without letting him in on the secret and so I told him frankly I had been assigned to the Senate Office Building to break up bootlegging operations there.

This employe was not surprised. He said he had been suspicious of me for some time, but he had not been certain whether I was a prohibition agent or a Department of Justice agent.

We had become good friends since I started working on Capitol Hill. Being a Senate employe, he was working for Uncle Sam the same as I was and I was able to get him to agree to help me out.

I reported back to the Prohibition Bureau and to Col. Thayer on this development. Then a new plan was agreed upon for me to use in running down "the Man in the Green Hat."

TOMORROW—Butts will tell how he worked through a "go-between" in the Senate Office Building in an effort to trap "the Man in the Green Hat" and of his discovery of a competing bootlegger on Capitol Hill.

Aged Recluse Is Beaten To Death With Hammer

Shreveport, La., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Charles Turner, aged recluse, was found fatally beaten in his cabin near here today—apparently the victim of a robber who had crushed his skull with a hammer, then ransacked the house.

The hammer, stained with blood, was found on the floor beside the bed in which the victim lay. He died without regaining consciousness.

The Washington Post

Starting Monday, November 17

Read It and Find Out How!

Jean was stranded in New York with 22c.

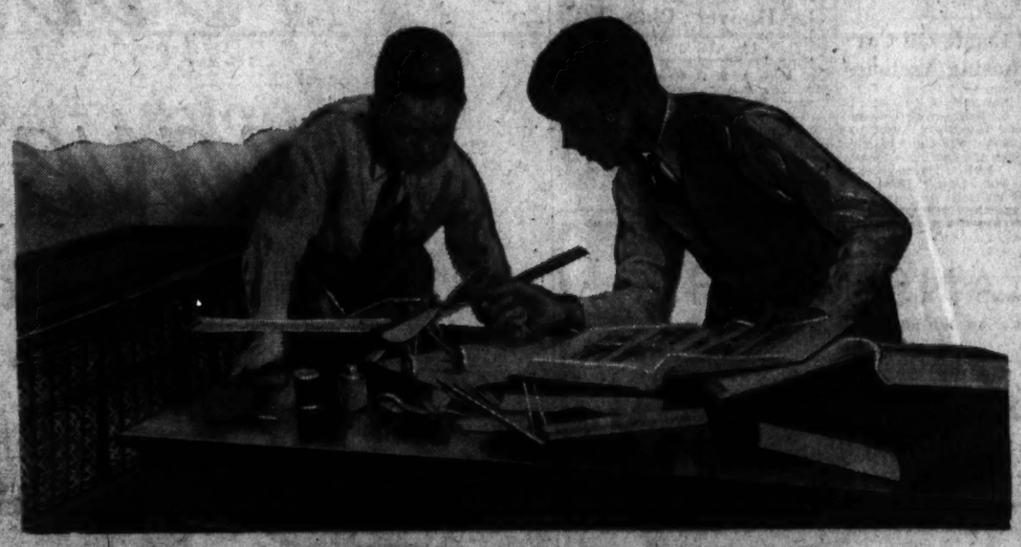
Jean Put Over a Big Job

giving every deserving little girl in New York a doll for Christmas.

Sandy Clause made her dreams come true.

Don't Miss Any of This Exciting Story of a Country Girl With City Ideas Who Made Good in the Big Town.



You will enrich their whole future

by giving them the greatly-helpful

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

WHAT does the future hold for the children who, like your own son or daughter, are now beginning or passing through their school courses?

How will they earn their own living, and their families' living, after they go out to make their own way in the world? Statistics prove the futures of any good average group of twenty American boys—as follows:—

One of the twenty will be mentally equipped to enter a profession. He will become a lawyer, an engineer, architect, inventor, author, designer, chemist, banker, or physician:—or, in some other expert way, will be in position to direct and assist other men.

Two of them will succeed in manufacture or trade; they will make or sell things the world needs. And one of the two may become an employer,—providing work and income for others.

One of the twenty will do clerical work:—and someone else will own the office he works in.

That's four—out of the average twenty. What about the rest of them? The other sixteen boys—grown up—will earn their livings with their hands, not their minds. Most of them will work for others, their prosperity depending upon the success or failure of their employers.

Three boys, out of twenty, will succeed, will lead others, and will be rewarded through life, because they have more practical knowledge than the others—and because they know how to apply that knowledge.

And their success will be shared by the fine women, who, when girls, became mentally qualified to deal with problems of home life, and all other things of social and economic importance.

Why Children Need The Encyclopaedia Britannica

The thousands of parents who have already bought the Britannica for their children, have given them a very, very great advantage over other children, who do not have this greatest of all knowledge books.

For the Britannica does something that no ordinary course of school studies can do:—it explains the world—and makes the search for knowledge interesting. It shows children what to do in later life; and helps them prepare to do it, successfully.

With its 35,000,000 words of practical information, written by thousands of the world's greatest present day authorities, the Britannica is all knowledge, for everyone to understand.

It will make the finest of Christmas gifts. And it is needed in every child's home.

Children Use the Britannica Eagerly

For it opens up to them a wonderland of mental adventure.

As they use it, they absorb knowledge—they learn to think quickly and reason accurately. They acquire a fine quality of personal judgment. They become earnest, ambitious and capable.

It Makes All Schoolwork Easier

Frequently school courses are hard for children simply because they do not know what they start from, and where they lead to.

In a delightful way, which young minds can understand, questions of fact are answered by the ever-helpful Britannica. And 15,000 enjoyable illustrations [to be had in no other encyclopaedia] make the meaning clear.

What Teachers Say

Teachers will tell you that their pupils from "Britannica homes" are tremendously assisted by it. They urge its use.

And the children themselves write and tell us that the Britannica is making everything easier for them. And they thank us very charmingly for this.

And for Advanced Students

Through elementary courses, on through high school, college, and specialized studies, the Britannica is equally helpful and necessary.

Its purchase is a wise and permanent investment.

$5. can bring the set for immediate use

AT a new low price, our Time Payment plan enables you to have the Britannica now, when it is needed, by making an initial deposit of only $5.—with a limited number of easy payments thereafter.

Also, with immediate orders, we include the handsome mahogany bookcase table, without extra cost.

SQUARE-DEAL RULE CLAIMED IN MEXICO

Chapultepec Castle Philosophy Has Undergone Great Change, Is Belief.

NEW CHIEF IS DIFFERENT

Mexico City, Nov. 12 (A.P.)—All men were not created equal, in the opinion of Pascual Ortiz Rubio, descendant of ancient Tarascan nobility and President of Mexico, but every man should have opportunity to develop that of which he is capable and therein lies the obligation of the wealthy toward the poor.

Chapultepec Castle philosophy has undergone considerable change during the twenty years since Porfirio Diaz maintained an iron control over the castle's heavy stone walls. It has passed through its "pink" era and come out of chaotic periods to rest in the hands of a serene, deliberate thinker.

Quite the contrary of the picturesque, dashing military leaders and the radical reformers who at various times preceded him in Mexico's epoch of armed upheavals and legislative turnovers, Ortiz Rubio is the staid, retiring type.

Wishes for Stability.

He believes all that is necessary has been accomplished in the way of radical measures. Consolidation and development are the bywords of his administration, which he means to make a matter-of-fact, peg-away stage in the nation's progress toward unquestioned stability.

His ideas in regard to relationship of men are typical of his views on important subjects in general. What has become known as a practical perspective holds sway now in the former home of Maximilian, under the guidance of a man whose forefathers ruled a great part of the country prior to the Spanish conquest.

The president sees in road construction, religious freedom, international harmony, extension of educational facilities and encouragement of orderly, unhampered political opinion some of the prime goals of his government.

Due to rivalry of "caudillos," or military leaders, and their influence over politics it was not until the end of the presidential period of Gen. Plutarco E. Calles, in 1928, that serious thought could be given to creation of peaceful partisan politics.

Calles sounded what the people hoped was the death knell of "caudillismo" when he refused to run for a second term in office. The national revolutionary party, a civilian political organization built up by Calles, carried Ortiz Rubio, a retired soldier, into the presidency. The president seldom appears in uniform—he prefers to be a civilian, and while he frankly states his affection for the party which elected him, he recently declared to congress that the time has come to encourage other civilian political organizations. Peaceful and impartial democratic decision of national affirs is his hope for the future.

Popular opinion sees in the president a democratic but dignified executive of conservative tendencies, compared with some of his predecessors, but keeping in constant touch with the common people. A recent dinner in Chapultepc Castle, at which one common soldier from each of the regiments stationed in the capital was his guest, was an example of the way in which he maintains his contacts.

Threats to Blast Bank Net $9,000 for Robber

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Threatening to blow up the bank if he met resistance, a robber herded two officers and a woman teller of the Bartonville State Bank into a rear room today and escaped with $9,000 currency. Meanwhile a burglar alarm clanged but pedestrians outside said they thought it a false alarm.

The robber handed L. G. Fishel, cashier, a note. It warned him the robber would expode a bottle which he carried, supposedly nitroglycerine, if they failed to follow his directions.

WET AND DRY GROUPS DEMAND SHOWDOWN IN ISSUE IN 1932

that "astounding" things have been discovered, and there is a promise from these same members that there will be no "pussyfooting" in the forthcoming report, but the commission is still far from agreement.

Coincident with the proposals for a showdown on prohibition in 1932, it was learned that some of the prohibitionists on the Law Enforcement Commission would like to see an expression of sentiment on the dry law after a ten-year trial.

This could only be brought about by a national referendum and it is the opinion of many that a national referendum could be obtained only by submitting a constitutional amendment for repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the States. The drys, however, are not willing to go that far.

Representative Beedy said he believed the "matter of prohibition should be thoroughly discussed in the 1932 campaign and that it would be much better if the people of the country would have the right to voice their opinions."

Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, reached the Capital yesterday from the Pacific Coast, from where he was recalled suddenly by Attorney General Mitchell. Woodcock said he did not know the exact purpose for his recall, and that his tour of the Nation had convinced him that the present style of enforcing prohibition was the best method that could be devised.

The Law Enforcement Commission at its brief meeting yesterday heard the representatives of the American Medical Association, in response to their own request, amplify a statement submitted on the problems of medicinal liquor.

Dr. William N. Mayer and Dr. William C. Woodward appeared. Three members of the commission were absent and adjournment was taken until today.

Wines and Beer Predicted.

Meantime Representative Linthicum, of Maryland, chairman of the House wet bloc, looked to the Seventy-third Congress, which meets in 1933, with the prediction that "light wines and beer are in the offing" and that that Congress would adopt a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

"I am confident that the wets will have a majority in the House of the Seventy-third Congress," Representative Linthicum said. "I have no doubt that we will then pass a resolution for repeal. As to the Senate, however, I have insufficient knowledge, but I do know that public opinion is against prohibition, and the Senate will carry out the will of the people."

Representative Linthicum said he expected to see early modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beer, adding that strenuous efforts would be made by the wet bloc to obtain action at the December session.

Fight to Finish Seen.

"Regardless of what any political party chooses to do in its platform of the future, the prohibition fight is going to be kept in the open to the finish," the Marylander said. "I hope the Republicans put prohibition in their next platform, because if they do, it will mean victory for the Democrats."

Representative Linthicum said the sentiment of the people is now for direct repeal, and added he would convene the wet bloc early in December to map out "an aggressive campaign for the short session and for the Seventy-second Congress."

COSTA RICA AT WAR ON ALIEN SWINDLERS

Adventurers Swamped Country After O. Henry Wrote Yarns on Revolts.

PICKINGS FOUND GOOD

Special to The Washington Post.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Nov. 11.—Costa Rica has her own racketeers, like any city in the United States, only here they are known by the more polite and euphonious name of chevaliers d'industrie.

Ever since O. Henry and in later years Richard Harding Davis put Central America on "the map" with their colorful tales of American-made revolutions, adventurers have flocked to these shores in great numbers, and, on the whole, generally have found the pickings good.

Bogus American and European salesmen and get-rich-quick artists have been operating in this country with more or less impunity for a number of years. Last year the big bull market in the United States proved a veritable bonanza for fake American stock salesmen, who make sizable stakes for themselves unloading spurious stocks of well-known American companies on Costa Rican investors and others who had heard all about fortunes that were being made overnight in Wall street on the rising market.

It is said that scores of well-to-do planters and others bought fake stock to the tune of nearly $200,000, only to discover later that their elaborately engraved certificates weren't worth the paper they were printed on.

Tardy but effective recognition of these foreign racketeers has been taken by the authorities, and in the future the Wallingfords and Blackies will meet with short shrift at the hands of the police.

A new law, recently promulgated, and now in operation compels all foreigners to register with the local police immediately upon their arrival in the country. They must fill out a questionnaire detailing their business, their object in visiting the country, their financial means, and such other information as will satisfy the police of their desirability. If their answers are satisfactory the visitors are given identification cards which they are obliged to carry with them while in the country.

Failure to comply with this regulation is punishable by fine, and in the case of undesirables they are promptly deported. Costa Rica welcomes immigration, but it must be constructive. In the future racketeers and others of their ilk will find the pickings rather lean.

Upperville Physician Succumbs to Pneumonia

Special to The Washington Post.

Upperville, Va., Nov. 12.—Dr. C. F. Rinker, 72 years of age, prominent physician and Mason, died yesterday afternoon at his home here from pneumonia, after an illness of a few days. He was a native of Upperville and had practiced medicine here for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and three sons, Edward Rinker, of Buena Vista, Va.; Dr. Fred Rinker, of Norfolk, and Fenton Rinker, of Upperville, and one daughter.

Patmos Masonic Lodge, of which Dr. Rinker was a member, will have charge of the funeral services Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Services will be held from the Upperville Episcopal Church, with interment in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Two Killed, Five Injured In Fires on Oil Fields

Los Angeles, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Two oil workers died today of burns suffered in one of two oil field fires, brought under control after causing losses estimated by company officials at $100,000. Five men were injured. The victims were William L. Murray, 34, Norwalk, and Steve Fall, 40, Modena.

Murray and Fall were welding an oil tank at the York-Smulling No. 1 well in the Inglewood Field when it caught fire. The other casualties were in the new Venice Beach Oil Field, where fire broke out in an isolated well. Three drillers suffered burns and two Venice Beach firemen were injured.

The American Oil Company produces both Amoco-Gas, the original special motor fuel, and the New Orange American Gas, the best gas selling at regular gas price.

In no sense are they competitors. They are designed to supply two separate fields--and to give the best possible value in their respective price classes.

If you are a user of "regular" gas--get acquainted with Orange American--selling at regular gas price but out-performing any "regular" gas you have ever tried.

If you want the very highest type of performance, and the lowest cost per mile--drive on Amoco-Gas. Costs a few cents more at the pump--but saves you dollars as the miles pile up on your speedometer.

We'll leave it to you to make a choice. You can't be anything but right in either case.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mrs. Hoover To Entertain Health Group

White House Conference on Children to Have Social Side.

THE American child, hobby of President Hoover, will come into his own on November 19 and the long cherished plans of the Chief Executive become a reality when the White House conference on Child Health and Protection opens with an address by the President in Constitution Hall. Years of endeavor to fill the needs of childhood, particularly during the difficult years of the World War, have peculiarly fitted the President for the position of sponsor to the conference.

The First Lady's part in the forthcoming conference will follow several channels, but the social end will not be neglected, as President and Mrs. Hoover, sometime during the conference, will entertain the delegates attending the sessions.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur is chairman of the conference. The planning committee named by the President includes nine widely known Washington men and women and names associated not only with endeavor in public work but in the social annals of the capital. Among the group are Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Senator James Couzens, of Michigan; Miss Grace Abbott, of the Children's Bureau; Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Public Health Service; Mr. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Bureau of Home Economics, and Mr. French Strother, administrative assistant to the President.

The assistant director and highest ranking woman in the group is Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, of Ithaca, N. Y., director of the College of Home Economics at Cornell University. She is now taking her sabbatical leave and devoting the time to this work.

Mrs. Hoover Entertains Wives of Officials.

Mrs. Hoover entertained at luncheon yesterday for the wives of the officials of the Commerce Department, going later to the tea at the Women's City Club given in celebration of the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the club.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., who, with Mr. Hoover, is occupying Blue Briar Cottage, in Asheville, N. C., for the winter, has gone to Palo Alto, Calif., to spend three weeks with her mother.

She will return to Asheville with her three children. She was accompanied to California by Mrs. Stark McMullin, a close friend of the President and Mrs. Hoover, who spent some time in Washington recently as a guest at the White House.

The Ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel, will be joined today by his sons, M. Henri Claudel and M. Pierre Claudel, who arrived yesterday in New York from their home in France. They will enter Georgetown University.

Admiral and Mrs. Reginald F. Nicholson will entertain at dinner this evening in honor of Mme. George Pouleiff. Mme. Pouleiff was Miss Bessie Samuels, of Philadelphia, and was in Washington when Dr. Pouleiff was attached to the Bulgarian Legation. Dr. Pouleiff is now stationed abroad.

Mr. John Barrett, former United States Ambassador to Argentina, and Maj. Gen. George Owen Squier are at the University Club in New York, where they went to attend the luncheon which was given yesterday by the Pan-American Society in honor of the new Ambassador from Argentina, Dr. Manuel Malbran.

Mr. J. Butler Wright, former American Minister to Hungary, and newly appointed Minister to Uruguay, and Mrs. Wright, who have been in New York at the Ambassador since their arrival from Budapest last Sunday, will come to Washington on Monday.

Rifle Team to Present Cup to Hurley.

Today the Secretary of War, Mr Patrick J. Hurley, will be given the custody of the cup won by the American rifle team which won the world's championship at Antwerp in August. The cup will be presented to the Secretary by Maj. J. K. Boles, captain of the team, and will be retained in the United States while the championship honors remain here. The United States previously held the silver and gold cups in 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924.

The marriage of Miss Mary Louise Dorroh, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Mr. Byron Patton Harrison, jr., son of Senator and Mrs. Pat Harrison, of Washington and Mississippi, took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the home of the Rev. John O. Palmer, pastor of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church.

At the ceremony were Mr. Harrison's sister, Miss Marianna Harrison, and Mr. Selton Johnstom, of Clarksdale, Miss., college friend of the bride and bridegroom. The bride wore a smart ensemble of blue tweed trimmed with blue fox, with hat and accessories to match. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Harrison left on a motor trip of a few days. They will make their home in Washington.

The bride is the daughter of Prof. J. H. Dorroh, dean of the School of Engineering at the University of New Mexico, and Mrs. Dorroh.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick will return to Washington in about a fortnight, coming direct from Colorado, where she is visiting her young son, J. Medill McCormick. Mrs. McCormick will open her home on Thirtieth street. On December 13 she will give a tea at the Carlton to present her daughter, Miss Katrina McCormick, to society, and on December 27 Mrs. McCormick will give a ball for her daughter following a dinner to be given for the bud by Mrs. Howard Burling.

Representative Cyrenus Cole, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has arrived in the Capital and taken an apartment at the Wardman Park for the winter.

The Attache of the Roumanian Legation, Mr. George Duca, will leave Washington on Saturday for Princeton, N. J., where he will spend the week-end and attend the Princeton-Yale game Saturday. He will then go to New York for several days and will sail on November 22 for Europe. He will spend a short time in Italy before going to his home in Roumania. Mr. Duca will no longer be attached to the legation here.

Maj. and Mrs. Burton Young Read have with them for the winter the latter's mother, Mrs. Ralph Kitchen, of Omaha, Nebr. Maj. and Mrs. Read have issued invitations for a tea on November 30 as a farewell party to Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Smith, who will leave Washington about December 2 for station in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Crosby Entertain at Dinner.

The Commissioner of the District and Mrs. Herbert C. Crosby entertained at dinner last evening in their apartment at 2340 Massachusetts avenue. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Bride, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. James McKinley and Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Foy.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland are in Louisville, Ky., where the former is attending the meeting of the Medical Association.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning will give a dinner in honor of Miss Dorothy Dodge on November 29, before the debut ball of Miss Dodge which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Dodge, will give at the Mayflower.

November Bride

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams entertained at dinner last night. Their guests were Admiral and Mrs. William V. Pratt, Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Admiral and Mrs. William A. Moffett, Admiral and Mrs. Frank Clark, Admiral and Mrs. Frank B. Upham, Admiral John R. Y. Blakely, Admiral Joseph J. Cheatham, Gen. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Fuller, Admiral and Mrs. Charles E. Riggs, Mrs. Frederic L. Chapin and Miss Margaret W. Browne.

Mrs. William W. Witherspoon, who spent several months at Jamestown, R. I., has returned to Washington and has reopened her apartment at the Dupont for the winter.

Mr. Donald MacDonald 3d has returned from the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, where he has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Drexel Biddle at their hunting lodge.

Mrs. William D. Thomas, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Thomas, arrived in Washington yesterday to be the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Marye. She will remain here over the week-end, before returning to Norfolk to join her husband, who is stationed there. Mrs. Thomas was formerly Miss Helen Marye.

Mr. and Mrs. William Payne Meredith will present their daughter, Miss Sylvia Conitee Meredith, to society at a tea on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 27, at their home.

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. Thomas Church will hold its annual silver tea and Christmas sale in the Parish Hall, 1723 Church street, on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. J. D. Murdaugh is in charge of the sale and is assisted by Mrs. B. L. Hardin and Mrs. Robert M. Eaves.

At the tea table during the afternoon will be Mrs. Horace Pealee, Mrs. A. A. Wheat, Mrs. Needham L. Jones, Mrs. Melville Church and Mrs. G. A. Randolph.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, who are now on their wedding trip, will return to their home, in Providence, shortly after Thanksgiving. Mr. Brown's mother, Mrs. Nicholas Brown, who recently closed Harbour Court, at Newport, has gone to her winter home, in Boston. Mrs. John Brown was, before her marriage in Baltimore on October 18, Miss Anne Kinsolving.

Midshipmen and Cadets Ball To Be Held Christmas.

The Midshipmen and Cadets Ball, always one of the most brilliant of the winter events in the Capital, will be given this year on Christmas night at the Mayflower and represents the third annual dance for the young Navy group. Given under the direction of Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner the ball in preceding years has been one of the sparkling dances of the earlier season and one attended by the Vice President and many members of official and residential Washington. With many of the men in full dress uniform there is added a note of color to the ball.

Preceding the dance there will be a dinner in the garden of the Mayflower.

Mme. Emanuel H. Dimitriu, formerly Miss Patricia Poe Bennett, whose marriage to the Financial Secretary of the Roumanian Legation took place last week, was the guest of honor yesterday at an informal luncheon given by the associates on the national executive board of the National League of American Pen Women at the Willard Hotel. In the company were Mrs. Frank Hodges Clark, Mrs. Daniel C. Chace, Mrs. Charles W. Allen, Mrs. Harry Hunt, Mrs. G. G. White and Mrs. William R. Moses, who is president of the District of Columbia branch of the league.

Arthur Stanley Riggs To Give Lecture.

Mr. Arthur Stanley Riggs will give an illustrated lecture on "The Artistic Growth of Pisa, Genoa, and Venice" under the auspices of the Art and Archeology League of Washington, which will be held by courtesy of Gunston Hall School at 1906 Florida avenue on Saturday evening, November 22. Mrs. Mitchell Carroll is the president of the league and Miss Harriet E. Garrels is the secretary.

French Group Will Hear Aid Of Gen. Foch

Commandant L'Hopital to Speak Tomorrow at Carlton Hotel.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, Commandant L'Hopital, former aid de camp of the late Marshal Foch, will address the members of the Alliance Francaise and their guests at the Carlton Hotel. Commandant L'Hopital was one of the general's aids de camp during the war and afterwards was his private secretary and aid de camp. His talk will be on Foch, not as a military genius but as the man. He will tell of his private life and personal achievements.

Mrs. James Carroll Fraser, who is president of the Alliance Francaise, announces that this winter the meetings will take place on Saturday mornings at the Hotel Lafayette, and will be followed by luncheon. Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Charles Stewart Alden, vice president of the Alliance, will entertain each week at luncheon and will have as their guests the speaker of the day and members of the French Embassy staff.

Miss Engracia Freyer, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Frank B. Freyer, has gone to Atlanta, Ga., where she will visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McNeel. Miss Freyer will remain in Atlanta for about a month.

Mr. Samuel R. McKelvie, of the Federal Farm Board, has returned to Washington and is stopping at the Carlton.

Mrs. William R. Gibson will entertain at luncheon today at Wardman Park Hotel in honor of Mrs. William G. Wheeler, who has recently returned from her summer home, Janesville, Wis. The guests will number twelve, and they will remain after luncheon to play bridge.

Dr. John H. MacCracken, new associate director of the American Council on Education, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Dr. C. R. Mann, director of the council, yesterday at the Cosmos Club. Invited to meet Dr. MacCracken were the Secretary of the Interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur; Mr. William John Cooper, Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J.; the Rev. James H. Ryan, Dr. Lucius C. Clark, Dr. Charles F. Carusi, Dr. Percival Hall, the Rev. Edward A. Pace, Dr. John C. Saul, Mrs. George Scriven, Mrs. Daniel Stapleton and Mrs. Thomas Woodlock.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock will return today to open her house on Massachusetts avenue for the winter after passing the summer at Newport.

Will Pass Winter Here

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. CLARENCE P. DODGE will be among the Washington hostesses this winter, having come from her home in Colorado Springs. Mr. and Mrs. Dodge have taken a house in Georgetown.

Riding Team Of Germany May Visit City

Five Rival Nations Lose Trophy to Outfit at New York.

Riding devotees are interested in the probable visit to Washington of the German riding team, which walked off with the international military trophy from the five rival nations competing in the horse show at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday night. The team will go to Toronto tomorrow to take part in the horse show there, and will return at the close of the exhibition to New York for a few days, prior to sailing for their home in Germany. It is during this time that they may make a hurried trip to the Capital.

The German Ambassador, Herr von Prittwitz, will return to Washington tomorrow from New York, where he has been since Monday witnessing the horse show every day. Frau von Prittwitz was to have made the trip with the Ambassador, but illness prevented her going.

Are You Trying to Sleep on a Twenty-Year-Old Mattress?

—That was the experience of one prominent Washington woman. She saw Zaban's offer in the paper—"New Mattresses for Old Ones"—and investigated the service he promised.

She was surprised at the transformation—delighted with the buoyant mattress that he returned for her old one!

And more—the new ticking she selected from Zaban's many attractive patterns harmonized beautifully with the color scheme of her bedroom.

We sterilized her mattress in an electric oven with 230 degrees of heat, thoroughly cleaned and combed the felt, and covered it with a new ticking of attractive pattern. Really a new mattress in every sense of the word.

The price—only $4 to $9—puts Zaban's renovation service within the reach of all.

Phone Zaban's today—National 9410—and our representative will call, or if you prefer to pay a personal visit to the showrooms and factory we'll welcome you.

Beds and Bedding sold direct to you at low factory prices. Mattresses, Box Springs and Pillows Renovated or Made to Order at Factory Prices.

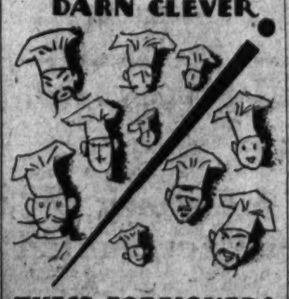
DARN CLEVER.



THESE FOREIGNERS

• They will not laugh when you speak your order in French at The Mayflower. Employ almost any foreign tongue and an understanding waiter will respond.

Down in the culinary department, too, may be found practically every nationality. Not enough cooks to in any way threaten the security of the broth, but "career men" who know rare Continental dishes.

• The language of the kitchen is French, but should you order "Poitrine de Boeuf Sale Aux Choux" (otherwise known as corned beef and cabbage), it will be served just the way you want it. We pride ourselves on American dishes—well because most of our patrons prefer them, that's all.

PARALLELING the Damrosch school concerts, the Radio Guild is preparing a series of 26 plays, each required in nearly every school curriculum. Margaret Anglin, in the Greek tragedy, "Iphigenia in Aulis," by Euripides, will give the initial presentation (WRC, 4 o'clock) tomorrow afternoon.

Alwyn Bach, announcer, will be formally awarded the medal for good radio diction tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 3 o'clock) by the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Prepare to weep! Dean Inge, the "gloomy dean" of St. Paul's Cathedral, will talk from London Sunday, December 7.

FOR the benefit of the Community Chest, negro spirituals are to be sung tonight by a male quartet under the auspices of the Twelfth street branch of the Y. M. C. A. (WOL, 6:15 o'clock.)

In addition to tonight's performance (WJSV, 7:30 o'clock) Chick Godfrey, the musical marine, will appear in person at a concert given by the Brandywine Heights High School, Friday, November 21.

The possessor of the soprano voice, which some have compared with that of Jessica Dragonette, heard last Friday evening with the Wilkins Coffee Orchestra, is revealed as Marguerite Clark Cromwell. Many of the older listeners will remember her when WRC was on the air only three nights a week.

W. Orton Tewson, writer of "An Attic Salt-Shaker" in The Sunday Post, and originator of the plan of having the children themselves "review" new books, is to talk on "Books for the Bairns" in connection with Children's Book Week, tomorrow. (WJZ—2:30 p. m.)

AN anonymous young man strolled into a studio during a rehearsal smoking a cigarette. This is a violation of a strictly enforced rule, as smoke makes people cough, and coughing in the studio is a capital offense. Studio attendants stood by aghast as the nonchalant stranger, thinking it an ash tray, delicately flicked the ash from his forbidden fag into the upturned mouth of the new type condenser microphone.

At the age of 10, Hendrick Willem Van Loon, who will give a humorous talk from Holland during the Radio Follies tomorrow night, started to write a general encyclopedia of all historical information. At the age of 35 he did it.

WHEN Arthur Pryor, who directed a recent broadcast series, was traveling with Sousa's Band as trombone soloist, a number of years ago, friends from his home town of St. Joseph, Mo., went en masse to the band's concert in Kansas City.

However, the greater part of the concert was gone through with, but no Pryor. Finally with but two numbers remaining on the program and no apparent sign of the musician, his friends became fretful.

One particularly uneasy individual who could contain himself no longer suddenly arose and shouted: "Pryor, Pryor, Pryor!"

A great part of the audience, however, mistook this exclamation as "Fire, Fire, Fire!" A stampede for the doors followed, the audience thinking that the building was on fire.

A belated Halloween casualty report. A cornetist in a New York broadcasting studio, while diving for apples along with sopranos, contraltos, tenors and other musicians, bumped his lip on a tub and since then has been taking an enforced vacation.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Nov. 12.

SO-O-O-O-O! The managing director of the French Tobacco Monopoly is convinced that cigars will be smoked by women, is he! And with this in mind has put on the market small cigars called what would be equivalent to "Little Women," using the first half of the word in French and the last half of it in Spanish.

A few years ago we heard with incredulity that the women in Copenhagen were smoking cigars in public, and deemed them fantastic creatures out of another world that had nothing to do with us. Now, with women smoking cigarettes everywhere, the French cigar manufacturers deem it not improbable that they will accept these little cigars, bashing their assumption upon the fact that women do not seem to care for frills in their smoking, rejecting monogrammed, gold-tipped and scented cigarettes in favor of a standard product.

Well, M. Blondeau, in defense of women I say that you are wrong! Dainty women never will smoke cigars! Of course, there will always be that slim minority of females who think that they must discard anything feminine in order to prove their intelligence, thereby completely disproving it, who will sponsor such an idea even as they now occasionally smoke slender pipes. But other women? Never!

I fear that the tobacco industry is most decidedly behind the times. In another twenty years perhaps, when the present cycle of feminine elegance in clothing and gestures has worn itself out; but not today will women in any numbers puff cigars between their ruby-tinted lips, however long and slender the cigars may try to be!

'Tis made of rubberized silk and can match the shower curtain! And to be sure it is shaped to hold your rubber goods, not just a laundry-like bag into which you can throw them. The materials are nothing more mysterious than a wooden coat hanger, a couple of yards of tape snap fastenings, and your rubberized silk. The secret is to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post, muy pronto, and find out how to make the most ingenious "Hot Water Bag Hidey" you could ever imagine!

The point is that the 1930 adaptation of the fur jacquette differs greatly from the fur jacquette of three or four years ago. It has lost that old cumbersome bulkiness, and become a slim, nipped-in-the-waist affair that is chic and flattering.

That's an idea for that too-short long fur coat of yours—have it converted into a fur jacquette, and salvage enough pieces to make a really smart fur beret, or bag, or a wee muff.

Even I might feel like walking if I could wear the lovely dress I have illustrated for you today! Talk about lines! Look at that back, and then look at the flattering color of beige "peluche," which is a new kind of soft, plush-like velvet.

Shall we remind you again of Dare's weekly fashion letter? It's always in The Sunday Washington Post.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 13th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 3 p. m. and the danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

The astrological signs denote that not much of a practical nature can be accomplished on this date, as the conditions are adverse. There are also indicated health worries, and troubles about trivialities, all contributing to an unsettled mind, but which, after all is said and done, will not amount to a row of pins.

Children born on this November 13 will have very positive ideas and opinions, although somewhat diffident in expressing them. They will be fond of sports, attentive to their studies, kind and affectionate, and, as a rule, good natured. They, when older, will love with constancy and strength.

Your nature is a mercurial one. You are restless, unsettled and shifting. Traveling will always make a strong appeal to you, as it is difficult for you to stay for very long in any one place. You soon get tired of the same surroundings, of the same people, and of the same work. "A rolling stone" aptly describes you. Whether you gather moss or not will depend on your ability to seibe the many opportunities that, Destiny holds in store for you.

Yours is a character of strong passions, and you need to keep this side of your disposition under control, as otherwise it may be provocative of great trouble for you and others. You are led by your feelings and emotions rather than by reason. This frame of mind frequently leads you to forget the consequences of a given course of action. If a woman, you, more than others of your sex, are always making changes in your home and if possible, changing the home itself. You need excitement to feed your spirits, and if it be not forthcoming in the ordinary march of events, you create it—often to the discomfort of those around you. If a man, a nomadic existence would make a strong appeal to you. You abhor conventional ways, and you are always seeking adventure. An early marriage would "bottle up" these feelings, but later on there would be the inevitable explosion, with its attendant misery. Of all work, sedentary labor is the least suited to one of your temperament.

Successful people born November 13:
1—Joseph Hooker ("Fighting Joe") —Soldier.
2—Edwin Booth— Tragedian.
3—George W. Chadwick—Composer.
4—James Cannon, jr.—Bishop.
5—Louis D. Brandeis—Jurist.

FINDING A NEEDED ENTRY.

In the above hand which was played at Contract Bridge, South with a count of 21 and all four suits stopped, of course bid three No Trumps which ended the bidding.

At Auction South would have become the Declarer with a bid of one No Trump.

West led his fourth best Spade and dummy's Ten held the trick. Then all the Diamonds held by East and West were drawn in three rounds. The Declarer then attempted to put dummy in with the Queen of Hearts which he could have done if West had held the King, but East won with it and led a Spade. South ducked and West won with the King and led a third Spade, North's Queen and South's Ace falling. The Declarer consequently was unable to put dummy in to cash his two established Diamonds and had to be satisfied with a total of two Spades, one Heart, three Diamonds and one Club, taking only seven tricks in spite of his strong hand. What was the matter?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The Declarer overlooked a very simple method of winning game. Trick 1 should have been taken with the Ace of Spades over dummy's Ten, thereby assuring a Spade entry in dummy and not reducing the number of Spades that could be won by the Declarer. With the Diamonds established tricks (2-4) a Spade would be led and although the King would take it, dummy then would be able to take the next Spade trick and the Declarer would be sure of two Spades, one Heart, five Diamonds and one Club —game. Of course, Declarer would have made his game by the play he used if West had held the King of Hearts, but why take any risk when a sure play is available?

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer is complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS, which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced text books, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this paper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me why my honeysuckle does not bloom. The vine is 3 years old, and while it grows beautifully it does not produce any flowers.
MRS. R. G. T.

It may be a case of poor soil, too little sun or water or improper pruning. All old or hard-wooded stems should be removed from a honeysuckle each spring and once in four weeks the straggly ends of the vine should be removed. Better mulch the plant with well-rotted manure at this time. In the early spring the manure can be forked under.

Please tell me the name of the tree from which I plucked the inclosed leaves and berries.
MRS. R. H. V. S.

Mountain ash.

Please tell me if there is anything I can purchase to kill weeds. Uprooting them is hopeless work when there is a large area of ground to cover.
NO SIGNATURE.

There are several reliable weed destroyers on the market; better ask your seedman to recommend one. If you do not find one write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will send you the name of several firms listing these products.

Please tell me how to save the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. I would also appreciate it if you give me the name of this plant.
MRS. ROSE R.

Your plant is a pandanus. It requires a warm, sunny location and plenty of fresh air at all times. Better water it thoroughly every other day and wash the foliage once a week with cold, soapy water. Keep the surface soil in the pot quite loose.

Is there any way to prevent delphinium blight?
JOSEPH K.

Dig dry Bordeaux mixture about the crowns or spray weekly with ammoniacal copper carbonate. In fact, to prevent a bad attack of blight it is necessary to keep the plants covered with this spray from early spring until fall.

Please tell me how to care in summer for a fine hot house azalea.
Miss ALICE W. W.

After your azalea has finished flowering, water it freely in order to induce the plant to develop growth. If any shoots are growing faster than others, pinch them back in order to make a symmetrical plant. Azaleas, like all members of the heath family, are easily injured by too much or too little water; therefore, see that the soil is always just moist, never let it become either dry or waterlogged. Put the plant out of doors when danger of frost is past. Plunge it to the rim of the pot in well-drained soil or coal ashes. This will keep the pot cool and in a measure prevent the evaporation of water. Do not place plant in full sunlight, but, rather, choose a place where it will get the early morning and late afternoon sun and where it will have shade in the middle of the day. Syringe the foliage every afternoon, being sure that the under side of the foliage is reached by the water. This is suggested so you will not be troubled by red spiders and thrips, which will do a great deal of harm if not checked.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

MEASLES RANKS SECOND.

MEASLES ranks second to whooping cough as a contagious disease of childhood. It is especially hard on children under 2 years of age, but in spite of its preference for young children it manages to break up schools and mess up children's affairs considerably. Nor do adults escape. When the country boy goes to the city to carve out a career for himself, one of his hazards is measles and the pneumonia for which it prepares the way.

A report from Porto Rico confirms reports from America and Europe, all of which go to show that we are set to wipe out measles. The only question is, are we willing to take the trouble? There are two ways of vaccinating against it. One is the injection of some blood from a parent into his child, after the child has been exposed, but before the disease develops.

Sometimes the disease is wholly prevented, but that is the exception. The rule is for the injection to be followed by a very mild attack of measles lasting about two days, and followed by no complications. This vaccination, and the aborted attack, confers immunity which lasts for life. Instead of using the blood of a parent, the physician can make use of properly checked blood of any adult who has had measles at any period of his life. The other method of vaccination consists in injecting the properly checked blood of children recently convalescent from measles. This method gives better protection temporarily than does the first method, but the immunity conferred does not last long. The first is the better method, especially for children in their own homes. The second method works very well in controlling measles epidemics in hospitals, boarding schools and orphan homes.

In Porto Rico and other tropical countries, measles is a relatively mild disease, but there was no trouble in noting the difference between the severity of uncontrolled measles, and that which followed exposure and treatment with the blood of the parents. These latter cases, in the language of the street, had "only three or four measles" on the face and fewer still on the body. Running nose, red eyes, coughs and pneumonia were absent. The treatment of pneumonia with medicine recently covered in this column is another matter.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

But there was a pleasant aspect of the case, too. It had brought him nearer to the object of his desire. In no other circumstances was it conceivable that he should have become so intimately acquainted with Lady Gwendolen. Before his accusation she had looked upon him as an interesting phenomenon, a poor, deluded boy! But during her visits to his cell a change had gradually taken place. He felt that he had become a human being to her, and, moreover, a human being of interest. Although she had scarcely spoken during the memorable drive from the jail to his room, he had been filled with a sense of nearness and understanding which was suffocatingly blissful. He had actually been sorry to be released so soon. * * *

The day before his release, when Lady Gwendolen and Lady Dorothy had visited him and told him that he would soon be free, had been one of the happiest of his entire life. For he was no longer oppressed by the shadow of death which had hovered so frighteningly near, and he was talking to the girl he adored.

But that was now nearly two months ago, and he had not seen Lady Gwendolen since. He had heard of her through Lady Dorothy, who continued to visit him often, but not one word or sign had he received directly from the girl he adored. He had waited * * * and hoped. He had watched every post with longing, he had started at every knock * * * but no, never had it been she.

He had not seen his old friend, Andree, either, but that was because he had not answered the sweet note she sent on his release. He had heard from Lady Dorothy that the little French girl had been nearly wild with the fear that her husband, Sir George Opie, was guilty, thinking he had committed the deed when he went out to look for the two men * * * for she knew that a feud existed between him and Lord Winston, due to some political difference. She had heard her husband say that Lord Winston had better have a care; he, Sir George Opie, was a patient man, but beware of the wrath of a patient man, and he had stood all that was humanly possible. He had said that to her when dressing for dinner on the very night of the tragedy, and it was why she was so anxious to believe Robin guilty, and it explained her strangeness at the inquest, which he had noted and wondered about at the time. What Lady Dorothy had told him had made Robin feel betrayed; that this little French girl, the first girl he had ever kissed, had been so ready to sacrifice him for her funny, old husband, had been a shock. He couldn't answer her note after that.

But it was the trial which had just come to an end which oftenest returned to Robin's thoughts. He had only gone to give his evidence; he had dreaded the publicity too much to stay for the rest. But he had read about it in all the papers, and Inspector Linscott had paid him a visit one night and given him a vivid account of the affair. The trial had cleared up all the obscure bits, and the entire story of that fateful night was now known, as well as the history of the strange criminal who had been guilty.

From Flint's own evidence the following facts developed relative to the early circumstances of his life which ultimately led to the murder. It appeared that after his murder of Pierre Legrange, which he asserted in court was done in self-defense, he, when Bruin Peters, made good his escape and chummed up with a man by the name of Donald Flint. This man Flint died, and it occurred to Bruin Peters that, without doing anyone any harm, here was a way out for him. Appropriating the man's papers and clothes—they were about the same build—he stepped out boldly into the world a new man, no longer Bruin Peters, but Donald Flint. And went to a new country—Australia! As for Bruin Peters, thank God, he was dead! Were not Bruin Peter's papers found on the body of Flint? The news was published in the Press, and duly a copy of the paper containing this item was sent to Lord Winston—by the new Donald Flint himself! The reason was obvious enough. Bruin Peters wished Lord Winston to believe that he was dead and out of the way. He still nursed the idea of vengeance, implicitly believing that the day when he would be able to put it into effect would inevitably come, and the knowledge that Bruin Peters was dead would put Lord Winston off his guard.

Whatever ideas Peters had on the subject—and this was accounted to his credit—he put them behind him when the war came and joined up with an Australian regiment at the very outbreak of hostilities. He had distinguished himself, too, and was awarded medals for service, nearly winning the Victoria Cross. Whatever Bruin Peters was, he was not a coward. "A brave, audacious man," as the judge said of him in his summing-up, "but one without a sense of responsibility, who, if the facts were true against him, was not safe to have abroad in a civilized community."

Again, it developed that after the war Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, came to England and carried on what was then regarded as a legitimate commerce in money. He bought the fluctuating currency of one country when it was down and sold it when it was up. He was very clever at this, and had a most remarkable sense of what would happen in the money markets of the world. In this way he had amassed a vast fortune.

Well it would have been for the brilliant financier if he limited himself to these activities (observed the judge), but no! He must still harbor in his breast savage feelings of vengeance. He had hated Lord Winston with a wild, implacable hatred, and he had stubbornly resolved that nothing would deviate him from his early resolution to avenge himself on a man who had dared to make the attempt to turn him over to justice for the murder of Pierre Legrange.

Regarding the knife—the knife bearing the damning initials of "B. P." "Witness at the Bar of Justice made the deposition," observed the judge, "that he had always kept the knife on his person because a fortune-teller once told him that as long as he was in personal possession of the knife no harm could come to him. What an irony that, in more senses than one, the prophecy had come true. If he had only resisted the impulse for this inexcusable murder! If if he had had the astuteness to withdraw the knife from the body of the murdered man, the one piece of really damaging evidence would have been gone and an innocent man might have suffered the extreme penalty in his stead! Did the prisoner," he wondered, "ever give thought to this singular circumstance after the deed was accomplished? Did he, as a superstitious man, believing in the accuracy of fortune-tellers' predictions, reflect afterward on the dread circumstance of his having left his talisman on the body of Lord Winston? The days following the murder must have been a severe tax on a man of the prisoner's credulity. He, for one, could imagine the prisoner's mental strain, as he realized his one terrible blunder, the one slip which the cleverest criminals are bound sooner or later to make."

At this moment all eyes were turned on the prisoner. Murmurs ran through the courtroom. Later men and women were to tell each other how they saw Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, suddenly grow pale.

But now the prisoner, having discovered his dire lack, realized that he still had the sheath—the sheath, without the knife, was worse than useless as a talisman. Indeed, it was a possession he had better do without. And all evidence of guilt pointing to the poor poet, he had plenty of time to dispose of it in the garden shrubbery. It found, he had little to fear. All the more, since the incriminating initials, by one of those curious coincidences not as all uncommon in the annals of crime, conveniently fitted another week-end guest in the house. Not that the prisoner made a deliberate effort to throw the guilt on Prince Boris Posolevsky. He was far too clever for that. With deliberate cunning he emptied the dead man's pockets and threw two precious objects belonging to Lord Winston out of the window, doubtless with the intention of giving the impression that the murder was committed for gain by some stranger from the outside. The jury had heard, said the court, the deposition of Mr. Willis Hanson on this point.

Were there any extenuating circumstances to the benefits of which the prisoner was entitled? The court did not think so. It was plain, brutal murder without a single palliating circumstance. Nevertheless, it was the duty of the jury to review the depositions made by the prisoner.

Here Inspector Linscott had sketched out for Robin the main points of evidence as presented by Bruin Peters. How clearly it all came back to Robin on this warm August morning as he sat at his desk looking dreamily out at the fine old trees of Mecklenburgh square!

"The fellow had actually the cheek to plead self-defense," Linscott had said, after giving Robin Smith the benefit of the judge's and the counsel's remarks.

"Self-defense? How could he?" Robin had exclaimed.

"Oh, he had a wonderful yarn to tell, he did. You may depend on that!"

How vividly the story had brought back to Robin the events of that fatal night! How insignificant had appeared his petty annoyance at the tiny room in the face of revelations regarding this master criminal and his terrific impulses! In his story of his own flight, of his locking the door to the little room and leaping through the window, and of walking to the station in the storm, had seemed fantastic to the coroner's jury that morning at Alston manor, how much more wild and unbelievable must the story of Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, appear to the breathless, crowded courtroom and to the attentive jury.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

1 pound raisins
1 pound currants
¼ pound of citron
½ pound butter
1 cup chopped nuts
4 cups flour
½ cup cider
1 cup sugar
½ cup tart jelly
½ cup sour cream
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup molasses
5 eggs.
1 tablespoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg.

Prepare all the fruit before mixing it. Cut the citron into very small pieces. Cream the butter and sugar. Separate the eggs and add the yolks after the butter and sugar are blended. Add the liquids—cider, jelly, sour cream and molasses. Mix the salt, soda and spices with one-half the flour. Mix the other half of the flour with the fruit and nuts. Add the dry ingredients gradually to the liquid ingredients, then the floured fruit, and last, the whites of the eggs. If the fruit is well covered with flour, it will be scattered through the cake and will not settle to the bottom.

Bake the cake in a tube pan with greased paper in a slow oven. A low fire allows the heat to penetrate the cake mixture slowly and does not dry it out and burn the crust.

If the recipe for this cake is doubled it should be baked in two pans. It is better to bake fruit in medium-sized loaves rather than in large loaves.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

He is James S. Stembridge and his interest in firearms is no hobby, but a business.

He doesn't even have a cap pistol in his home and he last fired a gun six years ago. Guns to him, be they old - time German wheel locks or the deadly Thompson machines, are just a living.

His collection numbers about 5,000 pieces and he says he has about $80,000 invested.

The only kind of gun Stembridge does not own is a Chinese matchlock, or hand cannon, as it used to be called, which came into use more than 500 years ago. There are few in the world and collectors refuse to sell.

Stembridge was a drill sergeant in the United States Army for six years, until 1899.

Because of his Army experience Stembridge was hired by the old Lasky movie company to drill potential Army recruits among its employes for a short time each day. That he might have full-time work he was put in charge of the gun department.

Prop Guns.

The Lasky movie guns were not only insufficient in number, but unfirable, so Stembridge took it upon himself to purchase a number of out-of-date Army rifles. The next time guns were required in a picture he brought out his.

Then Stembridge saw the possibilities of such a business and so began to buy nearly every gun he could find. He has several sets of dueling pistols, some of them 100 or more years old. He has sent to all parts of the world for firearms of every nation and of every period.

He makes periodical visits to second-hand stores, picking up old weapons. He has friends in and out of the Army, who write him when they discover a pistol or rifle they think should be in his collection.

In Passing.

Monte Blue is back from a long vacation, undecided whether to retire or keep on working. * * * He says he is financially independent. * * * Claudette Colbert will be starred next year because of "Manslaughter" and "Young Man of Manhattan." * * * She and her husband, Norman Foster, are on a trip around the world in a freighter. * * *

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD.

Men Are Lonely, Too!

DOES the laundry do your mending? And do you congratulate yourself daily that no woman has any strings on you and your precious independence? Well, sir, you are riding for a fall! A long, lean gray old age, that's what! "Rheumatism is bad, but being a mean old dreary bachelor is worse than rheumatism with a touch of flu!" If you know what is best for you, you will read every word of Gregory's letter and his yourself forth and get you a wife. "A cantankerous wife is better than no wife," says Gregory. That shows about how poor ole Greg feels about this independence business.

Dear Miss McDonald — You are touching upon one of the greatest spiritual problems of the day when you discuss with young people the present tendency to live in the moment, ignoring the future, through a desire to get the most pleasure at the least cost to self. Young women see in marriage new cares and hard work, a curb to freedom and an end of lavish pleasures. It is a picture they do not care to contemplate. They crave escorts, not protectors. They want fun, not care.

The men are even worse. They dread the thought of being snared into marriage. They fly from the girl who interests them or threatens to become irresistible. They are a pack of fools. I was one of the cowardly brood. I was worse. I was a cad. The girl loved me and let me see that she did. I pretended boredom. But I was terrified. I was living well at a club for men. I could have my clothes kept always immaculate. I could afford a trip occasionally. To yield to the temptation of loving a woman meant curtailment of my comfort and the surrender of my rights as a man. Poor fool. It never occurred to me that I would never be a man until I possessed one woman for my own. It never once occurred to me that in denying love for comfort I was thwarting the best and surrendering to defeat. Well the girl continued to defer to me, depend upon me. A dear and lovely thing she was. And I actually resigned my job and accepted a post out of town to escape what I told myself were her "schemes" to snare me.

She was a stricken soul the last night I saw her. A hurt thing defenseless. I told her I would not write. And she knew I would not. A year later she married and if you can believe it I resented the fact. That is just the sort of pup I was. I told myself it just proved that any man would do. She was out to snare a man and if one escaped another would do. She is a lovely, gray-eyed, gray-haired, graceful mother of two grown girls today. Still slender, still quiet, still sensitive about my part in her life. The color flooda that sweet girl's face on the few occasions when we meet. The hurt has never healed. I do not mean that she still cares. But she still remembers the affront to her spirit.

I am an unpopular, rheumatic, bald-headed pest who eats Christmas dinner in a restaurant and wonders why nothing ever tastes like food. Good enough for me. But let me tell you this staying single shrivels the very soul out of your body. I am a wreck of what some woman could have made me. I was not a bad sort at 25. I just grew to be what I am. And I deserve all that is still ahead. And about 50 years lie ahead. My father's father died at the age of 90. Well, rheumatism is bad, but the fate of being a mean old dreary bachelor is worse than rheumatism with a touch of flu. Get the young folks married. It is the only normal way. Even a cantankerous wife is better than no wife. And any married man is happier at heart than the happiest bachelor—and more a man than any ten stuffed shadows eating Christmas dinner in hotel dining rooms. GREGORY.

Fifth Ave. Fashions

NEW YORK

806

It isn't any wonder! It's so practical, simple and smart.

Young ladies of 8, 10, 12 and 14 years look best in this one-piece type for classroom.

The belt is adjustable and may be worn high or at the natural waistline.

Style No. 806 takes but 3½ yards of 39-inch material with ½ yard of 35-inch contrasting for the misa of 8 years.

Your Name

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFFERARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Barrett" has come down to us from many quite different sources. In most cases it is of French and ultimately of Teutonic origin, and means either "the bear" or "bear might." Occasionally it is of purely French origin and means "he who lives at the barrier or gate." An Agnes Barat and a Harvey Baret are mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Huggett" (also spelled "Hughitt") means "little Hugh." "Hugh" is ultimately of Teutonic origin and means "mind" and "intelligence." An English parish document of the year 1520 records the marriage of a certain Thomas Hughet.

The family name "Derrick" is a shortened form of the personal name "Theodorick." "Theodorick" is of Teutonic origin and means "people ruler" or "mighty ruler." A certain Mary Deryke is mentioned in an English marriage license of the year 1545.

The family name "Sibbet" is of English origin and means "little Sibb." In most cases "Sibb" is a shortened form of the personal name "Sibyl" and is therefore one of the relatively few family names based on the names of women. "Sibyl" is ultimately of Greek origin and means "the prophetess." In some cases "Sibb" is a shortened form of "Sibba" which is an old Anglo-Saxon personal name meaning "peace" and "happiness." A third source is the Anglo-Saxon personal name "Sigeboda" which means "victorious messenger" or "messenger of victory." "Sibbet" has been especially common in North Durham.

The family name "Werner" is of German origin. Its source is the old Germanic personal name "Warinheri" which means "protecting army" or "true army."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Just Toys.

Until very recently toys were considered by parents merely a means of keeping their children quiet and out of the way.

One spent money on toys either for this admitted purpose of self-defense against the too insistent claims of children on one's own time and attention, or because one was so soft-hearted as to indulge their wishes and delight in making them happy.

Only recently have we begun to understand the real function of playthings in a child's life. Our perception undoubtedly has been sharpened by the increasing restrictions placed upon children's play opportunities through the disappearance of back-yards, vacant lots and through increased apartment-living.

Toys, we have come to learn, are an essential part of the child's education. They give him that sense of mastery over his environment which for years he will be unable to experience in any realistic way, but which is, nevertheless, so necessary as a stimulation to mental growth and to the development of avenues of interest and expression.

The enlightened mother of today takes toys seriously. She discovers through reading or through the advice of specialists in the field what toys are suitable for her children at different levels of development.

She studies their individual interests with a view to encouraging their special aptitudes through suitable play materials.

She also sees to it that her children's playthings are such as to stimulate them to the activities which are necessary for their rounded development. The allotment for money for toys has a recognized place in her budget.

She knows that proper playthings are to be classed among the necessities of a child's life.

SAMPLE STEEL ROAD TESTED IN ILLINOIS

Has Concrete Surface and May Revolutionize Building of Highways.

NEW MARKET IS SEEN

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Highways of steel, with concrete surfaces, may revolutionize road building and provide a new market for steel products.

A test section of roadway with a steel base has been laid near Springfield, and upon practical results of it may depend whether such highways will come into general use.

The road has a carefully rolled and prepared subgrade on which an iron base and curb are laid. Over the steel is laid a mastic sand cushion upon which is placed a layer of 2½-inch or 3-inch brick with asphaltic filler poured into interstices between bricks.

The result, engineers hope, will be an indestructible base with a smooth riding surface possessing sufficient flexibility to meet changes of temperature without breaks or cracks.

An additional advantage claimed for the new highway by engineers is its mobility.

If it becomes desirable to move a part of the highway it may be picked up in sections, without destroying the slabs, they say, and sections may be taken up for repair without seriously disrupting the highway for traffic.

Three 50-foot sections made up the 150-foot test highway. A different kind of steel base has been placed under each section in an effort to determine the best.

Under one, blue annealed flat steel sheets are used; galvanized and corrugated sheets under the other two.

The sample highway section, now a part in a principal roadway, is being tested under actual traffic conditions and it also will be subjected soon to rigors of winter contraction and spring expansion.

Venizelos to Take War Post.

Athens, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Premier Venizelos, already minister of aviation, is to assume another cabinet post when the chamber of deputies meets again. He will become minister of war, succeeding the present minister, Sophoules, who is to be elected speaker of the chamber.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau, Washington, Wednesday, Nov. 12—8 p. m.

The disturbance that was central over northern Manitoba Tuesday night is moving slowly eastward over the Hudson Bay region and northern Ontario. Churchill, Man., 29.38 inches, while another disturbance that appeared off the coast of Washington this morning has moved rapidly eastward to Montana and Wyoming with greatly increased intensity. Helena, Mont., 29.42 inches. Another disturbance of marked intensity is over extreme western Alaska. Bethel, 29.12 inches, and pressure remains low over the Greenland-Iceland area. Relatively low pressure still prevails over the Gulf of Mexico and the lower Mississippi Valley. New Orleans, La., 30.02 inches. Pressure is still high, but falling from Newfoundland southwestward to Tennessee and Georgia. Sable Island, N. S., 30.42 inches, and an extensive area of high pressure is moving southeastward over Yukon and the District of Mackenzie. Dawson, 30.86 inches. This pressure distribution has been attended by rain during the last 24 hours in the Southern States, the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region, and from the North Pacific Coast eastward to Montana. The rainfall was heavy in portions of Georgia, Alabama, and eastern Tennessee. The temperature has risen in the Northeastern States and the middle Rocky Mountain and middle Plateau regions and it has fallen from the North Pacific Coast eastward to Minnesota and Manitoba.

The weather will continue cloudy and unsettled with occasional rain over the greater part of the Washington forecast district Thursday. There will be considerable cloudiness on Friday and the Montana disturbance will likely cause rain by Friday night as far East as the Appalachian region. The temperature will continue mild until Friday night, when considerably colder weather will overspread the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the lower Lake region.

GIBSON ADVOCATES ARMS COMPROMISE

U. S. Would Fix Limitation While Other Powers Draw Up Budgetary Treaty.

WELCOMED AT GENEVA

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Delegates to the League of Nations Preparatory Disarmament Commission continued deadlocked today on a plan of limiting land and air armaments.

Hugh S. Gibson, American representative, in reiterating the opposition of the United States to limitation by fixing a budget of expenditures, suggested if the other powers wished to draw up a treaty based on budgetary limitation while leaving the United States free to use her own method of direct limitation with full publicity, the plan would be acceptable to the United States.

Spokesmen for several nations made friendly references to the American compromise plan today, although the French delegate, Massigli, was very critical of it, contending budgetary limitation, while not perfect, was the best available method of achieving limitation.

Attitude of Japan.

Objections to direct limitation, by naming the maximum number of each article useful in warfare, were voiced on behalf of Japan, France, Roumania, Czechoslovakia, Belgium and Jugoslavia. The principal objection was that it was inexact and impossible to execute with close supervision which might inflame nationalistic spirits.

The United States, Russia, Canada, Sweden and Holland have advocated direct limitation.

Japan declared its opposition to both direct and budgetary limitation of military effectives represented a sufficient form of disarmament.

Gibson Plan Upheld.

Employment of both methods, as suggested by Mr. Gibson, was urged by representatives of Italy, Great Britain, Russia and Sweden and viewed favorably by others if neither one nor the other of the principal plans can be agreed upon.

Representatives of Russia, Italy, Sweden and Holland have declared their willingness to employ any or all methods if only real limitation could be achieved.

Several representatives said the combination idea, as advanced by the United States, might eventually be useful in reaching an agreement.

"Good News," Says Belgian.

The Czechoslovakian delegate termed it interesting, saying adoption of a compromise disarmament convention would be better than prolongation of the discussion.

Eric Colban, delegate of Norway, said he approved of the American plan if a compromise should prove necessary.

Agents to Inquire Into Liquor Plane

Sheriff's Deputies Guard Heavy Rum Cargo in Mississippi.

Columbia, Miss., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Inauguration of sky liquor transportation in the South was believed to have had its wings clipped by sheriff's deputies, who today guarded a large cabin plane pending arrival of Federal prohibition investigators.

The plane, said to be the first liquor plane ever seized in the Southern district, was destined for Grand Rapids, Mich., when forced down yesterday at Sandy Hook, Miss., near the Louisian State line.

The pilot, James W. Kupla, of Muskegon, Mich., was arrested by Sheriff W. B. Walsdorf and was quoted as saying he knew he was carrying a heavy load, but had no idea it was liquor. The sheriff did not detain the plane's passenger, Jack Miller, of Grand Rapids. Kupla is said to be president and manager of the Lake Shores Airways Co., of Muskegon, and manager of the Muskegon Airport.

3 Sought in Robbery Of Kidnaped General

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Police here today sought three youths who last night had kidnaped and robbed Brig. Gen. Robert M. Brookfield, commander of the Fifty-sixth Infantry Brigade, Pennsylvania National Guard. The general, a World War veteran, had participated in the Armistice Day ceremonies.

While driving toward his home in civilian clothes he consented to give a "lift" to three youths. Soon afterward a gun was pressed against the general's side and he was ordered, "Drive where I tell you." Near Merion the general was told to stop the car. After taking his wallet, containing $45, the men evicted him from the car and drove away.

Coste Begins Tour of France.

A Message to the People of Washington

Having previewed the latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Min and Bill," featuring Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, I feel that, as a manager in the theatrical profession, it is my duty to recommend this picture to you. It is filled from beginning to end with a battle of a woman for her adopted child against the child's mother. True, there is comedy, such as has never been enacted before by Miss Dressler or Mr. Beery, but the predominant note is that of a love which, harsh as it was, could not be stifled even though a life was in the balance.

M. J. CULLEN,
Managing Director Loew's Washington Theaters

"MIN and BILL" COMES TO LOEW'S COLUMBIA THEATER SATURDAY

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THE return of the "Western" to a place of honor on the screen in these later days of the dialogue films is a noteworthy fulfillment of the prophecy made many months ago by astute observers of the popular trend.

A number of colorful characters, including 50 wealthy Osage Indians, were imported to Hollywood from Oklahoma for the filming of "Cimarron," the camera-and-microphone version of the novel of the same name by Edna Ferber. Among them was C. R. Bowiden.

Bowiden is supervising the use and repair of saddles and harness for the horses used in the picture and is also enacting the role of a one-legged plainsman, "Stubby" Holt.

In 1889 Bowiden was in the first land "run," not to obtain a home site but to dole out drinks to the parched of throat and the thirsty by nature. His saloon was the first in Lawton, Okla. He lost one of his legs when a stray bullet lodged in it. His work, at least, should be realistic.

Then there are Ernest Torrence and Tully Marshall, who will play the same characters in "Fighting Caravans" that they had in "The Covered Wagon," several years ago.

Torrence's role is that of Bill Johnson, a fictional character created by Emerson Hough and used again by Zane Grey in "Fighting Caravans," while Marshall's is that of Jim Bridger, an historical character famous in the old days as an Indian fighter.

Both will have aged fifteen years, as the action of the new picture is laid in 1863, whereas events in "The Covered Wagon" were supposed to have occurred in 1848.

This, by the way, is about the period of "The Big Trail," which opens at the Fox tomorrow.

In expatiating upon the divers virtues of the new oversize screen upon which "The Big Trail"—or at least parts of it—is to be projected, Tuesday's column should have mentioned that this new installation at the Fox is the last word in such gadgets—or maybe I mean widgets.

The size of the image thrown upon the silver sheet is under pushbutton control. At any time during the projection of the picture the visible scene can be expanded from standard dimensions to those filling the proscenium, or vice versa, by the mere punching of a thingumabob.

If this button is to be added to the array on the desk-top of Managing Director Hardie Meakin, this department suggests that he hire an experienced button-puncher to preside over the signal board exclusively. The other day Mr. Meakin punched for Treasurer Hawley and the week's pay roll and got a Jugoslovakian field marshal with a double coca-cola in one hand and a 1930-31 model salute in the other!

Itching palm note:
Tomorrow, Friday, November 14, Dr. Jane B. Coates, who is in her second week of psychic readings in the Temple of Apollo foyer of the Rialto Theater, announces she will give her famous money vibrations to all and sundry who may present themselves.

Dr. Coates claims that after a subject has received her money vibrations she—the subject—immediately comes into possession of money. Sometimes the sums are small, but in many instances they are said to have been large.

Since these compensatory vibrations are dispensed free of charge, what can you lose?

Next week's attractions in the downtown, first-run picture houses—in case you have been worrying about it—will be as follows: Fox, John Wayne, Marguerite Churchill, Tully Marshall, Tyrone Power, Ian Keith, El Brendel and a cast of thousands in "The Big Trail," and stage show; Columbia, Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery in "Min and Bill;" RKO-Keith's, Maurice Chevalier, Frances Dee, Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin in "Playboy of Paris;" Rialto, Lupe Velez and Lewis Ayres in "East Is West;" Earle, Charles Bickford and Evalyn Knapp in James Oliver Curwood's "River's End" and Lillian Roth and other vaudeville acts; Palace, George Bancroft in "Derelict" and stage show; Metropolitan, Lila Lee and Joe Frisco in "The Gorilla."

And speaking of coming attractions, there is that "Just Imagine" production that was previewed a few midnights ago.

It is an aerial age that is visualized in "Just Imagine," the year being 1980. Planes have changed materially in design and control and flit about the altitudinous traffic lanes in most bewildering fashion. The setting for these startling introductory revelations is one of the most ingenious and most striking I have ever seen.

The whole system of living, as a matter of fact, is greatly simplified. Fifty years hence, according to the story, when one is hungry it will be customary to order a filet mignon tablet or a chicken dinner pill from a vending machine on the street, just as you buy gum and peanuts today.

Television will have become so perfected that it will not be safe to answer the phone without dressing.

Men's clothing, traffic, customs, legal procedure—everything, in fact—will have changed, except romance, some of Joe Miller's jokes and El Brendel's gags. Maureen O'Sullivan, the little Irish girl who made her debut with John McCormack in "Song o' My Heart," and John Garrick, the leads, will fall in love in the same old way—but will not be permitted to marry until after John has made a successful trip to Mars in a rocket plane invented by Hobart Bosworth. Queer ducks, those Martians!

There was a great chance here for an imaginative and thoroughly novel picture. "Just Imagine" is imaginative and novel. It seems to me, however, that it should have been more so. If you were to ask me, after you have seen it, how it could have been, I probably would not be able to tell you—but the conviction still persists.

Well, anybow, we will all know in time—for example, I'll only be 133 in 1980, so what t'ell?

If the wagon doesn't come around pretty soon, what you say we burn all those leaves and have it over with?

McBride Is Called Failure by Editor

Prohibition's Fate Will Be Decided in Two Years, C. C. Morrison Says.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, is labeled a failure as a dry leader by Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, a leading dry publication. He calls for a complete reorganization of the drys, without the dominant pose of the Antisaloon League.

"The fate of prohibition will be determined in the next two years," he said. "It will stand if the people who believe in it can be rallied to one standard. It will fall if the present drift is allowed to continue. Broad leadership is lacking."

Discussing the omens of the recent election, Mr. Morrison said it was well within possibility that the Republican party might not adhere to a dry platform.

"The drys," he said, "will not meet the conflict lying down. They have been sleeping in the security of constitutional law. If public opinion is preponderantly unfavorable, the law will not succeed; the majority of people in the United States are dry."

Cold in Head, Chest or Throat?

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole rub once an hour for five hours . . . what a glorious relief!

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—jars, tubes. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

SOVIET PLOT CHARGE AMUSING TO BRITONS

HELD TO BE PROPAGANDA

London, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Soviet indictments of eight prominent Russians for alleged counter-revolutionary plotting with British and French governmental figures were believed here today to be a form of domestic propaganda, not to be taken seriously abroad.

Mild amusement was the reaction in authoritative London circles. Sir Henri Deterding, international oil leader, who was one of the men accused by the Moscow prosecutor, N. V. Krylenko, of plotting the overthrow of the Moscow regime, laughed outright and commented:

"That story is a confession of weakness. The Bolsheviks have to concoct stories like that to disguise the fact that their whole system is breaking up. The end is near."

Sir Henri was particularly interested to learn that the names of those accused as his coconspirators in the counter-revolutionary enterprise included "Col. Lawrence, of Arabia;" "Lord Churchill," believed to be Mr. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer; "Director Simon," believed to be Sir John Simon, Liberal leader, and Sir Phillip, of Vickers.

Neither Winston Churchill nor Sir John Simon has ever had more than a passing interest in Russian matters. It was commented that "Aircraftsman Shaw," as "Col. Lawrence, of Arabia," is listed on the royal air force records, would have little time for his duties with the British flying service if he were connected with all the plots Moscow ascribed to him.

There is widespread feeling here that the two indictments are intended to bring about a greater union of the Russian people behind their government through their opposition to a common external enemy. There is considerable compassion for the eight Russians who must stand trial on the indictments. If proved guilty they are liable to sentences of death.

Assumed Name Delays Mrs. McPherson in Cuba

Havana, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Aimee Semple McPherson arrived here aboard the S. S. Tolos today but was not permitted to land until she had satisfactorily explained why she had embarked from Panama under the name of Miss Betty Adams, and had registered her nationality as "English."

The evangelist was indignant with newspapermen who revealed her identity to the purser of the ship.

Schooner's Crew of 13 Escapes in Shipwreck

Apia, Samoa, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Her crew of thirteen escaped death when the auxiliary schooner Rahra sank off Pukapuka Island, it was revealed with arrival here of Capt. Delmer, Engineer George Mann and two natives.

Leaving the other members of the crew at Pukapuka, the four men sailed here in five days, using a 19-foot open boat. Capt. Delmer said the Rahra was lying off Pukapuka October 31, when a squall drove the schooner onto a reef, wrecking her. The crew escaped in lifeboats.

DO-X Will Continue Tomorrow.

Calshot, England, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. Claude Dornier announced here today that the German seaplane DO-X will start Friday morning for Bordeaux, on the third stage of her transatlantic flight to New York.

ROBBERS SHOT DOWN IN HOLDUP OF BANK

$2,000 THEFT IS FOILED

Ponca City, Okla., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Two young bandits who robbed the Mariand State Bank of $2,000 shortly after it opened for business today were paid off in lead—hot lead from the guns of police officers.

Jimmie Jackson, 24, an Indian, of Pawhuska, Okla., fell dying from the open door of the bandit car, and Carter Camp, 22, also of Pawhuska, sprawled wounded in the street and begged officers not to kill him.

A tip several days ago resulted in the officers' trap into which the two bandits unwittingly walked.

A. B. Cooper, of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification, stationed himself in a store adjoining the bank this morning. The rest of the party, including Art Redman, Ponca City chief of police, were across the street in the J. W. Elkins grocery store.

About 9:45 o'clock a brown coupe drove up in front of the bank and two men dressed in painters' white overalls and white jumpers, with handkerchiefs tied over their faces, jumped out. The two ran into the bank.

J. C. Roberts, cashier, and V. N. Ehler, customer, were alone. Whipping out pistols the robbers forced Ehler against the wall.

Roberts was compelled to open the safe and drew out $2,000 in cash, in two leather bags. The men seized the money and ran to the waiting car.

At this moment the officers burst from the store across the street. Calling "throw up your hands," the officers began firing when the men jumped for their car.

Lodge Official's Death Investigated in Denver

Denver, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Authorities started an inquiry into the death of H. H. Hunt, 50, chief of the investigation service of the Woodmen of the World, with headquarters in Denver, who died today in an ambulance en route to a hospital.

Hunt fell to the floor in his office after taking what fellow employes believed was medicine. Associates said he had complained of feeling ill. The powdered substance left after Hunt had taken part of it was turned over to a laboratory for analysis.

Kemal, on Farm, Makes Talkie With Daughter

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, President of Turkey, and his adopted daughter, Afet Hanim, soon will visit the United States—via the talkies.

Introduced to the moving picture audiences by the American Ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, the Turkish President, in a brief talk, declared the Turkish people nourish a profound affection for democracy and Americans. The picture was made at Kemal's farm at Angora.

Reward Posted to Spur Missing Guard's Rescue

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—A reward of $500 today was offered jointly by Auburn State Prison and Dannemora State Prison for the finding of Herbert M. Short, sergeant of guards at Auburn, lost in the Adirondacks since last Wednesday when he strayed from other members of a hunting party.

Troopers, game wardens, forest rangers, prison guards and volunteers went into the woods this morning to begin the seventh day of search for Short.

Investment Bankers In Philadelphia Close

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The investment banking firm of Smith Brothers & Co., member of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange, closed its doors to business today, but later is said to have opened again.

On the doors was posted a notice stating that "Smith Brothers & Co. have this day decided to cease business and are therefore voluntarily liquidating their affairs."

Death Plot Laid To Three in Court

Man Alleged to Have Been Paid $60 Retainer for Proposed Murder.

Alleged to have conspired to kill Walter Hickman, Negro, Charles A. Taylor, Lettie Hickman and Fannie King, all colored, were arraigned in Police Court yesterday and held for action of the Grand Jury on charges of conspiracy to slay.

According to testimony at the Police Court hearing, the two women gave Taylor $60 and promised him $100 more to kill Hickman. Taylor, police said, took Hickman to the races at Laurel, Md., and after both had lost their money is said to have revealed the plot.

Taylor, according to the police, told Hickman, "I got that money to 'bump you off.' Now I haven't any money, so you wire your wife, tell her you are dead and we will split the other money." Hickman did not wire, but phoned police and Taylor was arrested.

MILLS SEES HOPE FOR GEORGETOWN AGAINST N. Y. U.

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—There was some humor in the report of the Penn alumni committee, condemning the football coaches for imposing on their sporting reputations, largely earned by the athletes who served under them, to pick up incidental money.

One of the signatories to this indignant document was William T. Tilden, the great tennis player. It happens that I have seen Mr. Tilden's name and face writ large upon the advertisements on behalf of a brand of merchandise, have seen articles in the press given under his name and have read of his occasional forays into the drama. My memory, like Gene Tunney's, is fallible, and I trust that Mr. Tilden will forgive me if I err, but I think the article of merchandise with which his name and countenance were so boldly associated at a time when he was prominent as a tennis player was a brand of cigarettes.

Yet I can hardly believe my recollection as to this detail because only last summer his old friend and doubles partner, Mr. Francis T. Hunter, assured me that William was not a smoker. Somewhere, something must be wrong. Either the article of commerce to which Mr. Tilden subscribed his name and photograph was something else or Mr. Hunter was mistaken. At any rate, I am sure that I have seen Mr. Tilden's indorsements in the ads and, although he was billed there as an actor of note, there are sure to be those who will take exception to this, whereas nobody would ever deny that he was a celebrated tennis player.

Tilden Gave Indorsement Free, Perhaps.

Testimonials, syndicated articles and public appearances are the three principal activities to which the football coaches resort for their pickings or incidental money. Perhaps Mr Tilden gave his indorsement free, which would absolve him of commercialism in this respect, although I see no reason why he should have given this by-product away. His reputation is his to do with as he pleases. His newspaper and magazine material has been widely sold, too, and I will admit that it has been unique among the product of the athletic literati in the respect that it was pretty good stuff.

Yet, from my knowledge of the newspaper syndicate business, I should say that his reputation as an actor and the quality of the articles, combined, could not have sold his stuff as prosperously as it was sold if he had not been able to back up these sales factors with his resounding fame as an athlete, technically an amateur. Otis Skinner, writing on tennis, would not have done half as well.

Tilden's career in the drama has not been one of the outstanding successes of the age, and I would not infer that he has profiteered on his tennis reputation at the theatrical box-office, because the profits do not seem to have been excessive. However, there was a time here in New York just before the opening of a work in which he appeared as the star and, also, I believe, as the author, when the officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association issued a polite informal call upon the devotees of tennis to rally round and give William, the actor, a great big hand on opening night.

New testimonials, syndicated articles and personal appearances all are legal lines of commerce or industry, and no man is to be held up to ridicule for such activities. But, to the public, Mr. Tilden is first and always a tennis player, and it is no more reprehensible of a football coach to do the things which the Penn alumni condemned in their report than for a Davis Cup star to do them. Divest Knute Rockne of his reputation as a football coach and his value as a journalist and public speaker would be greatly diminished, but divest Mr. Tilden of his tennis reputation and he becomes only a little better than commonplace journalist and an actor of no great distinction.

Even Bobby Jones Changed Mind.

The code of propriety in amateur sport is being revised by custom in the direction of liberality. Even Bobby Jones, who for years resolutely refused to compose syndicated essays on golf for profit on the ground that his reputation must necessarily figures in the sales to a far greater extent than the value of his thoughts and the excellence of his writing, presently changed his mind and established a big practice in journalism. He is now one of the most gifted journalists in the world, judging his ability by his earnings and conceding that he is not exploiting his sporting reputation. He is also in receipt of more money for his essays on golf than most of the candid professionals receive for instruction and prize competition.

Yet he is an amateur golfer still and an official of the United States Golf Association. Mr. Tilden, also, is an amateur tennis player.

In the course of time the last trace of the old fastidiousness regarding the exploitation of sporting reputations will vanish. A few years hence, if the game does not blow up

Burke Shoots 145 to Win Tourney

Turnesa, Armour and French Tie for 2d at Pinehurst.

Keen Battle Waged in Rain; Sarazen Quits, Disgusted.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Billy Burke, of Roundhill Country Club, Greenwich, Conn., stroked his way through the rain today to win the eleventh annual mid-South golf tournament and $400 in prize money.

Showers that fell almost all day slowed up the field and ran the scores high but Burke's 74 in the morning and par 71 in the afternoon gave him a total of 145 that was two strokes better than his nearest competitors.

Gene Sarazen, former national open champion, quit in disgust on the ninth hole when his clubs played him false in the wet weathe.

Emmet French, of Youngstown, Ohio; Tommy Armour, of Detroit, and Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., divided second third and fourth prize money of $200, $150 and $100. Each turned in a 73 and a 74 for a total of 147.

Winner in Doubt Until End.

The winner was in doubt until the last player was in and that player was Armour, who battled his way homeward through a steady rain, across heavy greens and in the fading light of the evening.

Armour had a 73 for the morning round and went out in the afternoon in 37. Burke was already in and Armour needed a par 35 on the home nine to tie him. He had too much to contend with in the semidarkness, however, and took three putts on the twelfth to go one over par after a birdie 3 on the eleventh. The same thing happened on the fourteenth and eighteenth to blast the championship hopes of the former national open and Canadian open title holder.

Burke won the mid-South three years ago. He had a chance to better par and his winning margin on the last round but three putts on the shirt fourth and the ninth, and two on the eleventh spoiled his hopes.

Dunbar High Gridmen Defeat Manassas, 9-7

Dunubar High journeyed to Manassas, Va., yesterday and returned on the long end of a 9-to-7 victory over the Virginians.

Trailing, 7 to 2, until near the end of the fray, Dunbar pulled a surprise in the person of "Speed" Robinson, substitute center, who nabbed a Manassas forward pass on his 30-yard line and stepped to the winning tally. Queen rushed the extra point.

The Manassas outfit scored in the second period when Anderson intercepted a pass and ran 15 yards to a touchdown. Shipard rushed the extra point.

New Fordham Mascot Rescued From Cleaver

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The latest in an honorable line of Fordham football mascots began his reign today as Rameses IV. The new ram is a black one, considerably smaller and younger than his predecessor, Rameses III, which was killed by dogs on the campus on Sunday night.

Whether or not Rameses IV will bring victory to Fordham's unbeaten football team in its game with St. Mary's of California at the Polo Grounds Saturday, he already has established a reputation as a very lucky beast. He was snatched from the shadow of the butcher's cleaver at the Twenty-third street stock yards to become a monarch.

YALE DRILLS FOR TIGERS IN SECRET

Rutherfurd, Tackle, Lost to Princeton; Notes of East.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—As Yale's secret practice for the Princeton game continued today, Coach Hal Stevens kept the fans guessing as to what he would do with Albie Booth.

After replacing Booth with McLennan yesterday, Stevens returned him to the regular quarter back post today.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Princeton has lost the services of John Rutherfurd, regular tackle, for the Yale game it was announced today. He was injured playing against Lehigh Saturday. Gahagan probably will replace him. Trix Bennett appears slated for the quarter back job in his last game.

Harvard Gets Taste Of Warner System.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The Harvard Varsity Football Team had its first taste of Holy Cross new Warner attack today when it went through a dummy scrimmage with the seconds. Fordyce Blake, former Harvard lineman, who has been scouting the Purple all season, guided the scrubs in the demonstration of the plays that the Crimson will face on Saturday.

Boston College Leaves For Chicago.

Boston, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Coach Joe McKenney and a squad of 26 Boston College football players departed for Chicago today for the Eagles' second intersectional game of the season, with Loyola, Friday night, under the flood lights. The Eagles have already bowed before a midwestern rival, Marquette, but have high hopes of defeating their Chicago Jesuit rival.

Holy Cross Grooms Passes.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Holy Cross laid heavy stress on the forward passing game today as the Crusaders went through a two-hour drill in preparation for Saturday's annual clash with Harvard.

Army Varsity Gets Back to Work.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—With the entire squad in uniform for the first time since the Illinois game, Army's varsity had a light workout today, made up of calisthenics, a discussion of last Saturday's game and a bit of passing. The scrubs had a full session working with Kentucky Wesleyan, Ursinus and Notre Dame plays. Hillsinger, Carlmark and Suarez, injured players, did not report today.

Little Stresses Speed At Columbia.

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Coach Lou Little, of Columbia, put much emphasis on speed today as the Lions prepared for the Brown game. An hour of defensive dummy scrimmage and an equal time of offensive work in real scrimmage made up the workout.

Fordham Scrimmages With Frosh.

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Fordham had its first scrimmage in several weeks today as the Rams buckled down to hard work in preparation for the St. Mary's game. The scrimmage lasted only 15 minutes, but in that time the varsity scored three times against the freshmen.

Pitt Prepares Welcome For Fesler.

Pittsburgh, Nov 12 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh devoted its attention to defense against Ohio State plays and against Wesley Fesler in particular today. The scrub team used Ohio plays with a man playing the part of Fesler dropping back from the line to do the punting, passing and signal calling.

Pirates Sell Al Bool, Catcher, to Braves

Pittsburgh, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Al Bool, catcher, secured by the Pittsburgh Pirates from Baltimore of the International League, in 1929 for the 1930 season, today was released outright to the Boston Braves. The price involved was not divulged.

Bool, who batted .345 during his last season in the Interntional and accounted for 31 home runs, hit .260 in 77 games for the Pirates last season while serving as second-string catcher. Bool live on a farm near Lincoln, Nebr. He received a tryout with Washington two years ago.

Cards Acquire Collins; Bottomley Talk Revived

St. Louis, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—James (Rip) Collins, slugging young first baseman, has been purchased from Rochester, the St. Louis Cardinals' International League farm, it was announced today by Secretary Clarence Lloyd, of the Red Birds.

With his acquisition rumors are being revived that Jim Bottomley, veteran first sacker with the National League champions, may be used in a trade. After the recent world's series, however, Branch Rickey, general manager of the Cardinals, denied any trade of Bottomley was contemplated.

Cagle Admits Failure; To Play Again

Ex-Army Star Will Join Giants, New York Pro Team.

Lost 5 of 6 Games While Mississippi A. & M. Coach.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Chris Cagle, former star of the Army Football Team, has decided he likes playing much better than coaching and will take up professional football for the rest of the season. He has signed to play with the New York Giants, of the National League, Tom Mara, owner of that club, announced today.

In a letter which accompanied Cagle's signed contract the former Army ace said he was satisfied he was not much of a success as a coach and wanted to get back into the game as a player.

After eight years of college football at Southwestern Louisiana Institute and Army, Cagle signed this year to coach Mississippi A. & M. His team has lost five of its six games. Cagle is to leave Starkville, Miss., by airplane tomorrow and will arrive here in time for Sunday's game between the Giants and the Chicago Bears.

He is not expected to play until the following week against the Green Bay Packers.

Fordham Warns Fans Of Spurious Tickets

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Authorities at Fordham University issued a warning to the football public today to be on the lookout for counterfeit tickets for the game with St. Mary's at the Polo Grounds Saturday.

With the intersectional match apparently certain to draw a capacity crowd, it was said that counterfeits were in the hands of speculators. A number of spurious pasteboards were taken up at the gates at the Army-Illinois game here last Saturday.

A FOOTBALL team may be 17 touchdowns ahead in the last minute of play and still lose the game by a score of 1—0! It's funny, but it's true. A team, for one reason or another refusing to finish a game, forfeits and the score reverts to 1—0.

The school children of Korea, as you saw in yesterday's picture, use sand box slates for their readin,' ritin' and 'rithmatic. A very practical appliance for their writing, but it would be difficult for the English alphabet. The kids of Korea don't throw erasers at each other. They can't. Erasures are made by merely shaking the box.

Perhaps you have already figured this one out. But in any case it's a good problem to spring upon a friend. Here's how to measure exactly 7 gallons of water with two cans, one holding 5 gallons and the other 3 gallons. First fill the 5 gallon can, from its contents fill the 3 gallon can, thus leaving 2 gallons in the 5 gallon container. Now empty the 3 gallon can and put in it the 2 gallons left in the 5 gallon can. Fill the 5 gallon can and you have exactly 7 gallons.

Southern Elevens Leading All Rivals, East Is Second, in Intersection Games

Dixie Has Average of .560 With Midwest as Pet Victim.

Far West Now Third; Sections Opposed Again Saturday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—With 14 victories and 11 defeats, for an average of .560, the South is leading all rivals in the success of its college football teams in intersectional conflict, a tabulation of results so far indicated today.

The East is second with .543, the Far West third with .500 and the Middle West fourth with .462. The Southwest trails with .200 as a result of having tackled some of the Middle West's strongest teams.

In actual number of intersectional victories won, the East leads with 25, only one game ahead of the Middle West, which gained appreciably in the last week's play.

The private argument between the forces. The South, on the other hand, has proved a persistent jinx for the East and Middle West found the latter section forging ahead by winning five of its last nine games with Eastern rivals for a total of 17 victories to 16. Most of the more important games have gone to the Midwest

INTERSECTIONAL STANDINGS

	South	East	Far West	Midwest	Southwest	Won.	Ave.
South	..	4	0	9	1	14	.560
East	9	..	0	16	0	25	.543
Far West	0	0	..	2	0	2	.500
Midwest	2	17	2	..	3	24	.462
Southwest	0	0	0	1	..	1	.200
Lost	11	21	2	28	4	66

Far West and East Face First Clash.

The Far West tangles with the East for the first time this season Saturday when St. Mary's of California plays Fordham here. The Southwest will have a chance to fatten its average at the East's expense the same day, as Southern Methodist encounters the Navy. Other intersection conflicts this week are Ohio State-Pittsburgh, Iowa-Penn State, Pennsylvania-Georgia Tech, Loyola of Chicago vs. Boston College, Army-Kentucky Wesleyan and Villanova-Oglethorpe. The present stading:

HORTON SMITH RESTING.

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Horton Smith came home today to spend a week forgetting golf and resting at his home here. He is recuperating from an operation for removal of his tonsils. Smith said he was "not sure" if he would join the winter golf caravan in the Far West before the national match play championship at San Francisco early in December.

STADIUM IN BLUE.

Oglethorpe's new football stadium is being constructed of blue limestone to harmonize with the institution's other buildings.

DUBUQUE SEEKS YOUNG.

Friends of George Young, who managed the Burlington Bees of the Mississippi Valley League for the past two seasons, say that he is considering a tentative offer to pilot the Dubuque Tigers of the same circuit next year. If he lands the berth, Young will succeed Moose Woeber, who finished the season at the helm of the Tigers.

In an exhibition game players induced Lefty Grove to emulate that other great Athletic southpaw, Rube Waddell, and pull in all of his outfielders. Grove fanned the first two men and forced the other to ground out to first.

Ancient Football Rivalries Flare Again Saturday

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Football rivalries going back as far as 57 years will be renewed this Saturday. Among them are the following, the figures indicating when the teams first met, how they stand at present in games won, lost and tied and how they came out last year.

First Met	Games Won in Series	Ties	1929 Winner
1873	Yale 28, Princeton 16	9	Yale
1884	Williams 25, Amherst 17	4	Williams
1901	Wisconsin 12, Northwestern 1	3	Northwestern
1891	Colgate 17, Syracuse 10	4	Colgate
1897	Michigan 13, Minnesota 4	1	Michigan
1892	Nebraska 15, Missouri 6	2	Nebraska
1883	Chicago 17, Illinois 14	3	Illinois

western will take a chance of regaining its $100,000 advance on the extra receipts made at Soldier Feld, a stadium which can accommodate 55,000 to 65,000 more fans than Notre Dame's stadium.

President Walter Dill Scott, of Northwestern, in making the announcement, said he was confident that Notre Dame and the Western Conference would accept the conditions.

"Northwestern is in full accord with the conference athletic committee in that all games should be played on the college fields," President Scott said, "and in making the suggestion for the Notre Dame-Northwestern game in 1931, Northwestern does not desire to create a precedent. The suggestion is made only because of the existing emergency.

The conference faculty committee recently refused to permit the transfer of the Northwestern-Notre Dame game from Northwestern's field to Soldier Field because of the rule.

President Scott also said that all of the 48,000 seats for this fall's Notre Dame-Northwestern game had been sold and delivered and that it would be almost impossible to get the tickets back and redeliver them for Soldier Field, even if the conference should relent and permit the transfer.

CARROLL UNDER KNIFE.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, today said he received information that Owen Carroll, former American League pitcher, who was purchased by the Reds late last season, had been operated on for appendicitis at Newark, N. J. Carroll's condition was reported favorable.

Swede Oberlander, Wesleyan coach, is studying medicine at Yale.

Hilltop Coach Uncanny in Prophecies

Sees Close Game at New York; Calls Off All Scrimmage.

COACH TOM MILLS is a football prophet not without honor in his own precinct, and in the faith that his prophecies command is reason for hope that Georgetown will beat New York University Saturday in the invasion of Yankee Stadium.

"It will be a close game," was Mills' comment yesterday as Georgetown's hardest test of the season drew a day nearer and in that deposition Hilltop supporters can take heart. The violent Violets of New York, admittedly a powerful team with its prestige enhanced even in a 7—6 defeat by Georgia, conqueror of Yale, command a respect that approaches fear, but Mills' prophecy is soothing.

For Mills has been uncannily correct in his diagnosis of Georgetown's chances this season. Against Western Maryland, Georgetown had no possible chance to win, Mills announced throughout the week preceding the game. And he was borne out convincingly in the 10—0 triumph of the Terrors.

Offered Little Hope Against W. Va.

The West Virginia game followed. The Mountaineers did not loom as dangerous as Western Maryland. There appeared to be a good chance for a Georgetown victory. But Mills was not of that belief. He could offer little hope and again he was justified. West Virginia won, 14—7.

Michigan State was next. Undefeated Michigan State which had tied Michigan and trounced Colgate which beat Penn State 54—0. What chance for Georgetown? It was to laugh, according to the records. But Mills said Georgetown could win this game. And Georgetown did, by 14—13. And he said he expected a victory over Boston College the following week, and Georgetown won, 20—19.

Mills' pronouncement that it will be a close game at New York Saturday is encouraging indeed to Georgetown followers.

He took no chances with injuries yesterday and canceled the scrimmage that was scheduled against the freshmen, who were equipped with Violet formations. Neither will he hold a scrimmage tomorrow. The team will leave early Friday for New York and work out Friday afternoon at Yankee Stadium.

Brickman, E. Bosek Likely to Play.

The return of two casuals has bolstered Mills' hopes. Charlie Brickman, clever guard who was injured in the season, is now fit for action and will strengthen the right side of the Georgetown line. Emile Bosek, who suffered a sprained shoulder, also is now available and doubtless will find his way into the back field, where he shines as a receiver of passes and on the defense.

There was no intimation that Georgetown would make any change in the back field, which bore the burden so nobly against Boston College. This quartet, comprised of Scalzi at quarter back, Johnny Bosek and Danieu, half backs, and Gillis, full back, doubtless will take the field at the start of the game.

Meehan Makes Back Field And Line Shift at N. Y. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Nov. 12.—One back field and one line shift, both of which Chick Meehan stated would very likely be definite changes, were the features of the workout of his New York University Football squad at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon as the team prepared for the game with Georgetown University Saturday.

Herman La Mark, promoted to the full back post 24 hours before the Carnegie Tech victory, was sent back once again to the reserves and Jim Tanguay was brought into the Varsity back field. Ernie Vavra, tackle star, deposed Dick Murphy in the line.

The return of Tanguay to the back field means that Meehan has at last been able to stir up the lethargic

ESCUTCHEON, 15-1, WINS PIMLICO FEATURE BY HEAD

Buddy Bauer, Favorite, Is Outrun

Raccoon Places, Head Behind; Grey Coat Runs Third.

Con Amore Conquers Whitney Entry in Sprint Event.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—It is one of the axioms of the turf that a good horse always runs back to his best races some day. Marshall Field's Escutcheon did that in the Class A division of the Pimlico Graded Handicaps, at 1 mile and 70 yards, that featured the racing at the Maryland Jockey Club's track this afternoon.

It has been a long time since Escutcheon has won a race, not since she won the Alabama Stakes at Saratoga in August, and she has run plenty of times since; but today, tossed in with 103 pounds, she ran the way she should have on a number of occasions.

Escutcheon Out in Front All the Way.

Taking the track at the rise of the barrier, she never was headed, though she beat the Brookmeade Stable's Raccoon a nose at the end, and in the closing strides Grey Coat got up to take third money from Buddy Bauer. The time was 1:43 2-5.

Apparently the crowd did not agree with the placing of the judges, for there were hisses and boos when the numbers were displayed and further demonstrations of disapproval when the horses came back to the scales. There were loud cheers when the pay-off prices were posted, for Escutcheon paid $31.60 straight, nearly 15 to 1.

Backgammon Takes Opener By a Head.

The Sagamore Stable's Backgammon won the first race by a head from Spirit River after a hard stretch duel, in which Spirit River had the advantage of more than a length coming into the stretch. The Sagamore colt caught him at the last jump. J. E. Widener's Stellanova was third and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Jack Anthony fourth. A margin of two lengths separated the leaders and the third horse. Symbol led the field to the far turn and dropped out of contention. Bejshak rode the winner, the favorite, which paid $5.10.

The Lenox Stable's Spice, trained by G. M. Odom, and brought down to Maryland, furnished one of the biggest upsets of the meeting, although the money was plentiful today, when he defeated Honey Grove, the odds-on favorite, in the second race for 3-year-olds and upward, maidens. Spice had never shown any speed in New York and was beaten twelve lengths in his last start, which was at Jamaica. Thurber rode the winner, holding him off the pace set by Honey Grove. In the stretch Honey Grove drew away, but Spice came up on the outside and won by a head. Odds was third and Wild Fowl fourth. The winner paid $9.60.

Red Knight Captures Steeplechase.

The Catonsville Steeplechase, two miles, furnished the spectacle of a dismal ride on the favorite, Stoney-Lonesome, a fall by the Just a Farm's Patroon when in front at the last jump and C. Brooks falling from King's Own, after swinging to the horse's neck for several yards and dangling almost under his feet. E. Wolke, on Patroon, suffered severe jolting but arose and walked off. The race was won by the Red Knight, the Queen City Stable's Entry and second choice, paying $7.70. E. R. Bradley's Banner Day was second, and Tony the Clown third. Patroon led most of the way until he fell. Stoney-Lonesome, J. Worral up, was repeatedly pocketed and never showed any speed at any stage of the race.

J. Y. Martin's Con Amore, overcoming difficulties at the stretch turn, won the Carroll Handicap by a neck over C. V. Whitney's Murky Cloud. Flimsy, from the same stable, was third and Morsel fourth. The six furlongs race was run in 1:12. E. Watters kept Con Amore's nose in front of Flimsy to the turn with Goose Egg close up. Murky Cloud was held in reserve and when Workman carried Con Amore slightly wide at the stretch turn, Watters temporarily lost the lead, but in the run down the stretch, Con Amore had something in reserve and again assumed a slight lead near the finish. The jockeys were called to the stand, but the placing was not changed. Flimsy was third three lengths away from the leaders. The winner paid $6.60.

No Foul Claim Registered By Workman.

After the race, when R. Workman went into the stand, it was supposed that he was going to make a claim of foul, but he assured the stewards that he had no such intention, but that his purpose was to tell them that he was forced to push off Con Amore with his hand at the turn for self protection. The stewards complimented the Whitney rider for his statement and candor. Workman rode Flimsy and was in close quarters with Con Amore.

The class A was the first of three graded handicaps on the card. Class B sixth race, was won easily by C. V Whitney's 3-year-old colt, Hat Broom by Madhatter, and he finished two lengths in front of Adequate from the Wheatley Stable. Rocket Glare was third. Time 1:45 a mile and 70 yards. Candy Pig circled the track twice, running 2 miles and 70 yards. Workman rode the winner. He laid off the pace set by Little Nap, took the lead after rounding into the stretch, and won as his rider pleased. The winner paid $5.50.

Aziz, the 3-year-old filly owned by G. K. Stryker, made every post a winning one in the final race on the program today and triumphed by a length over Yankee Doodle, with Rockslide third three lengths farther back. The race was the class C event and third of the three graded handicaps which featured the card today. Aziz was second choice and paid $11.30 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Robertson got Aziz away first from the gate and the filly had the speed to outrun her field to the turn. Robertson rated his mount along easily under slight restraint, with Dunlin's Elk and Yankee Doodle in closest pursuit. Rockslide moved up in the stretch run, where Dunlin's Elk quit. Aziz was drawing away at the finish.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Pimlico Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 12.—The Master of the Fox Hounds Steeplechase for Hunters, 3 miles over the brush course, will attract sportsmen who follow the hounds from several States for the feature at Pimlico tomorrow. The purse of $2,500 has influenced sportsmen little in this long race, for the main feature is the sportsmanship that is always identified with it. The test is very severe, and there are few longer routes than in this race.

LAND BOY, owned by A. P. Goodwin, and ridden by J. V. H. Davis, is about the strongest combination that could be brought into a race for hunters. Many victories have been won by LAND BOY with Mr. Davis up. He is to carry 169 pounds, which is top weight. LAND BOY won a 3-mile race here in the Billy Barton. He won his last start in the United Hunts and will be the favorite in this race. He has won this year with 172 pounds. He is a foreign-bred horse with no end of endurance and has been defeated this year only once, when beaten by Arc Light. He should win this race, but there will be keen competition.

HORICON, which will be ridden by C. W. White, probably will be the contender. At least, the Rigan McKinney entry will be well backed, including besides HORICON the jumpers GOLDEN GORSE and JOE MARSHALL, both good cross-country horses. Mr. McKinney himself will ride GOLDEN GORSE. No jockey has been named for JOE MARSHALL. OUR WAY is said to be a good jumper and very fit, and may get a part of the purse. Thirteen horses have been named in this picturesque race.

FIRST RACE—IRISH MARINE has been selected for the first race. His New York form entitles him to favoritism here. It is a mile and a furlong which is a distance well suited to the aged campaigner. He won at this distance at the recent Empire City meeting. He meets no stronger field in this race. He can run over any kind of track. NIGHT SIGNAL, second to Sun Friar last out, should be the contender. She is an improved filly, and it lightly weighted. AMSTERDAM has been unfortunate in his Maryland campaign, but should save third money.

SECOND RACE—HOMELIKE will have MADDER to beat in the second race, a claiming event at a mile and a furlong. WANDERING GOLD appears the next best. MADDER beat HOMELIKE at Laurel, but the latter may turn the tables. WANDERING GOLD is usually close up and has a good record in Canada. He won a race at Havre de Grace, which entitles him to consideration here.

FOURTH RACE—Top notch 2-year-olds start in the fourth race at six furlongs. Walter J. Salmon's LADDER has won his last two races here and has no keener competitor in this race, and takes off weight. In his race Monday, he beat Avalon, Pennate and others in the fast time of 1:11 4-5, with 117 pounds. He could have no excuse in this race, with HALCYON expected to furnish the strongest opposition. HALCYON'S last race was much slower. BUCKUP may offer keen competition. She beat Risque at Laurel and then was third to Tambour in a stake there.

FIFTH RACE—PENNANT LASS is selected to win the fifth race. She comes from New York with impressive victories. She beat Awake in her last race at Empire City by three lengths. She won at Bowie last spring, and is in good form with light weight. MABLA needed her last race at Laurel and is rated the contender in this. She has a long string of victories previous to that, when she was beaten by Con Amore. THE SPARE has won her last two races and is dangerous in any race at six furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—This is the Madison Claiming Handicap at a mile and a furlong. C. V. Whitney's FRUMPER, if he runs back to his Laurel race in which he beat Ormonbird and Vacation, looms as the probable winner of this race. In this Pimlico race, he was ridden by Romano, and did not do so well. He carries top weight. SUN HATTER should be the contender, as his last race showed he was rounding to form, being third to Mucker. SIGN OFF's last race gives him a good chance to finish third.

SEVENTH RACE—A small field is to start in the seventh race, a mile and three sixteenths. BLACK CLOUD should win and he will not be the favorite. SPANISH, the probable contender, will be the choice, but he seems a shade off form, by his losing to Replevin. NAYLOR should get in the money.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BACKGAMMON, $5.10, $3.60, $2.60; SPIRIT RIVER, $5.70, $3.30; STELLANOVA, $5.40.

BACKGAMMON, rated along and gradually improving his position, luckily secured racing room on the inside during the stretch run and was up in the last sixteenth. SPIRIT RIVER, going in greatly improved fashion, displaced SYMBOL when ready, opened up a good lead, but faltered and may have been short. STELLANOVA finished gamely. JACK ANTHONY practically walked away from the barrier, but worked his way up steadily in the final stages. MAD CAREER and SYMBOL had good speed for six furlongs, then quit.

SECOND RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:56. Off at 1:56½. Winner, Lenox Stud's ch. c. (3), by Spion Kop—Flaminia. Trained by G. M. Odom. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 3-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPICE, $9.60, $3.50, $3.10; HONEY GROVE, $2.50, $2.20; ODDS, $5.00.

SPICE, racing as it much the best, was allowed to drop back when approaching the far turn, came determinedly thereafter when placed to punishment, swung to the outside of the leaders and, in a fast finish, was up right at the end. HONEY GROVE raced ODDS into submission, saved ground to draw clear entering the home stretch, but faltered the last sixteenth. ODDS forged a steady pace and held on well. WILD FOWL finished with good courage. ARDMORE and MULLAH had no excuses.

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $2,000; claiming. Catonsville Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:26. Off at 2:27. Winner, Queen City Stable's br. g. (a.), by The Best—Princess Ruby. Trained by C. O'Leary. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $400; third, $200. Time, 3:50 3-5. (13 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE RED KNIGHT, $7.70, $4.20, $4.10; BANNER DAY, $4.30, $3.40; TONY THE CLOWN, $3.40.

THE RED KNIGHT, fencing smoothly and having the most speed throughout, shook off last serious contention from TONY THE CLOWN and regained an early lead at the final fence when PATROON fell. BANNER DAY, taken under a choking pull for the first mile while being steered wide, closed gamely in the final issue, but was held safe. TONY THE CLOWN showed a splendid effort. Part of his equipment broke during the running. STONEY LONESOME was in tight quarters in the first mile and stopped when put to a drive. EON raced well. PATROON, a keen factor for a mile and-one-half, fell at the final jump. NOON JOY was pulled up after the ninth fence and KING'S OWN lost his rider after clearing the eighth.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. Carroll Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:03. Winner, J. Y. Martin's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CON AMORE, $6.60, $3.40, $2.80; MURKY CLOUD, $3.00, $3.20; FLIMSY, $3.20.

CON AMORE, hard hustled from the beginning, was forced out when Workman allowed FLIMSY to go out at the stretch turn, continued gamely after being impeded and, responding to punishment, regained command to hold to her task in game fashion. MURKY CLOUD, rated along on the outside early, came through in wide passage when FLIMSY took CON AMORE out and she finished courageously. FLIMSY forced a fast pace and held on well. MORSEL had no mishaps. PETO was gaining slowly at the end. GOOSE EGG was held safe.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Pimlico Graded Handicap. Class A. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:30½. Off at 3:31. Winner, Marshall Field's b. f. (4), by Sir Gallahad III—Affection. Trained by G. M. Odom. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46, 1:13 1-5, 1:38 3-5, 1:43 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ESCUTCHEON, $31.60, $13.80, $10.10; RACCOON, $16.80, $8.50; GREY COAT, $8.20.

ESCUTCHEON raced BUDDY BAUER into defeat in the first six furlongs, saved ground when in command and, withstanding a stout drive, just lasted. RACCOON caused a lot of crowding going to the first turn, was steadied along in pursuit of the leaders and, finishing fast, would have been the winner in another stride. GREY COAT raced for six furlongs, closed with a rush and was worked out a mile and one-half in 2:36 2-5. BUDDY BAUER weakened in the final three furlongs. MONTANARO had no mishaps.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Pimlico Graded Handicap. Class B. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving. Went to post at 4:02½. Off at 4:05. Winner, C. V. Whitney's blk. c. (3), by Mad Hatter—Bonnie Broom. Trained by T. J. Healey. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:45 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAT BROOM, $5.50, $3.60, $2.80; ADEQUATE, $8.20, $6.00; ROCKET GLARE, $6.40.

HAT BROOM, securing racing room when moving into contention on the inside, came around LITTLE NAP when moving to the front and, continuing stoutly, held ADEQUATE safe. Latter, a distant trailer for the first six furlongs, closed with a belated rush and was racing much the strongest at the finish. ROCKET GLARE closed stoutly. SEARCHER had speed in spots. LITTLE NAP, under stiff restraint early, faltered badly in the final furlong. CANDY PIG stepped. SUN SHADOW showed a trial test.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Pimlico Graded Handicap. Class C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:37. Winner, G. L. Stryker's ch. f. (3), by Trojan —Accara. Trained by L. Campbell. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:45 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AZIZ, $11.30, $5.30, $4.00; YANKEE DOODLE, $6.30, $4.40; ROCKSLIDE, $5.30.

AZIZ got a step at the gate and was away in motion, outran her field to the first turn and was rated along under slight restraint to stretch, where she drew away. YANKEE DOODLE, forwardly placed, finished willingly under a drive. ROCKSLIDE outstayed NAYLOR. Latter, outrun early, closed stoutly in the final drive. STERN CHASER tired.

EARLY START FOR BOWIE SESSIONS

Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE, MD., Nov. 12.—Joseph A. Farrel, general manager of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association, announced today that post time for the 12-day meeting, which gets under way here on Monday, has been set for 1 p. m.

As this course is situated half-way between Washington and Baltimore, it will enable the fans of these cities to be home in ample time for their evening meal, as the final event daily should be run not later than 4:15 p. m.

Track Most Accessible to District Fans.

There are excellent automobile roads from Baltimore and Washington. In addition, the intercity electric railway will operate special trains on half-hour schedules direct to the foot of the grand stand.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has notified General Manager Farrell that it will put into effect next Monday a daily race special which starts in New York and stops en route at Philadelphia, Wilmington, Chester, Havre de Grace and Baltimore with its terminus at Odenton, from where the fans will be transferred to electric cars and brought into the track.

There are more than 500 horses already on the grounds, with almost twice that number due in this week-end from the Pimlico, Laurel and Havre de Grace courses.

Track Superintendent Richard Pending has this track at tops and such stars as Sun Beau, Twenty Grand, Ladder, Her Grace, Petee Wrack, Ned O, Dr. Freeland, Con Amore, Fletche D'Argeant, Mate and Balko will be included in the fields throughout the meeting, it won't be suprising if a track mark or two are erased from the record books.

20 Entries for Opening Day $10,000 Feature.

The popularity of this track is evidenced in the entry list handed into Race Secretary Joseph McLennan for the four major stakes to be run during the 12 days' sport.

Twenty entries were made for the $10,000 Prince George (Autumn) Handicap, mile and one-sixteenth race, which features Monday's opening card. The $30,000 Southern Maryland Handicap on November 22 drew 31 nominations. Thirty-seven of the best handicap horses still in training have been named for the $10,000 Thanksgiving Day Handicap, a mile and one-eighth affair; while the $10,000 Endurance Handicap, mile and one-sixteenth race, exclusively for 2-year-olds on November 29 drew 39 nominations.

ST. ALBAN'S B WINS.

St. Alban's Reserves possessed too much team play for the Lowell A. C. gridders yesterday and sent the sandlotters away from St. Alban's Field on the short end of a 20-13 count. The winners scored in three of the four periods.

Stewart, who contributed two touchdowns, and Booth, who gave the winners their third tally, shone for St. Alban's. Simmons played well for the losers, scoring twice.

from overexploitation in the meantime, undergraduate, amateur football players in the colleges will be suffered, if not openly permitted, to sell testimonials and essays and to deliver inspirational talks for hire, just as their coaches do now, on the ground that earned money is good, not bad, for a student.

In the present rating of society, wealth is a prerequisite to social position and earnings are the gauge of success. There are socially exclusive millionaires but no socially exclusive poor. As long as the thing is being done at all, it is an unjust discrimination to permit the great amateur tennis and golf stars and the football coaches to convert their fame into earnings while denying the same right to "varsity players" who may be in much more urgent need of a few dollars.

Black Comet Winner In Mud at Latonia

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Racing over a muddy strip, Black Comet, a 2-year-old colt by Westy Hogan from the C. C. Van Meter Stable, led his field home to win the winter quarters handicap, the featured attraction here this afternoon. Doris Jean, from J. Lowenstein's stable finished second, with Back Log from Gallaher and Combs' stable third. Only five started, Leros being withdrawn during the afternoon.

The handicap was for 2-year-olds, over the six furlong sprint distance and was worth $900 to the winning stable. Black Comet, ridden out at the finish, traveled the distance through the mud in 1:14 2-5. He paid off at $16.20 to $2 in the mutuels.

Black Comet was taken into the lead right after the springing of the gate and had little difficulty in maintaining command throughout, winning ridden out, by a length and a half. Doris Jean rated, along in restraint back of the leaders, closed gamely to take the place money by five lengths. Back Log was rushed into closest contention soon after the start but weakened in the stretch drive and was third, four lengths in front of the heavily played favorite, Martha Jones.

EARLIER START FOR EASTERN-TECH GAME SOUGHT

School Heads Will Confer Today

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE annual move is on foot to change the time of the remaining high school series games. Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High School, is expected to confer with Frank Daniels, principal of Tech High School, today in an effort to have the final, and most important game of the series, the Tech-Eastern tilt, moved up to 3:15 o'clock next Tuesday instead of 3:45.

If the principals agree, the matter will be referred to Dr. Stephen F. Kramer, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in charge of high schools.

So far as is known nothing has been done about changing the time of the Business-Western game, scheduled to be played tomorrow at Central Stadium at 3:45 o'clock.

Eastern-Central Game Ended in Dark.

Much has been written heretofore advocating the holding of interhigh games at an earlier hour than 3:45 o'clock, but it is doubtful if a more likely argument was ever advanced in its favor than the developments of the Eastern vs. Central game last Tuesday. The game was easily a period late, fumbles and misplays featuring the last quarter because the players found it seldom possible to distinguish between ball and field, friend and foe.

By permitting players and the general student bodies to leave school in time for the start of the two remaining games at 3:15 o'clock, the problem of staging a last period under unplayable conditions could be nicely taken care of.

This change in the starting time would be most important in the Tech vs. Eastern game. With the championship of the series hanging on the decision it is only logical that the work of the players should be facilitated in every possible way.

Nelson in Uniform as Tech Starts Work for Eastern

Dick Nelson, Coach Elmer Hardell's weak-voiced tyro, put in an appearance yesterday at the first Tech workout pointing toward the game next Tuesday against Eastern High. It will be the final game of the series and the championship will hang in the balance.

Nelson has been out since the Central game, in which he received a badly bruised hand.

Hardell put his men through a light practice yesterday, concentrating on forward passing—a department of football which Tech has not yet resorted to in the series. Light scrimmaging and signal practice was also on tap at Tech Field yesterday.

Coach Hardell, by temperament continually ready for the worst, was in no way surprised by the sudden turn of events in the high school league which finds Eastern about to battle his huskies for the championship in the final game of the series. When, if the form had run true, Tech might have found its final test something of a light workout.

Richmond Promised A Battle by Tigers

Hampden-Sidney, Va., Nov. 12.—While the entire Hampden-Sidney College community is properly thrilled over receiving news of its ranking first among all American colleges in "Who's Who" on the basis of percentage of its graduates listed in this catalogue of distinguished Americans, their immediate concern is the football game with the University of Richmond to be played at Stadium Field Saturday.

The students are daily cautioned not to be overconfident, but to take their cue from Coach Bernier's squad. Its spirit is to give its best in the approaching battle. Every man is going at his work in this fashion. There is nothing resembling staleness among the men and their warmest supporters are expecting them to continue the drive displayed in the recent game with Lynchburg. Coach Bernier is still suffering from the effects of a severe cold and his boys seem all the more eager to carry out his instructions 100 per cent.

HARVARD COACHING MACHINE

MARYLAND U. PULLS IRON MAN ACT

Three Games in Week Reminds of 1899 Sewanee Stunt.

CURLEY BYRD'S University of Maryland gridders bring back the days of "iron men" late in November by playing three games in eight days.

Starting with the Navy at Annapolis, Saturday, November 22, the Old Liners have their customary engagement with Johns Hopkins in Baltimore on Thanksgiving and two days later face the Vanderbilt Commodores in Nashville.

This tough assignment offers the Terrapins probably the hardest week's work faced by any Southern team since the University of the South set something of a record back in 1899 by playing five strong Dixie teams on successive days, winning every game and not allowing the opponents to score.

Back in those days when Sewanee was the ruling gridiron power of the South, the Tiger beat the University of Texas 12-0, Texas A. and M. 10-0, Tulane 23-0, Louisiana State 34-0 and the University of Mississippi 12-0.

Returning to Sewanee, the team tackled two more foes on successive days and trimmed them.

Silver Spring-Takoma Soccerists Win Thriller

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 12.—Two extra periods of ten minutes each were necessary to decide the victor today in the soccer battle between Sparrows Point School, representing Baltimore County, and Silver Spring-Takoma Park School, from Montgomery County, which was won by the latter team, 4 to 0.

The game, played at Patterson Park, formed the first round of the inter-county schedule arranged by the Playground Athletic League.

Both teams repeatedly fell down on chances to score. Takoma's forward line was stronger and faster than its opponents.

The first of the two goals came in the first extra period, when Sparrows Point goalie allowed the ball to roll along the goal line instead of clearing the ball at once. The second 2 points were scored on a goal in the second extra period. Pritchard starred for the winners.

Takoma Park will play Maryland Park, of Prince Georges County, on November 20.

25 Business Players Drill at Basket Ball

Business High's basket ball squad, numbering about 25 aspirants, has been working out in Business' gym without the services of Coach Lynn Woodworth, whose entire attention must be given to Business' football team, which plays its final game tomorrow.

The basketeers have been handled for about a week by Capt. Bobby Lucas, Orange stalwart from last year's squad.

Stung by a 1929 season which saw them lose four high school series games by either one or two points, the sourtimen are out to atone for this and Business' poor season on the gridiron.

NAVY SHOWS POWER IN WORKOUT

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 12.—A driving scrimmage featured today's practice of the Navy eleven polishing off for the hard game expected with Southern Methodist University in Baltimore Stadium Saturday. The players went at their task with greater zip than for some time, tearing through the strong scrub line, skirting the flanks, and reeling off forward passes almost at will.

Hagberg, big full back, got a hard jolt in the second play of the scrimmage that laid him low for several minutes. He was on his feet again, and while not apparently seriously hurt, the coaches, exercising precaution, sent him to the dressing room.

Hurley, who has been showing promise during the last two weeks, and did some fine work in the closing stages of the game with Ohio State last Saturday, replaced Hagberg.

Tschirgi to Be Ready For Saturday.

Bauer continued at quarter back, with Kirn and Gannon as the half backs. It was announced today that Joe Tschirgs, good running back who was injured early in the game with the Buckeyes, will be in shape for Saturday's fray with the Mustangs. Tschirgs suffered from twisted muscles as the result of a fierce tackle. The rest of the line-up remained intact today.

Prior to the scrimmaging, the players of the big team, followed a practice line-up between two teams of shock troops, as they employed the Methodists style of offense, just to give them an eyeful of what they might expect in Saturday's tussle. The team is believed to have profited immensely from the licking administered by Ohio State and will enter the coming game with renewed energy and hope, and it is also realized in the Navy camp that Maryland, which comes next on the local calendar, will be no soft picking.

Otto Von Porat Plans To Sail for Norway

Chicago, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Otto Von Porat, solemn Norwegian heavyweight, is "regusted"—with himself.

Dissatisfied with the heavyweight situation, and himself in particular, Von Porat decided today to sail for his home in Oslo, Norway, November 19, for an indefinite stay.

the varsity back field, besides JoeTanguay, now consist of Bob McNamara at the other half back post; Joe LaMark, signal caller, and Jack Macdonald, alternating with LaMark on the full back assignment.

This makes the back field once again an all-sophomore group, as it was when the season started.

The new back field combination was used both defensively and offensively this afternoon in a long, intensive two-hour drill at the stadium, in which work against the Georgetown forward passing formations again featured. The reserves, using Hoya plays, threw aerials on almost every play, but the varsity showed much improvement over its previous day's form in break them up.

Deer's Rush Converts Animal Into Venison

Three Hampden-Sidney students were en route to a football game when a full-antlered buck leaped from the woods and crashed head first into their automobile.

The deer's death dive sent the car to the garage for repairs and brought venison steaks to Wilder Watts, Rhesa Purnell and James Gordon. His mounted head now hangs in a fraternity house.

V. M. I. MAKES READY FOR KENTUCKY

Defeat by Clemson Has Not Discouraged Cadet Squad.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 12.—Dazed but not discouraged by their disastrous defeat at the claws of the Clemson College Tigers, members of the V. M. I. squad are hard at work this week in preparation for the Kentucky game.

The Cadets are determined to make a better showing against Coach Harry Gamage's powerful team on Stoll Field, and they still have their sights trained on the Thanksgiving Day battle with the rejuvenated V. P. I. Gobblers.

Although the Cadets were able to register seventeen first downs against Clemson, they were balked in every attempt to score, and it is the supplying of this final punch that Coaches Bill Raftery and Ed Heas are striving for in the rough work this week.

Siegel Expected to Aid in Back Field.

The gratifying play of Louis Siegel, rangy sophomore back from Richmond, indicates that his regular presence in the backfield may solve some of the problems of sustained attack that have worried the coaches all season.

The Cadets will be in good physical condition for the clash with the Wildcats, as Rand Gregory, right end, was the only casualty of the Clemson tilt, and the chances are that he will be ready to play by Saturday. The V. M. I. football party of about 35 will leave barracks Friday afternoon and arrive at the Wildcat lair early Saturday morning.

V. M. I. Harriers In Shape.

The V. M. I. cross-country squads wound up their stiff training today for the State cross-country meet here Friday. The Cadet varsity defeated Virginia in a dual race, but was nosed out by V. P. I. and the Gobblers are given the edge to retain the championship won last year. The V. P. I. freshmen also defeated the Cadet youngsters, who had previously lost to the Virginia runners by a single point. Washington and Lee has not met one of the Big Four teams this season, but showed its mettle by downing Duke.

Bird Hooper's Kicking Great V. P. I. Grid Asset

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The kicking toe of Bird Hooper stands out as Virginia Polytechnic Institute's most precious football asset.

The Gobbler captain's toe was directly responsible for the one-point victories over William and Mary and Davidson. His great punting has constituted a real third line defense.

Lawn Bowling Due In Florida Shortly

Lakeland, Fla., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Lawn bowling is to assume a more prominent position in Florida next February when the British team of about 50 members meets several American teams for the Fox trophy.

C. P. Zazzali, of Lakeland, president of the State Lawn Bowlers' Association, said the Britons would arrive in St. Petersburg, January 28.

This will be the first contest for the trophy in America, except in California.

47 Whippets Entered For Washington Races

The committee in charge of the whippet derby to be held at Griffith Stadium November 19 has reopened the entry list in order to enter three local speedsters, bringing the total to 47 sprinters which will participate in the eight races, which includes the steeplechase.

The new entries are Harvest Moon, owned by George E. Hutchins; My Own, owned by Charles W. Steers, and Playboy, owned by W. M. Stewart 3d

The races will be held under the joint auspices of the President's Own Garrison, the Army and Navy Union and theh National Capital Kennel Club. Among the patrons are Col. J. Miller Kenyon, Col. W. M. McKelvy, Maj. B. C. MacNeil, Col. H. Edmund Bullis, Capt. C. O. Howard, Capt. E. B. McKinley, Joseph O'Hare, Walter Johnson, George M. Norris, Robert M. Acorn and W. Kennedy Boone.

Reiss, Virginia Center Ace, Shifted From Full Back

Is Expected to Be One of Cavaliers' Key Men on Defense Against Washington and Lee Generals Saturday.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 12.—Lewis Reiss, a center made from a full back, has been playing a great game in the Virginia line. He will be one of the key men in the defense against Washington and Lee on Lambeth Field next Saturday.

Two years ago Reiss was a back on the DeWitt Clinton High School in New York City. Last year he did not make the Virginia first-year team as a regular, but was understudy for Ward Brewer at full back. But during his first year on the varsity he has come to be a regular in the Cavalier line.

Reiss Fills Hole Vacated By Taylor.

The loss of George Taylor, regular center for the last three seasons, left the pivot position open. Because Reiss, from his experience as a full back, knew how to back up a line on defense, Coach Abell decided to turn the big fellow into a center.

Reiss made good in his new position almost from the start. In the first few games he made some erratic passes, but as he has played from week to week he had gained much skill in handling the ball. In addition to the direction of the head coach he has had much individual instruction from Taylor, the men he succeeded, who is now assisting Archie Hahn in training the team. Careful coaching by Taylor has had much to do with the way Reiss has developed.

It's when he's backing up the line on secondary defense that Reiss is at his best. He is quick to diagnose a play as it is forming, he is swift to throw himself ahead of it, and he is a deadly tackler.

Reiss is one of the youngest men on the squad, for he is just 18 years old. He weighs 182 pounds and stands exactly six feet. In addition to playing football he won his numerals as a heavyweight boxer on the first-year ring team.

Quinn to Seek Major Berth; Says He's Good for 15 Wins

ROARING CREEK, Pa., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Jack Quinn, veteran pitcher, unconditionally released by Connie Mack, is going to keep right on pitching in the major leagues if he can find a berth. He is not through pitching, he said, "not by a long shot."

Jack, one of the few spitball artists still left, was found in a cabin in the river hills where he followed his favorite sport of gunning for small game.

"I still think that I am good for another year," said Jack, as he poked the embers of a log fire. "I believe I can win the quota of games allotted every good major league pitcher, which is about 15. I'm going to look around in the majors and get another year which will give me a record of real service that any player can be proud of.

"I've been kicking around the country since I was twelve years old when I started out with a battered suit and two hands and a stout heart," said the veteran twirler, "and I guess I can keep going. I've been in baseball so long I hate to give up the game, I don't know what I will do if I don't answer the spring training call."

G. W. Regains Injured Stars For Albright on Saturday

THE heavy clouds of gloom that persisted in hanging over the George Washington Colonial grid squad for the last two days lifted perceptibly yesterday. The brighter rays were reflected from the showing of two or three former reserves and the reappearance of three crippled backs out on the field with a rearin' to go attitude.

Joe Carter, Lee Carlin and Billy Wells, all backfield aces, who were more or less crippled in the New York Aggie game, were in harness and dimmed the chances that several of their understudies had of getting into the Albright game Saturday as starters, by doing everything asked of them. Coach Pixlee held the trio out of the rugged scrimmage, not desiring to risk further injury, but had them running up and down the field throwing and receiving passes and running through signals.

Carlin and Wells are in first-class shape and probably will take part in today's scrimmage. Carter, however, likely will be held out of the rough work again today, for he is nursing a tender injury. With two more days of rest before the Albright game, though, he likely will be in tip-top shape to enter the game at the starting kick-off.

Fenlon Shows Form At End.

The reserves who showed up so nicely in yesterday's scrimmage session were Johnny Fenlon, who has definitely and decisively captured the right end position whether Lyle Sturtevant gets over his boils or not; Wallace Wilson, who demonstrated that he knows how to handle the guard assignment capably, and Walter Slaird, the husky tackle, whose knee again seems to be every bit as good as it was before it was hurt in pre-season training camp. Slaird is one of the best, if not the best, lineman on the squad and will be making his debut against Albright. If he plays the kind of a game he has shown himself capable of in the last two days of practice his bow will be an auspicious one.

Pixlee Encouraged Over Outlook.

With all of his regulars, except Fred Mulvey, an end, and "Bugs" Bagranoff, a guard, both of whom are suffering slow healing shoulder injuries, in tip-top shape and anxious to "take" Albright, Coach Pixlee feels much encouraged over the outlook of the game and feels that he has an even chance of returning with his foe's scalp. Coach Len Walsh is enthused over the showing of the line with Slaird, Chambers and Wilson showing up so well and predicts that Albright will have a tough job making appreciable progress through or over his forwards.

The squad will leave Washington by bus Friday evening after a short signal practice. They will arrive in Reading, Pa., about 10 o'clock Friday night and will return to Washington immediately after the game. About 26 players will make the trip.

Culpeper High Grid Team To Play Washington-Lee

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 12.—Washington-Lee High School gridders will be after their third victory in the conference series Friday afternoon when they mix with the Culpeper High School eleven, of Culpeper, Va., on the Generals' home field at Ballston.

Athletic Director Driver will insert his strongest club in this battle. He is anxious to score decisively. On November 21, the Washington-Lee eleven tackles Central High gridders in the stadium in Washington. This game is the annual "C" Club attraction. The Ballston boys were selected because of the record in the Virginia football series.

Athletic Director Maurice Given, of the Alexandria High School Team, is seeking a game for Friday. Given is trying to schedule Gonzaga or some other fast Washington high school eleven. He hopes to complete terms today. The high school boys are in a deadlock for first place in the Third District Conference series.

An important basket ball meeting of the St. Mary's Celtics Team was held at Hurshy's last night. Edward Harlowe, director of the club, presided. The Celts plan to open their season in December. Fred Petitt submitted his resignation as coach.

Manager Johnny Travers, of the Virginia Juniors, has listed the Northern A. C., a 126-pound eleven, for a game to be played on the Shipyard Field Sunday. The Virginians will be bidding for their seventh consecutive victory. George Gensmere will play with the Orange and Blue lads in this tussle.

The Pirate Athletic Club will meet the Comet A. C., of Washington, on Sunday at Guckert's Field at 3 o'clock. The Comets are leaders in their division.

An important practice of the St. Mary's Football Team will be held in Baggett's Stadium tonight at 8 o'clock. Coach Rube Hayman requests all players to be present.

The Bluebirds lost a hard-fought game to the Alexandria High School scrubs on Haydon's Field yesterday, 18-0.

Episcopal High School gridders will play Shenandoah Academy eleven, of Winchester, Saturday afternoon on Hoxton Field. This game will begin at 3:15 o'clock. The Maroon and Black eleven has yet to suffer defeat on the gridiron. They will be bidding for their seventh consecutive win.

Southern Methodist Uses Series of Leaders

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Southern Methodist will introduce an entirely new system of picking captains to the East when it meets Navy Saturday. Each senior letterman on the team is eligible to act as captain for one or more games, according to the number of letters he has won. Louie Long, right end, is this week's leader.

Choice of Back Field Puzzles Coach Cannell

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Among the many problems Coach Jack Cannell, of Dartmouth, has to meet in his preparation for the season's big game with Cornell is what is the best back field combination to use. Present indications are that he will solve it by using Bill McCall, former quarter back, at one half along with Wolff, Norton and Wilkin.

NAVY SOCCERISTS WIN.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 12.—With all of the scoring confined to the first half, the Annapolis Midshipmen defeated Franklin and Marshall College of Lancaster, Pa., on the soccer pitch here today, 3 to 0. Gurnette scored two goals while Kelly got the other.

The visitors were clearly outplayed during the first half, but pulled themselves together to wage an even battle during the final stages.

NO MOVE FOR BROWNS.

"Not a chance. Moving the Browns to Milwaukee has never been considered," says Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis American League Club, in his first formal denial of the rumor that has traveled up and down the country, but he states that plans for reconstruction of the Milwaukee team to put it back in the race will start immediately, which will be good news to the Brewer City fans.

ST. JOHN AND GONZAGA BATTLE

Rival School Elevens Await 12th Contest on Friday.

THE twelfth renewal of the annual clash between Gonzaga and St. John's takes place Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Griffith Stadium. The game was originally scheduled for Friday, but inability to secure a suitable field to stage this popular tilt forced its postponement a day.

Coach Paully Byrne has been pointing his Cadets all season for this game, and is staging daily drill on Potomac Park, which promises to send his huskies into the fray in their best physical condition of the year. There is no doubt that his eleven is keen. They have in front of them the record of never having beaten Gonzaga.

Gonzaga Faces Task Against Cadets.

Gonzaga must produce inspired football this year to stop the march of the Cadets, if past performances can be used as a criterion. The Purple lost to Georgetown Prep, 20-19, while the Cadets beat the Garrett Parkers 7-0. La Salle Prep, of Cumberland, Md., beat Gonzaga 32-0, while St. John's yielded to the same team by the score of 7-0.

Gonzaga's power has been tempered all season by injuries and scholastic difficulties of its linemen. Coach Mitchell has been drilling his available charges daily on the Plaza. Dan Dunan has been definitely shifted to left end from quarter back. Tom McGlan is calling signals in scrimmaging and probably will receive the assignment Saturday.

Miami Jockey Club Gets Set for Winter Races

Miami, Fla., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—There's already plenty of activity at the Miami Jockey Club, and the races will not begin until January.

The track is getting the main attention. At the north end of the 2-furlong chute workmen are busy lengthening the starting point to 4 furlongs.

There will be no baby races around the curve this season. Everything will be out of the chute and nothing under 3 furlongs.

Auburn Ball Toters See '13' as Unlucky Number

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Ball toters of the Auburn gridiron squad have reason to believe 13 is an unlucky number.

Early season injuries and Coach Chet Wynne's pruning activities reduced the number of back field men to thirteen.

Devitt Prep PlansCharity Night Game on Nov. 22

While colleges all over the country have been negotiating to put their teams on the field in the interests of charity and unemployment, Devitt Prep has made definite arrangement to secure Griffith Stadium Saturday night, November 22, for a game whose proceeds will be given to the District's needy.

Devitt, whose record this year stands them out as Washington's strongest prep school eleven, has been making overtures to leading scholastic elevens in Washington and nearby territory for a suitable opponent for the night charity tilt.

Coach Jim McNamara has communicated with Tech High, District high school champions; St. James Prep, strong New York eleven; Hagerstown High, Episcopal High and the Hun Prep School, of Princeton, N. J.

Replies are expected to be received today from a representative group of these. A committee composed of McNamara, "Count" Cornwell and a faculty adviser, will decide on which team will be selected for the fray.

Harper to Defend Amateur Cue Title

Robert B. Harper, of Denver, recent conqueror of Max Shimon, of Milwaukee, for the national amateur three-cushion championship, will defend his title against Frank I. Fleming, of Champaign, Ill., a former national titleholder, in a 450-point challenge match at

STOCK PRICES RALLY AFTER EARLY SLUMP

U. S. STEEL ADVANCES

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The speculative pendulum swung widely on the stock market today. Early declines of 2 to 5 points sent prices to new lows, but the reaction was equally vigorous and final quotations were 1 to 5 net higher on a turnover of 2,334,020 shares.

The rally, like yesterday's, came in the afternoon. Its basis was an oversold situation in the market which needed little stimulation to put the shorts to covering. That impetus was afforded by the half-cent rise in copper prices, the first advance in red metal this year, and when it was announced the response was prompt.

Wheat moved up 1 to 2 cents a bushel on a bullish estimate of European requirements and reports of crop damage in Missouri. Corn was firm, fractionally higher at the close, cotton rose $1.05 to $1.25 a bale net, reflecting in part the recovery in stocks. Bonds, however, were soft, with the exception of the Liberties.

The day's business news was mixed. Copper's return to 10 cents a pound offset the October increase in stocks of the metal, but with a production curtailment program believed to be virtually assured and a further stiffening of prices expected, the outlook for the industry appeared better.

Steel Operations Drop.

Pennsylvania crude oil quotations were reduced, steel operations showed a drop of about 4 per cent for the past week, and loadings of freight declined, although the loss was less than seasonal.

The steel trade reviews, reconciled to an unimproved immediate outlook, are talking of an upturn in January. Iron Age recalled that precedent pointed to "some measure of recovery at that time just as it offers little hope of a change in trend in the remaining weeks of 1930." Considerable importance was placed on the price stand recently announced by one of the steel corporation's subsidiaries and also on the current deflation of inventories which, Iron Age pointed out, "is counted on to add force to the rebound in demand early in 1931."

Shorts who had little faith in the rally, in view of the fact that scores of stocks had just touched new lows, and who continued to sell after the advance had started, found their immediate position uncomfortable, for the market closed at the top. The upward move began in the copper stocks which have had such scant cheer in these many months of declining earnings and dividend reductions that today's good news was quickly translated into substantial gains. Kennecott and American Smelting rose 3 points, Andes 5, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Calumet & Arizona and Phelps Dodge 1 to 2 and the inactive Chile 9.

American Phone Up 4½.

When the covering became general, United States Steel, down 2 points to 189¼ in the early selling, rebounded to close at 144, up 3. American Telephone, whose weakness featured the morning session, turned a 4-point decline into a net advance of 4½. National Biscuit closed 2 points higher, a recovery of 4 from its low. Amusement shares, which with the food and utilities had led the forenoon break, got back what they had lost. Loew's, down 3 points, finished only ¼ off. Fox rallied 3 points.

Many rails, including Pennsylvania, Erie, Union Pacific, Pere Marquette, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Louis Southwestern and Missouri Pacific preferred touched new lows and made only irregular recovery, although Atchison gained 4 net, Norfolk & Western 3 and New Haven and New York Central about 2.

Two point net advances were shown by American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Corn Products, Westinghouse, Coca Cola, Consolidated Gas and North American. Sears Roebuck, General Motors, Texas Corp. and Standard Oil of New Jersey improved about a point, while Case and Eastman Kodak were up 5.

Foreign exchanges were firm, both the French franc and sterling cables ruled slightly higher.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—An opening advance in cotton was followed by reactions today, but prices firmed up again, reaching the highest for the day in the later trading on trade buying and covering. After selling off from 11.37 to 11.20, or about 12 points net lower, March advanced to 11.61, and closed at 11.54, compared with 11.32 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 21 to 25 points. The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 10 points on overnight purchase orders which were attributed to the trade and a renewal of the covering movement in evidence here late yesterday. There was considerable Southern selling at the start, however, while there was also some selling on the rather indifferent showing of Liverpool and the opening decline in the stock market. This was sufficient to supply the initial demand and send prices about 11 to 13 points net lower during the early trading. New December sold off to 10.79 and May to 11.45. Offerings tapered off at these figures and the market firmed up during the afternoon when contracts seemed to be growing scarce. There was covering or rebuying by recent and early sellers, as well as a continued trade demand particularly for the spring months. New December advanced to 11.19 and May to 11.80, making advances of 44 points from the low level of the morning and net gains of about 28 to 33 points on the active positions. Increased realizing was encountered at these prices and closing quotations showed reactions of 4 to 8 points from the best.

The afternoon advance was influenced, apparently, by the firmer turn in the stock market. According to local brokers any show of returning stability in securities has a tendency to stimulate buying of cotton and after today's early selling of cotton had been absorbed there appeared to be comparatively little offering. The New York Cotton Exchange Service estimated the domestic consumption for October of cotton of all growths at 431,000 bales, compared with 395,000 in September and 639,000 in October of last year.

Liverpool cables said that covering and realizing, buying had been supplied by 2,905,388 so far this season. Port receipts, 51,898. U. S. port stocks, 3,866,850.

HEAVY TONE RULES CHANGES IN BONDS

Three Indices Drop to New 1930 Lows; Several Convertibles Lose.

GERMAN LIST HIT HARD

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Many new lows for the year were established in the bond market today as a heavy tone dominated trading in the investment division, despite the rally which developed in equity issues near the close.

Only a small section of the list presented a firm appearance consistent with the easy tone of the money market. United States Governments were again strong and a few high-grade rails and utilities advanced fractionally. Otherwise a lower trend was in evidence, being particularly marked in second and third-grade rails and industrials. Many stock privilege issues failed to participate in the final hour rally of stocks.

A feature of the irregularly lower trend of foreign bonds was the outbreak of liquidation that sharply depressed German loans and was communicated to some other European obligations. German 5½s, the international loan floated under the Young plan six months ago, dipped 2¼ points to a new low price at 73½ and the 7s reached to within ¼ of the 1930 minimum.

Source of Movement.

The selling, which extended to virtually every German municipal and industrial bond actively traded, was attributed to nervousness among American investors inspired by rumors and discussions concerning the prospect of either revision of German reparations payments or a moratorium, although there has been nothing official to confirm such reports, and bankers point out that any change or delay in reparations would have nothing to do with interest on German bonds.

The extent of the liquidation in domestic bonds was reflected in the average of 30 bonds which dipped four-tenths of a point to a new 1930 low at 97.6. Railroads and industrials set new minimums for the year.

The selling affected all classes of railroad bonds. Lows were reached by Central of Georgia 5s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s C, and general 5½s, Erie 5s, Soo 4s and Seaboard All Florida 6s. The sharpest breaks occurred in International Great Northern first 6s which yielded 10¾, and Denver Rio Grande & Western 5s, which reached 4¾. Pressure was heavy against bonds of the St. Paul and St. Louis, San Francisco Railroads.

American Telephone Loses.

The irregularly lower trend in the utility group was marked by sharp rises in several bonds, notably Interborough Rapid Transit 6s, which rallied nearly 5 points, and International Telephone debenture 5s, which gained 1⅞. American Telephone 5s yielded ⅞ and Consolidated Gas 5½s declined ¼.

In the stock privilege group American International 5½s, Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s, Rock Island 4½s, Colon Oil 6s, Lautaro Nitrate 6s, Shell Union 5s and Warner Brothers 6s sagged 1 to 2 points. Schulco 6½s dropped 4 and General Theaters 6s rejected 2½.

Offering is being made of a $7,407,000 Commonwealth of Kentucky Bridge revenue 4½ per cent bond issue. American Sugar Refining Co. announced today it had authorized redemption of $5,000,000 50-year 6 per cent gold bonds at 108 on January 1, 1931.

METROPOLITAN LIFE BUSINESS REPORTED

Capital Residents Insured for $100,000,000 in Company, Claim.

NURSING SERVICE DATA

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The District of Columbia has attained an important position in insurance circles, for in one life insurance company alone its residents are insured for $100,000,000, according to announcement yesterday by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., of which Vincent Saccardi is local manager. The foregoing amount, it was stated is carried in nearly 307,000 individual policies and group contracts.

In announcing the extent of its business in force in the District, the Metropolitan company explains that by far the greater amount of the coverage is ordinary and industrial insurance although group life insurance amounts to more than $9,500,000. Ordinary insurance, however, exceeds $47,000,000 while industrial totals nearly $43,500,000.

During 1929, this company paid on account of its ordinary, industrial and group life insurance policies in force in the District a total of nearly $2,207,000. Death claims amounted to approximately $915,000; endowments, $275,000, while dividends, surrender values and other payments to policy holders totaled close to $1,680,000.

Extent of Nursing Service.

Metropolitan Life conducts, both directly and through affiliations with nursing associations, a free visiting nurse service in approximately 4,700 communities of the United States and Canada. Its nurses made 21,377 visits to sick or injured policyholders in the District last year. Closely associated with the nursing service is a bureau for the dissemination of health literature, and it distributed 175,310 pamphlets in the District in 1929.

Christmas savings club funds will total approximately $7,500,000 this year, according to a report of Eliot H. Thomson, chairman, advertising committee, District of Columbia Bankers Association, made to the association yesterday. This will be an advance of $500,000 from last year's amount and a new record. The number of subscribers this year was 92,197, an increase of 4,496 from the previous year; based on official figures for this year, withdrawals, according to the estimated total of savings, totaled approximately $336,000.

Ralph Endicott, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman of the auditors' section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, has called a dinner meeting of the section at the National Press Club for 6 o'clock this evening. The special committee appointed at the last meeting will render its report upon a system to prevent fraudulent use of bank drafts, cashiers' checks and certificates of deposit.

Papers Will Be Read.

Raymond G. Marx, auditor, Riggs National Bank, and Robert A. Sisson, Washington Savings Bank, will read papers on "Duties of a Bank Auditor in Connection with Examination by Directors."

A new issue of $7,407,000 Commonwealth of Kentucky Bridge Revenue 4½ per cent bonds, due July 1, 1950 is offered today by a syndicate headed by Harris, Forbes & Co., associated with Chase Securities Corporation and including Stranahan, Harris & Co., Inc. The bonds are priced at 97½ and interest, yielding about 4.70 per cent.

In accordance with the State's plan for unifying its primary highway system by replacing certain ferries with bridges on some of its principal highways, the Kentucky State Highway Commission will apply the proceeds of this financing to the construction of three separate projects.

Curb Review

New York, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Curb shares made further irregular recovery today, in sympathy with the flurry of short covering on the big board. The market was a little less active than yesterday, sales aggregating 731,800 shares.

The copper shares moved up a point or two, but as the copper group in this market is comparatively small, the increase in copper metal prices did not have as stimulating an influence on the general list as it did on the big board. Noranda and Newmont each gained 2, and Roan Antelope, South African producer, mounted 1. Bunker Hill and Sullivan, which produces other nonferrous metals, also rose 2 points.

The recovery was again most conspicuous in the utilities, but it lacked yesterday's vigor. The market sold off during the early hours, and did not get far above yesterday's final prices in the late rally. Electric Bond & Shares and American Superpower were active features, and, together with Middle West, American Gas and St. Regis, they gained about a point. American Superpower declared an annual dividend of 40 cents, against $1 and one-twenty-fifths of a share of stock last year. Associated Gas A was a firm feature, recovering 2 points more. Northern States A rose 3.

Oils were somewhat irregular. Cities Service recovered one-half, closing at 19, and Indiana and Gulf were about steady. Kentucky rose a point, but Humble sagged about 2 to a new low, and Vacuum lost three-fourths. Some of the natural gas issues were firm. Lone Star gained a point.

In the industrials, U. S. Gypsum rose 2 points in response to an extra dividend of 50 cents. Fox Theaters A rose 1½ in sympathy with strength in Fox Film. American Cyanamid, which has been strongly supported around 10, rose one-half, to 10½. Anglo Chilean Nitrate touched a new low at 13½, and closed at 14, off 1.

In the investment trusts, the Shenandoah, Blue Ridge and Selected Industries preferred issues sagged a point or two to new lows. Goldman Sachs Trading, however, rallied one-half of a point. United Founders was heavily traded, dropping to 9, then rallying to close at 10, up one-fourth.

POPE'S GIFT MOSAIC IS DEDICATED AT CATHOLIC SHRINE

SERMON IS DELIVERED BY BISHOP T. J. SHAHAN

Curley Elected to Council at Meeting of Hierarchy in Catholic University.

Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, last night dedicated the reproduction of Murillo's mosaic, "The Immaculate Conception," which was given to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception by Pope Pius XI.

Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of Catholic University, and founder of the shrine, told the story of the assembling of the mosaic to the congregation, which was composed of about 1,000 members of religious orders, secular priests and archbishops and bishops. The prelates are attending a meeting of the Catholic hierarchy at Catholic University.

Bishop Shahan said that the mosaic is the "most noble gift of Pope Pius XI to the shrine, to the Catholic hierarchy and to the Catholics of this country. In the mosaic, he pointed out, are 36,000 pieces of Roman enamel which were assembled by three artists over a period of five years.

Curley Is Elected.

After Bishop Shahan's sermon, Cardinal Dougherty and other prelates proceeded to the mosiac, where the Cardinal blessed the mosaic. Benediction folowed, with Cardinal Dougherty as the celebrant.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore, was elected a member of the administrative council of the National Catholic Welfare Conference at the afternoon meeting of the hierarchy. Archbishop Curley succeeds the Right Rev. Philip R. McDevitt, of Harrisburg, Pa., who is ill.

Reports on the various activities of the various departments of the welfare conference occupied yesterday's sessions, over which William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, presided. Two other high Catholic prelates, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of New York City, and Cardinal Dougherty are attending the meeting.

Presented to Hoover.

Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, is scheduled to attend today's session. In addition to the cardinals, 8 archbishops and 53 bishops, from all sections of the country, are in attendance.

A message of sympathy was sent by the hierarchy to Archbishop Austin Dowling, of St. Paul, Minn., who was unable to attend the conference because of illness.

Mgr. Nouel, Archbishop of Santo Domingo and a former president of the Dominican Republic, was presented to President Hoover yesterday. He came to this country to attend the meeting and also to raise $200,000 for the restoration of churches which were wrecked in the September hurricane.

No. 4 Engine Company To Be Honored Tonight

Officers and men of No. 4 Engine Company will be honored at a reception in the Garnet-Patterson School at 8 p. m. tonight by the Blaine Invincible Republican Club.

The reception will be given the engine company, Francis Wells, president of the club, said, because of the showing made in the annual firemen's parade on Labor Day.

Among those who have accepted invitations to attend are Commissioners Reichelderfer, Crosby and Gotwals; William W. Bride, corporation counsel; Fire Chief George S. Watson, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police; Odell S. Smith, Dr. Frank E. Gibson, George C. Shaffer, E. D. Blackistone, L. C. Prichard, Louis E. Hoover and Capt. Thomas D. Walsh.

Couple to Celebrate Golden Anniversary

With their four children, four grandchildren and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Emory, of 811 Sixth street northeast, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today. They have been in Washington since 1894 and Mr. Emory, who is 75 years old, retired eight years ago from the Government Printing Office after 30 years' service.

Both came originally from Princess Anne, Md., and prior to coming to the Capital lived in Centerville, Md. Mrs. Emory, 76 years old, taught school on the Eastern Shore of Maryland a number of years.

Leaders Will Discuss Plans to Get Tourists

Directors of the Washington Board of Trade, bankers and leading business men will hold a meeting tomorrow to map out a campaign for bringing more tourists to Washington, it was announced yesterday.

Creation of a permanent organization to promote Washington as a focal point for conventions and tourists will be considered, it was announced. In planning the campaign, particular emphasis will be placed on the Washington bicentennial celebration of 1932.

Gas Company to Hold Dinner for Employes

The Washington Gas Light Co. will hold a dinner at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Service building, Twenty-ninth and M streets northwest, for the 300 employes of the company's service department.

These employes installed more than $300,000 worth of equipment during September, representing an increase of 500 per cent over the installations for the same month in 1929.

Dominican President Commends Navy Doctor

Commander Lucius M. Johnson, Medical Corps of the Navy, who, until his assignment to Haiti, lived at 3308 Thirty-fifth street northwest, has been commended by President Rafael L. Trujillo, of the Dominican Republic, for his work following the cyclone which wrecked Santo Domingo.

Commander Johnson "directed and organized the services of the Red Cross, hospitals and food administration, deserving by his activity, devotion and efficiency the unanimous gratitude of the people of this capital," the communication to the Navy Department stated.

CUE LIGHTS SWAY OPERA AUDIENCES

RED FOUND IRRITATING

Chicago, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Principles of the radio tube and photo-electric cell are used by the Chicago Civic Opera Company to operate what is called the greatest theater-lighting system in the world.

With the development of apparatus used here, says J. A. Tweddle, chief electrical director, stage lighting has risen from the field of technique to the field of art.

Color tones have been brought to equal the sound tones of the orchestra's music in disposing the audience to proper receptivity for operatic effects.

"A series of experiments during the past summer has shown that, by the use of our color tones, we can create almost any mood in the audience out beyond the footlights," Tweddle said. "We can irritate it with reds, and mollify it with blues and ambers and grays."

The control board is operated by one man from a pit beside the prompter's box beneath the stage. The stage picture is reflected to him by a series of mirrors.

Sitting before dials arranged in octaves, like an eight-console pipe organ, he follows cues on a musical score and produces lighting effects by turning a maze of dials, lightly, as an organist caresses keys.

A whole set-up of gradually growing light effect may be built up on the smaller dials, in advance of the cue, and the whole released, when the cue comes, by a master dial. The series of effects is thus produced automatically.

All throwing of old style switches is eliminated by the use of "thyratron" tubes connected with the dial board. The system and apparatus was worked out by the General Electric Co. and is the only one of its kind.

The movements of the baton across this ray are transmitted to the second orchestra back-stage by the photo-electric cell, giving the exactly proper beat upon which the two orchestras may be perfectly synchronized.

Two Injured Students Able to Quit Hospital

Two of four Western High School students injured in an automobile accident Monday afternoon, have left Georgetown Hospital, where they were taken after the crash. They are Harry Skillman and Miss Elizabeth Keeler. Young Skillman suffered a slight fracture of the skull, while Miss Keeler's spine was injured.

Miss Mary Barbee, a third victim of the accident, has recovered sufficiently to receive visitors, while Miss Elizabeth Johnston, the fourth victim, is showing improvement and is expected to recover, barring any complications.

Breeskin's Physician Also Gets Hiccoughs

Absorbed in his work of treating Daniel Breeskin, Earle Theater orchestra leader, for hiccoughs, Dr. M. J. Kane, of the Georgetown Hospital staff, yesterday fell victim to the ailment himself for a short period of time. He recovered quickly, however, and continued to treat Mr. Breeskin.

The latter was reported somewhat improved last night, but it was stated at the hospital that it would be at least 24 hours before he is dismissed.

The orchestra conductor was being fed a diet of 95 per cent oxygen in an effort to check the hiccoughing which has been wracking Mr. Breeskin since Monday noon. He went to the hospital Tuesday night after homemade remedies had failed to halt the attack.

Two Named to Council Of Soroptimist Clubs

Mrs. Nell R. Hysong and Miss Isabel Baker yesterday were chosen to serve two-year terms on the regional council of mid-Western and South Atlantic District Soroptimist Clubs, at the meeting of the Washington club yesterday in the Lafayette Hotel.

The club also named a nominating committee, which will prepare a slate for the election. President Mary Catherine Lewis selected Miss Belle Logan, Miss Ella C. Werner and Mrs. Grace Wilcox for this committee.

Miss Amelia Earhart To Address Chamber

Miss Amelia Earhart, transatlantic flier, will be a guest and speak at the monthly meeting of the Washington Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night, at the Mayflower Hotel, when "air transport night" will be celebrated, it was announced yesterday.

C. Townsend Ludington, president of the Ludington Lines, operating the New York, Philadelphia & Washington Air Line, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker. The meeting will be held in the large ballroom. Rudolph Jose, new president of the chamber, will preside.

Ludendorff Sees Finish Of Germany in War

Berlin, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Another great European war in 1932, resulting in the annihilation of Germany, is predicted by Gen. Erich Ludendorff in a 93-page pamphlet. The one-time World War military giant expresses belief that the conflict, beginning May 1, 1932, will find Germany, Austria, Hungary, England and Soviet Russia opposed to France, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Roumania.

He visualizes Germany as the battleground, her cities razed by air attacks, her civilian population left to its fate and the nation's youth perishing in masses on the battle fronts.

Alumni Mark 91st Anniversary.

The Post erroneously stated yesterday that the Virginia Military Institute alumni in Washington celebrated the fifty-eighth anniversary of that institution at the Army and Navy Club Tuesday night. The aniversary was the ninety-first, the school being founded November 11, 1839.

BOOKS OF WARDMAN FIRM TO BE SHOWN

STOCK DEAL IS RELATED

Minority stockholders of the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Co., in the Corporation Court of Alexandria, yesterday won a point in their contention when Judge William P. Woolls, presiding, overruled an objection made by former Judge Daniel Thew Wright to the producing in court of the records of the company to determine whether there had been any improper diversion of the funds of the corporation.

Judge Wright contended that the group of stockholders in whose names the suit for a receiver was instituted constitute less than 25 per cent of the total, and that, in the absence of any charge of dishonesty, any group of stockholders representing less than 25 per cent of the total are not entitled to ask the court to interfere with the conduct of the corporation's business.

The order to produce the records followed the allegations of Attorney Harry F. Kennedy, of Alexandria, on behalf of Robert B. Smythe, Theodore S. Grape and Charles D. Davis, minority stockholders, against the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Co., Harry Wardman and other officers. Following the ruling of Judge Woolls, Attorney Kennedy, in behalf of the plaintiffs, then asked the court to issue a subpena for the books and records of the Wardman Real Estate & Properties, Inc., and the Wardman Realty & Construction Co., in support of which he offered an affidavit which he said was based on a recent audit of the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Corporation's books.

However, when counsel for the defendants pointed out that the two corporations mentioned were incorporated under the laws of Maryland, and were not directly concerned in these proceedings, Judge Woolls denied the motion to have the books of those corporations produced.

Upon the representation of Attorney Kennedy that the books of the mortgage and discount corporation are needed to show alleged irregularities in the issuance of stock, the payment of dividends when there were insucient funds in the treasury for this purpose, and to trace certain checks which were made out for undelivered dividend payments, Judge Woods assented, and ordered the books produced.

Andrew J. Somerville, of the Washington firm of Thomas Somerville & Co., testified that his firm had purchase $1,000 of stock in the mortgage and discount company, but instead of paying cash, had credited the par value of the stock to the Wardman Construction Co., stating that at the time of the transaction the Wardman Construction Co. owed the Somerville company more than $2,000.

According to attorneys for the plaintiff, testimony will be offered to show details of alleged irregularities employed by the company in selling its stock.

Family in Paris, Editor Asks Decree's Vacation

Roland Rowe, editor of Facts and Figures, a local publication, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to vacate a decree for support which was signed in District Supreme Court on March 20, 1929.

Rowe, through Attorneys Raymond Neudecker and David L. Riordan, tells the court that under the support decree he was given the privilege of seeing his two children. He alleges that his wife has taken the children to Europe and that, as a result, he has been unable to see them, and that the decree has been thereby vacated. The wife, Mrs. Elvina Rowe, formerly of Chevy Chase, is said to be in Paris at present and the husband alleges that she is threatening to divorce him there.

Cadets of Georgetown To Be Inspected Today

Lieut. Col. Ralph H. Leavitt, U. S. A., R. O. T. C. officer of the Third Corps Area, will visit Georgetown today to make his first inspection of the Georgetown University infantry unit.

The cadet battalion has five companies this year and is about the largest Georgetown has known since it instituted military training during the World War. Maj. William H. Robson, U. S. A., is commandant, Col. Leavitt is inspecting all the R. O. T. C. units in this area.

Requiem Mass for Mrs. Landis.

A requiem mass for Mrs. J. F. R. Landis, wife of Col. Landis, U. S. Army, who died in France, will be read at the Chapel of Perpetual Adoration, 1419 V street northwest, at 10 o'clock this morning by the Rev. Cornelius Dacey, spiritual director of the Association of Perpetual Adoration. Mrs. Landis was a member of the association. Her friends are invited to attend the service.

Former Avoidance of Snag Abrogates Damage Rights

Claim for Injuries Caused by Sidewalk Obstruction Turned Down by Commissioners Because Man Knew It Was There.

After a person has stepped over or around a sidewalk obstruction for a reasonable period, the District is not responsible if he suddenly neglects to avoid the obstacle, trips over it and injures himself, the Commissioners ruled yesterday.

This decision was handed out in the case of Robert W. Dutton, of 1721 Kilbourne place northwest, who had filed a claim for injuries sustained when he ran afoul of a defect in the sidewalk on Kilbourne place, near Seventeenth street, caused by a tree growing under one of the paving blocks and raising it about ½ of an inch for a distance of about 3 feet.

Mr. Dutton reported a broken wrist and cut hand, which he claimed cost him $59 for medical attention. He sought to hold the District responsible under the act of Congress of February 11, 1929, under which the municipality is charged with the duty of maintaining its streets and highways in a reasonably safe condition.

The act provides, however, that before such claim can be allowed there must be actual notice of the defective condition of the highway or that it has existed for such a period of time as to have constituted constructive notice.

The Commissioners found after investigation, however, that Mr. Dutton had been guilty of contributory negligence, in that "the accident happened in broad daylight on a sidewalk which must have been traversed many times by the claimant."

In his report of the investigation, Daniel E. Garges, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, declared that "we do not believe that the claimant used ordinary care, nor do we believe that there was necessarily constructive notice of the condition of this sidewalk. To compromise claims of this character with the knowledge that similar conditions apply in so many places in the District we believe will encourage a multiplicity of such claims."

In turning down Mr. Dutton's claim, Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, said:

"It appears to me that a sidewalk condition such as described must necessarily be a general one in any municipality. The city can not be held responsible for damages due to conditions which it is essentially powerless to eliminate."

He also was one of three trustees of the estate of his father, B. Heineman. The claim filed today was for notes Heineman had signed without knowledge of officers of the company and the other trustees.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE STRANGE CASE OF MAVIS MEENCH.

(NOTE — Psychologists have long been interested in Miss Meench as a typical girl attendant at major football games. Every attempt to find a reason why Miss Meench should brave rain, snow, sleet, howling gales and bitter cold snaps during the football season has failed. Ordinarily she seems a person of reasonable sense, holding all the normal fear of pneumonia, grip, influenza and chronic chilblains. The following is the stenographic report of an examination of Miss Meench by Dr. Angus P. Keezle, noted psychologist.)

Q. MISS MEENCH, do you ever refuse an invitation to a football game?

A. Never.

Q. Suppose the weather is terrible?

A. That makes no difference.

Q. If there is a heavy rain, do you remain throughout the contest?

A. Oh, yes; indeed.

Q. Are you ever kept from a football game by snow or ice?

A. Certainly not.

Q. You stay there and suffer regardless of the elements?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you subject to colds?

A. I'M ALMOST always laid up after one of those wet weather games. Last year I got pneumonia. Luckily, I caught it at the last game of the season, or it would have been awfully inconveniencing.

Q. What do you know about football as a game?

A. Practically nothing.

Q. Do you know the rules at all?

A. Not at all.

Q. When the game is in progress do you know what is going on?

A. I haven't the slightest idea.

Q. Do you find the game really exciting?

A. Now that you speak of it, I don't think I do.

Q. Have you ever sat in open stands in a downpour to watch a tennis game?

A. Never.

Q. Can you imagine yourself watching a baseball game from the bleachers in a bitter gale and heavy rain?

A. Of course not.

A. Don't be silly.

Q. THEN how, Miss Meench, do you account for your devotion to football under all weather conditions and no matter how much you suffer?

A. I can't quite explain it.

Q. It's pretty silly of you, don't you think?

A. I suppose so.

Q. It certainly is not a manifestation of intelligence, is it?

A. No, indeed.

Q. Nothing that goes on down there on the gridiron in disagreeable weather justifies your inconvenience and discomfort?

A. No.

Q. You're satisfied then that it's quite inexcusable.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I suppose you are aware that the prediction for tomorrow's game is a nor'easter with a temperature close to freezing?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How would you like to go to the football game?

A. I'd love to!

(At this point the professor gave up.)

MINIATURE GOLF.

Bent at the waist, they putt and putt,
But golfers never feel the strain.
Until at last with fond regret
They sink the last ball down the drain.

And if they're not on the radio
I'll do them no harm.

TWO United States dry agents, placed in charge of a padlocked brewery, are now charged with operating it and turning out 16,000 gallons. It's just possible they had never been told about the dry act.

Dr. F. Scott McBride says the election result was good for the dry cause and shows prohibition is here to stay. We knew somebody would see through the whole thing.

A metropolitan regional plan commission expresses the amazing opinion that, after all, the Greek temple influence in the designing of hot-dog stands and gas stations is out of place. This will find approval on the part of thousands of American tourists who have wasted an hour wandering around a memorial library before discovering it was impossible to get a frankfurter, roll and cup of coffee there or have the tires pumped up and the gas tank filled.

11 CAMPBELL JURORS HIT CASE TESTIMONY

Prepared to Acquit After Prosecution Rested, They Say.

BALLISTICS IS SCOUTED

Eleven jurors who sat in the case of Herbert M. Campbell, recently tried for the murder of Mary Baker, have declared that they would have returned the acquittal verdict which they did, even if the defense had not presented any testimony.

A statement, signed by the eleven jurors, was exhibited to newspapermen yesterday by Mr. Campbell. It said in part:

"We were prepared to return a verdict of not guilty at the close of the prosecution's case and our verdict would have been the same if the defense had not introduced any testimony whatsoever."

The jurors' statement also criticized the ballistics evidence produced, stating:

"The ballistics testimony introduced by the prosecution was wholly inadequate to convince us that the Campbell gun had fired the mortal bullets; that the exhibit photographs introduced by the prosecution left too much to speculation and guesswork and that if we had been required to return a verdict upon the identity of the gun we would have found that the Campbell gun did not fire the mortal bullets."

Signers of the statement were John F. Bowes, George Ellis, Charles T. Jones, Robert A. Chiff, Vernon E. Chappell, V. M. Norr, A. P. Shaw, Phillip Little, George A. Klemy, jr., W. O. Rabbitt and Elmer H. Bailey, jr.

Paul J. Seltzer, twelfth juror in the Campbell trial, last night said he had been approached to sign the statement but because of personal reasons, did not care to attach his name to the document. Mr. Seltzer said he had no criticism to make regarding the action of the other jurors but simply felt that he did not want to join in the statement.

23 BISHOPS TAKE PART

Cardinal William O'Connell, of Boston, yesterday dedicated the new St. Joseph's Seminary, Twelfth and Varnum streets northeast, with impressive ceremonies. He was assisted by Archbishop M. J. Curley, of Baltimore.

A sermon, which was to have been delivered by Bishop Hafey, of Raleigh, N. C., was read in his absence. Bishop Hafey was prevented by illness from attending. In the sermon, Bishop Hafey called attention to missionary work being done among Negroes, and urged that the sisterhoods of the church devote to vocational training of girls from poorer families some of the effort now being given to education in colleges.

Besides Cardinal O'Connell and Archbishop Curley, the following dignitaries of the church took part in the ceremonies:

Archbishops J. W. Shaw, and J. T. McNicholas; Bishops J. B. Morris, J. Schrembs, T. J. Shahan, William Hickey, J. G. Murray, J. J. Swint, A. J. Brennan, J. A. Griffin, F. C. Kelly, R. O. Gerow, J. F. HOUSE UNIT PLANS TO MEET SOON ON DISTRICT TAXATION

Mapes Expected to Reach City by Latter Part of Next Week.

FREAR IS NOT TO PUSH INCOME LEVY, HE SAYS

Representative States Rates Here Should Be as High as Other Cities.

The House committee on District fiscal relations, which Speaker Longworth was charged with having "stacked" against the people of the District, is expected to get under way about a fortnight hence.

Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, chairman of the committee, is expected to return to Washington the latter part of next week, and, if the expectations of others on the committee are borne out, to immediately launch the committee activities.

Representative James A. Frear (Republican), of Wisconsin, is the second majority member on the committee and he already is in Washington, having come here in anticipation that his colleague would begin the committees work before Congress convened next month.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, is another member of the committee who is in Washington. Others are expected to return at different times.

Attitude of Two Members.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Patman declare that they have made no decision in advance on the question they have been appointed to study. Indications are that Mr. Patman is open to conviction on many and various aspects of the subject. Mr. Frear likens himself to a juror who has yet to hear the evidence in the case, but it is almost certain that any prospective juror with Mr. Frear's convictions would be barred in almost any court.

Mr. Frear believes that the people of Washington should pay as high taxes as elsewhere. He sweeps aside any reference to the amount of property owned in Washington by the Federal Government as not pertinent to the discussion and points out that Government property never is taxed or considered in connection with taaxtion anywhere in the country, whether it is municipal, county, State or Federal.

Mr. Frear believes, too, that if the people of Washington paid as high taxes as are paid elsewhere the Federal Government would not be called on to appropriate a penny toward the upkeep of the aNtional Capital. He believes that the question of the amount of the Federal appropriation for the Nation's Capital is a matter of vital concern to his people back home and the people of other districts and States because they have to pay the sum. Entirely too many public officials, Mr. Frear says, have forgotten, or never knew the burden of scratching around for money to pay taxes such as the ordinary individual sorrowfully experiences.

Parents Once Lived Here.

Mr. Frear has behind him knowledge and opinions gained through a long familiarity with Washington. He was 17 years old when he enlisted at Fort Myer, Va., and served hereabouts. His parents lived here for many years, until their death a year or two ago. He has been a member of Congress from Wisconsin, his native heath, for more than two decades. Sometimes his father complained about the high taxes in Washington but Mr. Frear reassured him with the remark that he was much better off than if he had to pay taxes in Milwaukee.

Mr. Frear is a veteran of many battles in Congress. He prides himself on his mental integrity and independence and was one of those who voted against the present Republican tariff law although there are sugar mills in his home district. He was the leader of the fight against the sales tax which was proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in conjunction with the soldier bonus soon after the war. He is a determined man who is sensitive and pugnacious enough to resent undue criticism and if his mind is made up that the people of Washington should pay more taxes than he will exert himself to see that they do.

The Wisconsin Representative, however, took occasion yesterday to set at rest any fear that he would insist on an inheritance tax and an income tax for the District. He introduced bills at the last session providing for both taxes for the District. But he does not intend to push these
